A Little Genius Around the House

YONKERS, N. Y. (A) Many people, confronted with a boy genius, immediately the child must be a brilliant but upmitigated brat. True or false?

False say experts like Dr. Irving Lorge, psychologist of Columbia University, who has made broad studies of gifted children. False, says Mrs. Albert

Strom, whose testimony might be considered prejudiced except that she appears to have examined the question critically. Her son Robert, 11, is probably the country's best known juvenile brain, having won $224,000 on TV with his knowledge of the sciences.

More than 99 per cent of glited children, Dr. Lorge has found, are well-rounded emotionally. Other authorities agree that a child highly developed in one area frequently is well developed in others and in his ability to get along with people.

Living with Robert Strom,

concedes his mother, is like living with a Roman candle. "He emits sparks all the time. He is intense about everything. The most frequent phrase we have to use with him is 'simmer down.'"

BUT, SHE ALSO points out, the boy responds to authority, he recognizes he is a child in an adult world (where few adults have his high I. Q.) He is a highly social creature who plays child games with other children, is well liked by them and his teachers find him well adjusted although there is very little they can teach him.

It would be a stupid -management of an industry that located here to not find out these facts. We have been virtually put on notice that the Navy shipyards will be closed unless the situation is corrected. Considering that thousands of shipyard workers now work behind dikes which hold out the ocean, and that an earthquake could crack those dikes, should be enough to awaken the people to the

Our only hope of stopping subsidence is to get state legislation providing for the repressuring of the Wilmington field. To do that we must convince the Legislature that subsidence is caused by extraction of oil. That evidence is found in the scientific reports made by recognized authorities in reports to the city and to oil companies. Now the city is employing experts to compile these various reports into documents which should impress any reasonable body or individual.

For the first time there is a concentrated effort by the City Council and City Manager to prepare the city's case for such a presentation. An effort is in process to employ an administrator whose sole duty will be a program to get the necessary action. It can only be done by a concentrated effort supported by all the people of the city. There is danger in "hiding our hoad in the sand." The only safe course is to face facts and accept the responsibility for allowing what has happened, and then to move quickly to correct it. We are in trouble and only sellish interests or apathetic people will retard the efforts to get us out of it.--L.A.C.

The earthquake that rocked Mexico City last Sunday was gentle compared to the Long Beach quake of 1933, City Councilman Charles R. Dooley re ported Saturday.

Councilman Dooley and Mrs. Dooley are the latest returnees who survived the Mexico City shocks. They were in a down-town hotel when the quakes

"We were on the second floor of the Plaza Vista Hermosa, a new 12-story hotel," Dooley said, "The top of the building swayed three or four feet, but it stood up very well,

DOOLEY SAID practically all the damage appeared to have been done to new buildings. He said a theater two blocks from their hotel was caved in, and a Mexican government building across from the American embassy was leaning three feet.

"But one new 45-story office building, the Mirador, a glass-and-steel job, didn't have a single window broken. All around it, glass was broken out of other buildings."

Dooley said repair crews went o work immediately. "They to work immediately. "They were busy all over the city by Sunday afternoon, shoring up weak buildings and pouring nev cement and clearing rubble."

Temblors Tremble Less When You're on Bedrock

By PAUL WALLACE .

Build your house on bedrock and forget about earthquake damage

Research by Dr. Beno Gutenberg and Dr. C. F. Richter has shown that the composition of the earth is an important factor in quake damage.

A deep layer of soft strata such as sand, clay and gravel can increase the damage from given shock manyfold, Dr. Gutenberg says.

He estimates an area built on deep, solt material may get up to 10 times more shaking than another district, equally close to a quake's epicenter, but built on bedrock

THE SEISMOLOGISTS set up a chain of identical seismo graphs to record earth tremors rom Pasadena to Palos Verdes Earlier, they had generally de-termined that the composition of the earth between the two points dips into a deep bowl illed with soft materials.

Same Old Fly in the Ointment?

He's the President -Not a Mule Driver

REP. CLEVELAND M. BAILEY, a West Virginia Democrat, calls President Dwight Eisenhower a "lousy liar." The only thing that need be said about such an insult was said by Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty: "Statements like that speak for themselves and the men who make them.'

Bailey's outburst followed Mr. Eisenhower's refusal to accept blame for the defeat of the federal school-aid bill. The West Virginia Democrat and several others say it was all the President's fault. To which the President, if he were not more of a gentleman than his critics, might appropriately reply with Rep. Bailey's own words.

THE RESPONSIBILITY for the passage or the defeat of legislation lies not with the executive branch but with the legislative branch of government.

It is not the President's job to enter the corridors of Congress and lobby for or against a bill. If he did such a thing, the air would ring with the indignant cries of lawmakers defending their prerogatives. Congress has both authority and responsibility in the field of

As for the school bill, the fact is that Mr. Eisenhower has made his attitude perfectly clear about federal school aid. In January of 1956 he recommended a five-year school construction plan. Federal aid to education, he said, should not become an established principle; but, he added, the current emergency required a stop gap remedy.

; Subsequently Congress got in a hot wrangle about the terms of the proposed legislation and killed it. In January of this year Mr. Eisenhower again called WALTER LIPPMANN on Congress to "act quickly" to provide a program of federal grants to help states build new schools.

CONGRESS DID NOT ACT quickly. The President on a number of occasions spoke up for school legislation, and even promised to sign the compromise bill which Eisenhower Republicans and liberal Democrats put together and which he felt was in many respects unsatisfactory. Early in July, by way of Vice President Nixon, he told the National Education Assn. that he hoped for "prompt" approval of federal aid for school construction. It is true the President did not raise a political whip and order Congress to do its job. He is a Presidentnot a mule driver.

The President can go so far, then it is the work of Congress. He can recommend; they reject or accept. What happens in the Senate and the House of Representatives is the primary responsibility of Senators and Representatives. When a Congressman says otherwise, he's just trying to pass the buck.

DAVID LAWRENCE

It Must Be Heat or Political Humidity

WASHINGTON—It must be the heat or else the political when humidity. For one day someone in Congress says President Eisenhower doesn't have "brains," and another day some other member says the President is "a lousy liar."

All this comes under the head of "free speech," but whether it's good manners and courtesy and upholds the dignity of Congress is something else again. It is true, of course, that the sniping is being done by the Democrats and that modern politics evidently knows no limits to the smear—it's all supposed to be within the rules of party warfare. But fortunately the public doesn't regard party zeal as permitting anyone to trans-cend the rules of gentlemany conduct, especially in govern-mental affairs—and it may be doubted whether the people back home are proud of those representatives who engage in mo-calling. It was th President Franklin D. Roosevelt who once said that, as soon as name-calling starts, it is evident that the name-caller is devoi dof persuasive arguments and has begun to lose the debate.

There is a curious kind of innuendo in all the smears. The attempt lately has been to build in the public mind the impression that the President lacks integrity as well as fidelity to his office. At the press conference this week someone brought up a published story about Mr. Elsenhower having made a million dollars. He laughed this off and said that he would be glad to sell all his estate for that figure any time and would reap a big profit.

MAXWELL GLUCK

Could Senators Do Better?

THEN THERE WAS the innuendo at the press conference -repeating a senator's question in a Foreign Relations Committee hearing-that Mr. Eisenhower appoints ambassadors primarily because they have contributed to political campaign This, of course, the President indignantly denied

The fact is that all Presidents get recommendations for appointments, and, as a rule, the one thing nobody ventures to mention to a President is that a political campaign contribution should be rewarded.

The list of nominees who have gene to foreign-service posts under Democratic administrations after making notable contributions to Presidential campaign funds is very long indeed to mention only Joe Davies, Joe Kennedy and Perle Mesta. It would be a grave mistake to imply, however, that none of them proved able, for most of them have, and so also have the Republican appointees. Business experience is an asset in diplo-

AS FOR MANWELL H. GLUCK, the new Ambassador to Ceylon—who, when questioned by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, couldn't remember offhand how to pronounce the name of the Prime Minister of Ceylon (S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike) or the full name of the Prime Minister of India (Jawaharlal Nehru)-it is doubtful whether any test in pro nunciation has ever before been required before approving the nomination of our ambassadors or ministers to posts abroad.

It could be, of course, that the Democrats are instituting a new reform and that after this they intend to be very meticulous about such things. One would naturally expect the test now to be applied to the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, if not indeed to membership itself on that august group. It might be the new rule that no Senator may qualify who cannot offhand recite and correctly pronounce the names of all the members of the politburo in Moscow. Also, it might be urged that nobody can be chairman who can't reel off quickly the names of the secretaries of the treasury of each government to which America has made financial grants in the foreign-aid program in the last 10 years.

The Improbable Treaty

MR. DULLES is in London, it appears, to find a respect-able common position on the West can stand after the conference adjourns and while the West Germans hold their elections. There are at this point no signs that we are any nearer to an agreement with the Russians. There is indeed much LIPPMANN evidence that while the London talks have been going on, the positions taken publicly by both sides have become harder and less negotiable. Both sides seem to regard the existing military and diplomatic stalemate as more acceptable and as less dangerous than a substantial negotiation.

One question which we are bound to ask ourselves is why we are disappointed. Did we ever have any right to hope that what has always failed before — namely, world dis-armament by international agreement—had some chance of succeeding now? Men of experience, all the old hands in diplomacy, have known as a matter of course that nations engaged in a cold war will not disarm themselves. Why then, could so many of them have taken seriously what has been going on in the London talks?

Some, no doubt, have taken it seriously because they have been determined that if or when the disarmament talks fail, the blame would not fall on them.

BUT THERE has been ing reason. It derives from the fact that modern armaments have reached a size and a destructiveness which makes them intolerable and incalculable. The race of armaments is so swift that weapons are obsolescent about as soon as they come into mass production. The result, on the one hand, is that no one really knows what is a safe limit on the expenditures for armaments, and the military budget is really a kind of blind wager with the national security. On the other hand, in the military establishment there is no stable strategical doctrine by which the services are bound to act together,

Because modern araments have become different in kind from any that existed before the second World War, it has not been foolish to think that an agreement on araments might be possible. There is no doubt that both in Moscow and in Washington there are men in high places who feel, as does President Eisenhower, that modern war can no longer he a rational and effective in-strument of any political policy. What we are seeing, however, is that there is a great difference between a tactic understanding, such as

which was published on Mon-day, is part of this pulling and hauling. For all practical pur-poses, it is a commitment on our part not to try to nego-tiate a significant treaty on armaments. For this declaration gives Dr. Adenauer the power of veto until the Soviet Union agrees to German unification on terms which amount to unconditional surrender. At present, to put it mildly, the unconditional surrender of the Soviet Union is not in sight.

TMS declaration will no doubt be useful to Dr. Adenauer in his election campaign. But it amounts to an extraordinary concession for a great power to make, to give to another nation such a privilege and such a preference in domi-nating the conduct of its own foreign policy. Let us hope

Billboard Bill Being Prepared for Burial?

WASHINGTON-The billboard bill to keep unsightly signboards off the new federal highways will be quietly buried in the Senate Public Works Committee—if certain senators can get away with it.

When Sen. Albert Gord of Tennessee, a supporter Neuberger billboard bill, asked Chairman Dennis Chavez of New Mexico to report the bill to the full committee, Cha-"Now, boys," pint - sized senator from New Mexico. "I think the thing to do is to hold hearings during the congressional recess in about four PEARSON or five major cities around the country, to test sentiment on this matter. It would be a nice trip for you, too."

"Mr. Chairman," bristled ore, "we've hold thorough Gore, and exhaustive hearings on this bill-the most thorough hearings on any measure before our subcommittee. Every person on either side of the issue hos had a full chance to be heard. The hearings went on for many weeks. They drew people from all over the country. I don't intend to hold another day of hearings on this bill. The time has come to bring it before the Senate for action."

SENATOR Neuberger, the 44-year-old Oregon Democrat who is author of the bill, reminded Chavez that the rights-of-way for the new highways already are being surveyed in many states.

"Unless we pass anti-signboard legislation at once," he warned, "it will be too late because the signs will be erected and 'grandfather rights' will be claimed by the big outdoor advertising companies."

Sens. Francis Case of South Dakota and Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, both Republicans, backed up Gore and Neuberger. They demanded action, but influential Bob

The meeting ended with no action, though Chavez promised to call another session before the Senate adjourns. This will probably be too late. If Congress goes home this year without having done anything to control billboards, you will be seeing ugly signs instead of hillsides and rivers during the next half-century of driving over the new roads which will cost the taxpayers thirty-three billion dollars.

Democratic member, sided with Chavez's desire to stall.

Whose personal ambition should be "reconciled"? No doubt the Governor is thinking, first of all, of Sen. Knowland's, But if Knowland's won't "reconcile", must another person make the sacrifice? Here is an interesting angle for speculation as Republicans continue to worry about the possibilities of a knock-down battle in next year's GOP primary, and to "dream up" ways by which such a thing might be averted.

While Gov. Knight continues to warn of the risks of an intraparty fight, the Knowland camp is taking exactly the opposite view. It is reported Knowland aides are compiling some case histories to show that party organizations in some states have been strengthened, rather than weakened, by vigorous intraparty contests.

THE POSSIBILITY that Knowland will run for the governorship came closer and closer to a probability in the last week.

Early in the week Newsweek Magazine came out with a cover story on Knowland, stating flatly that he is preparing to run for the presidency and is quitting the Senate to run for Governor because governors often become presidents, Senators almost never attain that office.

Newsweek quoted Mrs. Knowland to the effect that she feels positive the Senator will run for governor. Newsweek must have had access to family confidences, because it quotes a letter to her mother on that very subject-a letter which Sen, Knowland read and mailed for her. Quite obviously, the Knowlands didn't mind Newsweek's virtually flat assertion the Senator will run for

Another development was an announcement from Sen. Knowland's office that he probably make his long-awaited formal declaration on his intentions some time in late September or early October. This would follow a statewide speaking which includes an appearance as principal speaker at a meeting of the Cali-fornia Republican Assembly in Long Beach

Ostensibly, the tour is to test the mood of the state's voters. Ordinarily, politicians on such projects get whatever results they're hoping to get. So there appears little doubt as to what the decision will be.

RIGHT NOW, the odds strongly favor a Knight-Knowland battle in the 1958 pri-mary. But until the battle lines are irrevocably drawn, there will be hope-and a possibility-that somehow the painful contest can be avoided.

Night Golfing, Too By HARRY FULTON Councilman D. Pat Ahern Saturday urged Long

Councilman Favors

Beach to light up its beach and golf courses during warm summer evenings to provide additional recreational outlets for Southern California residents.

He called for installation of lights all along the shoreline from the harbor district to the Alamitos Bay entrance jetties. and he contended that such a project not only would "pay for itself" but "prove to be the best summertime business-getter this city has ever had."

Ahern said he will outline his proposal to the City Council on Tuesday and at the same time urge local representatives in the state assembly to work for release of tideland oil funds to assist with the beach development program.

"WE BRAG ABOUT our weather, but we show no confidence in it because we do not plan enough evening and night recreation," said Ahern, plugging for his beach lighting pro-posal." "We have one of the golden assets of our country in our beach; yet, come shades of night, we throw it out of our thinking except for the neon-lit amusement rides at the pleasure parks along our coastline.

"We forget that the waves keep pounding against the sand all night long with the same health-giving rapidity that they do in the sunlight. We let one of our prime assets literally abliterate itself at sundown; yet millions of people, unable to get here in the daytime, could reach the beach at night in only

THE CITY COUNCILMAN proposed that the west beach area be lighted primarily for water skiing and small boat activity and that the rest of the strand be illuminated for

He said "there is no reason why we could not, with proper spacing of light pillars and with direct beam lights out into the water and pan floodlights back to the sand, make our beach have a continuous day.

He suggested leaving the beach lights on until 11 n.m. or midnight, saying "this will make it possible for recreation and business to thrive about 16 hours a day." He urged night lighting for existing municipal golf courses and the new Skylinks course at Municipal Airport, now being built, as "a boon to those who work in the daytime and must seek recreation at night."

Ahern believes that batteries of lights on poles spaced about 150 feet apart would provide necessary illumination for night beach recreation. He said these poles should be sturdy enough to support glass enclosed lifeguard stations.

AHERN'S PLAN calls for installation of concessions and metered parking all along the beach, and he said revenue from these sources would take care of the cost of lighting. He said he would advocate an increase in the county's allotment for local lifeguard service inasmuch as people from all parts of Los Angeles County would benefit from the lighted beach.

As a "business-getter," Ahern described his concept of night beach development as "the greatest stimulus to the downtown section ever concocted since Pine Ave. was a pup."

He said that nearly all night-time swimmers would make some expenditure of money while in Long Beach, and he predicted that many women would form the habit of shopping in downtown Long Beach Friday nights while their families swim

THE COUNCILMAN described the local surf as "most-excellent" for evening bathing. Checks with lifeguards, he said, reveal that a slight breeze which arrives around 4:30 p. m.

daily in the summertime departs about 6 p. m., creating pleasurable conditions for night swimming. Ahern, who played in the first night softball game ever played in Southern California—in Pomona in the 1920s—said California has lacked "real development" in evening recreation under the lights. "We have forgotten the lesson taught us during World Waz

II when we planned recreation on a 'round-the-clock basis for three shifts of workers employed in wartime industry," said-the councilman, who was recreation director for Western Pipe & Steel, a shippard employing upwards of 16,000 during the derful Southern California weather, plus daytime overcrowding of our beaches, will open this new avenue of lighted beach recreation all along the coast.

"It is my hope that Long Beach may lead the way on the Pacific Coast to a happier, more prosperous and abundant life

HUGGED BY SUBSIDENCE Big Squeeze Hits Bridge

Harbor Department engineers are fighting a continuous battle to keep a vital link to busy Terminal

Island in operation. Subsidence, that familiar villain, is putting the squeeze on one of the highest vertical lift bridges in the United States, the Commodore Heim Bridge over the Cerritos Channel.

`Horizontal ground move-ment accompanying vertical sinking is inexorably com-pressing the huge structure.

The bridge's two 230-foot towers, housing the mechanism which raises the 840-ton lift span, have moved a foot toward each other.

SINCE 1946, the bridge's approaches on each side have shortened about 2½ feet. All expansion joints in the girder spans are closed except one, where 1½ inches clearance

Sugar Chile Digs All That Medical Jazz

ELBOWS, FISTS, anything went when Sugar Chile Robinson at 7 perched on a stool to wham out boogie-woogie.

OLIVET, Mich. (P)—His schoolmates at tiny Olivet College know him as Frank Isaac Robinson—a little fellow with an engaging grin who wants to be a doctor. You'll remember him as Sugar Chile Robinson—a boogie-woogie scat-singing child prodigy. These days, a 17-year-old Negro pre-med student, he is happy with an occasional jam session.

"Sugar Chile is gone," says Frank. "I want to come back as Dr. Frank Robinson."

He stands an excellent chance of accomplishing his goal. A modest, alert youth, he appears to have profited from all the advantages of fame without succumbing to its drawbacks.

Sugar Chile could read at 2. At 6 he was an accomplished, if unorthodox pianist. Name musicians of the immediate post war years remember the amazing Sugar Chile who at 6 was banging out barrel house jazz in some of the classiest gin mills and vaudeville circuits in America and Europe.

BEFORE HE RETIRED at 15, he made $10,000 a week. He played at Madison Square Garden, was the youngest headliner in the history of the Palladium in

"Playing for President Truman when I was 6 was the biggest thrill in my life," Frank says.
"I was playing like everything. I shouted, 'How'm I doin', Mr. President?' and just then one of the piano legs

"Well, the President laughed, so I got down on the floor and finished playing on my knees."

One thing about Frank hasn't changed much. He was small when a youngster and even today is only 4 feet 8 inches tall and weighs less than 100 pounds.

Besides his pre-med course, Frank is studying the piano formally. piano formany.

"It's strange," he says, "but after making a good living at it for a dozen years, I'm finally learning how to read music."

TEN YEARS LATER, medical student Robinson is still only 4 feet 8, weighs less than 100 pounds.—(AP photos.)

WASHINGTON (LD) — President Eisenhower Saturday signed a bill extending the life of the Small Business Administration for another year.

The agency technically went out of business at midnight Wednesday because the Senate, tied up by the civil rights debate, had failed to act on a House-approved measure extend-ing its authority.

The Senate rectified this Friday. The bill continues the agency through July 31, 1958, and increases its revolving loan. fund from 230 million to 305 million dollars.

Third World Lutheranism Assembly Set

World Lutheranism assembles hundreds of its most distinguished figures here next week for a probing and perhaps nerve-touching dexamination of the church's role in Christendom.

For 10 days starting Thursday churchmen of the world's biggest Protestant denomination will raise and try to answer pivotal questions that go to the core of the modern church's mission.

They will debate subtle theological points. But they also intend to come to grips with such hard issues as how should the church deal with communism, colonialism, national policies and what it should do about healing rifts between various Lutheran bodies.

The giant third assembly of the Lutheran World Federation gates from 57 church bodies representing about 50 million of the world's 70 million Lutherans. Joining them will be nearly 500 official visitors, observers from member and non-member church bodies, and thousands of specta-

Their presence, opposed by some but emphatically defended by the bulk of the Western Lutagran leadership, could give rise

Qfficials of the assembly's advence quard here expressed fears that refugees from Iron Curtain countries now living in Minne-apolis and neighboring St. Paul might demonstrate against the Eastern Europe delegates,

Some Lutheran leaders themselves are represented as feeling it is a mistake to accept delegates from Red-dominated lands, and that churches in those countries are not free.

Taking the other view is stocky, plain-speaking Bishop Hanns Lilje of Hannover, Germany, the federation president who 12 years ago was liberated from the Nazi hangman by American troops.

"WE WILL NOT be fooled," he said. "If there is a man who is just a servant of the other system (atheism) and who does not really care for Christianity, we would soon find him out."

The Lutheran Church, he said, takes the view that "the shep-herd must stay with his flock" Fernellt (Nor) and ministers serving congregations in Eastern Europe must stay there as long as members remain.

Mainly, what Lutherans will be seeking here is a broader understanding of divergent views. They will try to forge stronger tunity within the church, and be-Winnipek (Fr) 230-D 150-D 1 tween the church and other Chritian faiths. They also will ices.

You May Talk With No Hands on 'Phone

By BOB WHEARLEY

You hardly know what to believe any more. After all these years of pleading with patrons to speak "directly, clearly and slowly into the mouth-plece" (Rule 3, Page 8, Southern Sections Directory), General Telephone Co. comes up with a new-type set that lets you yak yak from aback. Sans hands...

Push - button technology, that's what it is. You can't even blame Don Ameche. The new set looks like an ordinary desk phone. Almost, But it has a couple of switches under the dial and, directly in the center of the base, a tiny microphone is hidden behind a metal screen.

ALONG WITH THE SET comes a small loudspeaker. So Mama wants to call the old man and tell him to bring home a loaf of bread and a half dozen persimmons. She leaves the receiver on the hook, flicks the switch and dials her number. Then she can stand back in the room, burp Junior and give Papa the order of the day. Naturally, this is a two-way street. Papa can go on smoothing his secretary while Mama dictates her grocery list. IN ITS ANNOUNCEMENT, four-run uprising in the eighth inning and three hitless innings of relief pitching by Ed Roebuck carried the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 7-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday before a crowd of 39,-368. The Brooks shelled starter and loser Lew Burdette from the mound in the eighth and added two more for good measure off Don McMahon in the ninth.

Roy Campanella's bases loaded single, good for two runs, was the key blow of the four-run rally that shattered a 1-1 tie. It came off McMahon.

The victory, Roebuck's fourth against only one defeat and third in relief this week, ended the Braves' winning streak at five and Burdette's personal victory string at four. His record now is 9 and 7.

ROEBUCK RELIEVED starter Danny McDevitt in the seventh. He walked two and struck out one in his three innings of relief, McDevitt surrendered all of the Braves' five hits.

Big Ten Tenders Attract 600 of 700 Prospects

CHICAGO (P)-Big Ten schools offered a total of about 700 tenders under the new financial aid to athletes plan and there were approximately 600 acceptances. An Associated Press survey disclosed the figures Saturday.

They show that the conference lost about 100 high school prospects to outside recruiting.

This number, however, could be reduced, for the 100 tenders of ald turned down could have been from athletes sig-nifying their intentions at more than one Big Ten school. This is a common procedure. But although the conference may have lost as many as 100 prospects, assistant commissioner Bill Reed said this number would not be "out of line" in his opinion.

The deadline for acceptances of tenders was Thursday under the new program which bases financial aid strictly on

SIMCA HERE

WORLD OF WHEELS James Center Now Dealer for Simca

By ART STEPHAN endent. Press-Telegram Auto Editor

Paris comes to Long Beach with the announcement by Bob James that James Motor Center has been appointed as the Simca dealer for the Harbor Area.

"My father and I were impressed by the ever-growing interest in foreign-built cars in Southern California. Last year one out of every 19 new cars sold in Los Angeles County was imported," James remarked.

"We have building plans under way to develop Jamestown at 1350 American Ave. into a block-long international salon where many makes of imported automobiles can be compared side by side. In the top price bracket, we represent the Ger-man-built Mercedes-Benz and the British-built Jaguar. In the lowest price bracket, we are proud to add the complete Simca line, produced by the leading car maker in France.

"SIMCA WON world renown for its fine engineering and Parision styling. Last year the huge Simca plants built more than a third of a million cars, chiefly for export. Plans call for stepped up production to meet the increasing demand in this country for a car that combines American roominess and lively performance-plus Euro pean operating economy.

"The 1957 Simco models in clude a 50-horsepower in-line 4 that cruises at 70 miles per hour yet gives more than 30 miles per gallon in congested traffic. Delivered prices on these Aronde models start at $1,820. We are also displaying the 85-horsepower Simca V-8, the most luxurious car built in France. These V-8 Vedettes deliver for $2,278.

"We believe car maker abroad, free from the inevitable limitations demanded by mass production, build personal cars that put pleasure back into family motoring while greatly re ducing the yearly cost of fam transportation," concludes

GMC TRUCK TO RESCUE-I think a few paragraphs are not amiss to say thank you to Dick Wood of General Motors Truck Sales of 2699 Atlantic Ave. Dick came through in a hurry last week when at the last minute a big truck was needed to transport props and equipment in connnection with the Soap Box Derby.

The Derby is sponsored annu ally by this newspaper and the Chevrolet dealers of the area and when two of the paper's trucks went out of commission at the lost minute, a hurry-up phone call to Dick Wood, general manager of the GMC truck firm solved the dilemma.

Woods loaned us one of GM's big jobs that carried the boys racers back up the hill after trial runs and performed as a general work horse in transporting Derby equipment,

Thanks, Dick, the cooperation is appreciated.

80 TIMES AROUND—Around the world 80 times could well be the theme song of engineers at Cadillac Motor Car Division

During the past 12 months Cadillac engineers have record ed enough test miles-2,008,000 -to circle the globe slightly over 80 times.

Test mileage is accrued in two ways: on the highways and in the laboratory, with nearly two miles of actual highway driving being done to every on mile in the laboratory.

"Those laboratory test miles are legitimate test miles. though", says C. F. Arnold, Cadillac's chief engineer. "We actually hook up instruments when a car is being laboratory tested to give us accurate mile

A hand-picked collection of favorite recipes, timetested and often borrowed, set to a modern tempo, will form the Independent, Press-Telegram's Cook Book Edition Sept. 1. Women from the Southland have submitted these recipes which will be judged Aug. 12 by a panel of five home economists, following the selection of three recipes from a classification of 30, by leading women's organizations in Long Beach.

Mrs. Herman H. Ridder, wife of this paper's publisher, was hostess at a tea several weeks ago for representatives of women's clubs, when they were instructed in their official contest duties. From the selection of winners will be a grand prize winner, and all winners will be included, along with the entrants' names and addresses, in the Cook Book Edition. ### New York in Summer

Although I would not go along with the Chamber of Commerce or the Mayor's Committee in considering my home town a summer resort, from the point of view of a native there is a good deal to be said for New York in July and August.

In the first place despite the often oppressive heat you can begin to preathe a little. There is less tension in the town and fewer people.

With the exception of Fri-day afternoons when it is worth your life to try to get over the bridges and through the tunnels, due to the press of citizens taking to the hills and beaches, the city streets are almost navigable. A faxican actually make a light and sometimes in streets where parking is allowed there's place to do it! In the shops, although they are reasonably busy, it is possible to find a saleswoman who doesn't stare down her nose you and remark loftily, "This is not my department, Modom."

SOCIAL LUFE is a delight, You can call up friends at the last minute and often find them free for dinner-a rare occurrence in the winter time. Then, too, the restaurants seem more fun. Some of the is doing business, but when you get there the waiters are almost pleased to see you. It's the weather I think, the general sense of relaxation, rather than lack of trade because the places that are open do a land-office business. We dined at "21" the other night, late, too, around nine o'clock after my television show and it was packed. My dear Chateaubriand is closed but the boeuf a la mode en gelee and the smoked trout are still holding open house at the Baroque and the Vichyssoise at the Colony still slips down, a cool creamy blessing.

in back of many of the small Italian and French restaurants the gardens are open and eating a good casserole into which you dunk crusty French bread and wash it down with a chilled Rose is the nearest thing to being in Europe.

WHAT I DO miss are the roofs. Possibly I don't go to the right hotels, there may be more than I know about, but I think all adult New Yorkers, as long as they live, will miss the old Ritz roof and the hotel's Japanese garden in summer and its grill for winter luncheons.

The old Pennsylvania had good roof, too. Maybe as a Statler or a Hilton or what-

Honored at Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nikkola entertained recently at their 6045 Jaymills Ave., home with an open house and reception honoring their son, Lt. E. F. Nikkola, and his bride, the former Norma Watson of Orland, Pa.

Assisting in serving at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. George Gilley, Mrs. William Gilley and Sharron Kroeg, who presided at the guest book.

The wedding took place during June at the Episcopal Church in Orland. The newlyweds enjoyed a honeymoon trip through the Appalachian Mountains, and then visited with relatives en route to the west coast. They left Friday for Bartow, Fla,, where the bridegroom is stationed with the telephoning to find one that has, but I haven't been there in quite a spell. Not, in fact, since an occasion many a long evening ago when I went accompanied by the gentleman with whom, at the time, I was "walking out," For reasons of our own, we preferred to keep our tender emotions to ourselves.

It was a hot summer evening and "the Pennsylvania Roof will be great" said he. "Not a soul we know goes there." We stepped from the elevator and rounded the corner. There was a row of small tables for two and at the first three tables were couples we knew well, Possibly the look I gave him was unflattering because shortly after that our own romance broke up.

SINCE FEW theaters are open in the summer and since they house hits that most native. New Yorkers have already scen, there is a good chance to catch up on movies. I, at last, have seen the French picture, "The Red Balloon," and appoint myself along with practically every other customer an enthusiastic drum beater. It is a film of pure enchantment.

If you don't want to stay indoors on a beautiful moonlit evening you can circle the island of Manhattan by boat and gaze upon New York at night, one of the great sights of the twentieth century, although personally I consider the spectacle even more spectacular in the winter. When the sky is cold lavender at twilight and the great towers around Central Park are blossoming into light - the naked branches of the trees etched against them-that is a sight for which I shall be nostalgic, even in a better

Friends Bidden to Luau Brunch

Tapa cloth folders bidding their recipients to "come linger awhile at Cole's Aloha House" have been received by more than 100 friends of Mrs. James Nickelson and Mrs. Orville Cole who will entertain at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday with a luau brunch at the Cole home, 268 Granada Ave.

Hawaiian dress is mandatory for the day's guests who relax at outdoor tables amid the tropical atmosphere of the garden. An arrange-ment of anthurium, flown in from Hawaii, will grace the table but focal point in decor will be the swimming pool. "Aloha Island"—complete with pelm trees, will float on the pool and will be setting for authentic dances by Val Moore's troupe.

Assisting the party host-esses will be Mmcs. Clark Green, Romaine Akers, Harold Appleton, William Meyer, Lon Peck, John Harris, William Ferguson and Clifford

Lady Lions to Stage Annual Luau Saturday

Enthusiastic preparations are under way by members of West Long Beach Lady Lions for their annual Luau Alcha Party, set for Aug. 10. The lanal, patio and extensive gardens of the Hayden Bolander residence, 4345 Lipden Ave., will provide an enchanting tropical setting for this year's entertainment.

Softly lighted lanterns, flower leis, colorful Island costumes, native hula dancers swaying to bewitching melo-dies played by George Rocha and his Hawaiian Paradise Boys, will set the mood for an evening of relaxed pleasure and entertainment and, barring a possible flight to the Islands on standing commitments the week of the Luau, George Kainapau, famous television and recording artist and guest artist on the "Hawaii Calls" program, will be on hand to sing.

On the barbecue patio, chicken and suckling pig will roast over charcoal broilers: the Aloha Mui boat filled with crushed ice will be studded with tropical salads. On the table next to the boat will be found every conceivable kind of tropical fruittopped off with fresh pineapple and cocoanuts brought in for the Luau.

For those who prefer to go not quite so native there will be roast pork, chicken breasts, baked salmon, winesteamed albacore, savory rice, potato and elbow salad, served from long buffet tables by members of the club.

High and low tables, beautifully decorated with tileaves and hibiscus flowers, will provide eating comfort for the guests and members ... and throughout the evening dancing under the stars the haunting music of ukuleles and steel guitars promise to make this an occasion not soon to be forgotten.

Match Apron

Match your apron to your table linens when giving a luncheon or dinner party. The colorful combination will be a conversation piece.

All-Day Picnic

Democratic Women's Study Club will meet in Bixby Park Wednesday for their annual all-day picnic. Luncheon will he served at noon by the board members. Mrs. H. A. Beardsley is chairman of the luneaeon committee. Cards will be played in the afternoon

It can happen to you! Unless you take steps to avoid it you are almost certain to become trapped by the myriad details of daily living, by your responsibilities and what others expect of you.

You'll wonder what happened to your plans for self improvement and self expression. What happened to the courses you wanted to study. the things you meant to do? What happened to the books you planned to read, the exercises you meant to take, the skin care you were going to give yourself? What happened to those pounds you were determined to lose?

It is admirable to take our responsibilities seriously and to be helpful to others, but we also owe ourselves something. We have an obligation to our-selves to take care of our health, to develop our personalities, to improve our looks, to have some time alone, to delay all the processes of deterioration for as long as possible.

NOTHING so graces the world or a home as a healthy, charming, lovely looking woman. So in saving a little time for yourself you actually have more to give others. You have more in beauty and gracious-ness, in humor and self confidence. Even the most spar-kling personality can be dulled by fatigue and physical disability while a vibrant outlook builds health.

All women want to remain attractive and even to improve on what nature gave them. It is just that they get into a rut of hurry and responsibil-

Don't Let Details, Others Make You Forget Self

planning to begin tomorrow what they probably will never begin unless they start today! I think the fact that selfimprovement may seem very vague is another reason for procrastination. It is discouraging to start out unless you know what you can reasonably expect to accomplish in a given length of time, and unless you understand how to go about it. AS MOST OF YOU know I rin my Eight-Week Self-Im-provement Marathon each January for this reason, to give you an incentive and all the help you need. At this time each year I publish some of the letters from Marathon winners in order to encourage

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Flood of San Fernando have announced the engagement of their daughter, Joyce Sylvia, to Chester Richard Kyle, son of Lorena D. Kyle of La Mirada.

The betrothed pair met while both were students at Long Beach State College where she is a member of Delta Zeta Sorority, Kyle, a graduate of the University of Arizona taught at Compton Junior College while taking post graduate study at LBSC. He returned last fall from a year in Europe.

The wedding will take place Sept. 21 in Christ Chapel of First Baptist Church. They will leave Oct. I for Talara, Peru, where the prospective bridegroom has a position as construction engineer for International Petroleum Co. While attending State College, the bride-elect has made her home with her grandmother, Mrs. Ruby Thompson, 420 Dayman St.

The honorec will become the bride of David Leroy Dehlinger Jr., of Inglewood on Aug.

The hostess used a white lace cloth over white satin on the refreshment table, with a manzanita branch wrapped in blue as centerpiece. Extended from the branch were miniature kitchen utensils tied with blue ribbon.

Following the opening of gifts, buffet luncheon was served and guests, all Chi Omegas, embroidered their initials on a kitchen towel to be presented to the honoree.

Bidden from this area were Sally Dunbar of Downey and Jean Charvat and Alicia Poole of Long Beach.

Those of you who have one and he will do well and taken music lessons in youth know only too well that you make purchase of the instrument obligatory. His interest never liked to practice and may die and he may decide did it, at times, feeling the whole thing to be pointless. You could not see that you struggle against practice were one bit better after practice than before.

H you have been through this personally you'll have more patience with your young musician. If you merely have ambitions for him or her, this reluctance to practice in the face of your probable sacrifices to give him lessons will drive you to angry frustration.

You can make a child practice but it is better to offer compromises and encouragement which help to make It bearable. Cut the periods to 10 conscientions minutes three times a day. Ten minutes is not long, but multiplied by three this adds up to the usual half hour daily of practice which music teachers demand.

SIT BY THE child and praise his progress. Assure him that if he goes over each phrase for 10 minutes carefully that when he next sits down he'll note the improvement. If he actually can see the results of practice, spending the time becomes easier.

Sometimes it helps if children will practice what they know with other children, one playing one instrument, the second another. This makes it enjoyable and hig pleasures of the future when a certain level of accomplishment has been reached.

Not every child is going to he a musical virtuoso, But even if a child never reaches the point at which he can entertain himself or others with his music, he can develop appreciation so that he enjoys the art of others. The type of instrument chosen for the child may not be the one at which he will make the most progress. He may crave a flute or clarinet. but if there is a plane in the tamily he may be learn to play that. It is well, in such a case, to rent the instrument the child feels an that interest lasts.

When this happens you are making a fundamental mistake. What you have at home, possessions of all sorts, is very likely what you should have because it fits into your scheme of life and suits you personally. It you had what the other person had you soon would discover that it did not make you as happy as you thought. That is because it really did not belong to you as an individual with position, tastes, money, needs. It be-longed to that other person at least physically.

THERE'S THE RUB. It is possible to own things and still not possess them because they do not belong to you personally. Before one can accept anything comfortably or feel at ease with it, one's mind and spirit has to accept it. That is why, when you wish you had something the other person had that you also had an uncomfortable feeling even thinking about it. Somehow it just didn't belong. join with "Mom" in preparing their own back-to-school of home sewing, according to recent national survey. Dresses, skirts, draperies, curtains and children's clothes account for most of the sewing activity, with only 14 per cent of the output devoted to the man of the house, Sewing was found to be equally as prevalent in small rural areas as in the larger cities with the bulk of home sewers in the 25 to 45 year age group. The same pattern applied, the survey learned, to income groups where as much sewing activity was performed in homes where income was over $7.500 per year as compared with homes of $3,000 to $5,000 income per year.

"One of her young cousins recently learned of her dread and deliberately started the vacuum sweeper when Penny wasn't looking.

"Then he held her while she screamed. In a minute or two she had fainted, and my wife was panicky lest she had 'So we'd like to cure her of her phobia. Is it possible?"

YES, THIS dread of the vacuum sweeper is a "condi-tioned" fear. It is not an inborn or native terror. She learned it somewhere along the line, even though parents don't remember how or exactly when. Dr. John B. Watson found

RACHEL MORTON

Sigmund Spaeth, or "Sig", as we called him, was a music critic on the New York Evening Mail in New York City when I knew him. A graduate of Princeton and a violinist on the side, he was seen everywhere where music was to be heard. A big fellow, he had a very ingratiating manner. He loved his fellow-manunless there were more than three concert to cover in one evening! I met him when I was a student in New York City. He took me to many concerts and introduced me to the best in music. For years he has been one of the regular members of the Metropolitan Opera

The following article was recently written by him and it has intrigued me. I wonder "Music started with phythm. in the jungle and now, after developing inclody, harmony, tone color and form, it has come back to where it started.

"THE SO-CALLED rock 'n' roll is nothing but rhythm of the most savage type, without melodic, harmonic or verbal interest of any kind. Similarly, the experiments of John Cage, Edgar Varese and others have returned to the mere exploitation of percussive noises, with little or no formal significance and certainly no regard for the other elements generally considered essential to good music.

This curious circle of development, starting and linishing with the most primitive expressions of the human urge toward beauty, has been paralleled in the other arts.

"Painting, after arriving at the perfection of Raphael, Michelangelo and Rembrandt, returned to the formless, unskilled daubs that graced prehistoric caves, remarkable examples of instinctive self-expression, but certainly not models of craftsmanship.

"SCULPTURE has completed a similar cycle, with the Grecian masterpieces and the later inspirations of Rodin and others giving way to absurd masses of marble and clay.

"Literature passed over the peaks of Shakespeare and Milton to arrive at Gertrude Stein and James Joyce.

"There seems to be a law of nature in this inevitable curve toward universally recognizable beauty, followed by an equally inevitable descent to artistic illiteracy. In music it is perhaps more obvious than in any other art.

"THERE WAS enormous progress in the mere discovery of the octave by Pythagoras, the gradual addition of other intervals to complete the scale, the development of harmony from the crude "organ-um" of the Middle Ages to the complexities of Debussy and Richard Strauss, the claboration of instrumental effects to the overwhelming climaxes of Richard Wagner. "Then came the scarcely perceptible disintegration of all these factors, including the formal techniques of Mozart. Beethoven and Brahms, until we arrived once more at meaningless ugliness and the final primitive, physical stimulus of rhythm itself. That is the history of art, and particularly of music, in a nut-

Never Dark

By custom, museums throughout the country slack off during the summer months, mainly because of their locations in the heart of simmering metropolitan cities. However, the situation is quite the reverse with the Long Beach Museum of Art, since it is part of an all-year city that is also a heavily populated resort in the vacation months.

One of these is an Ip of Silvestre Revueltas compositions (E-3496, 12-inch, 33 1/3 rpms, RIAA curve) by the MGM Symphony Orchestra conducted by Carlos Surinach.

This is pretty raw sound that a listener of wide tastes might go for as sound, in contrast to the more commonly, accepted types of music.

The other record is of Sur-Inach's "Second Symphony" and of Joaquin Turina's "Rapsodia Sinfonica for Piano." (MGM, E-3510, 12-inch, 53 1/3 rpms, RIAA curve.)

The orchestra is the Philharmonia of Hamburg, conducted by Arthur Winograd. Sonia Bianca is the planist on the Turina composition.

One of the best recordings of plano heard in recent months is a Decca Gold Lahel (DL-9921, 12-inch, 33 1/3 rpms, RIAA curve) of Schu-mann music played by the Russian pianist Sviatoslav Richter.

Music, artist and recording, which was done in Prague, are superlative. Some of the thunderous passages are enough to jar a stylus out of the track.

The music includes the second of Schumann's "Four " nine of his "Forest Marches.

DOOR ALADDIN!-all he had was a lamp and a genii to get him whisshih! from wherever he was to wherever he wanted to go.

Think of the fun he missed en route.

To see the country and to see it cheaply is the purpose of American Youth Hostels, Inc., which has a thriving Long Beach branch of 50 members, aged

Moving spirit is red-headed, freckled, 23-year-old Ken Mayes, 3830 Pacific Ave., who when he isn't heading bicyclists, hikers and skiers, works as a salesman in the housewares department at May Co.

THE LONG BEACH group, which organized in World War II and sort of petered out in the Korean War, has been reactivated in the past year, according to Mayes, regional chairman. The local organization is under the Los Angeles Council headquartes, 332 S. Western Ave., Los Angeles. The Recreation Commission aids the local group in arranging for trips

To date the local Hostelers have gone to Griffith Park and the Planetarium, Joshua Tree National Forest, Huntington Library, Malibu, San Diego, Arrowhead, Mount Whitney, Santa Catalina Island, Yosemite and Mexico. They spent three wonderful days in Yosemite; they spent last Christmas near Ensenada, camping out under the stars, cooking over a beach camp fire. A few have joined other Hostelers on trips to Europe.

AMERICAN YOUTH Hostels boasts that it has members aged "4 to 94." Mayes explains that the local group will accept members from 12 years old up, but they must be able to "take it." And they must be convinced that adventure is more important than comfort. Most of the Long Beach members are of college age or thereabouts.

Local imembers must be able to hike five miles (sometimes they hike 15); they must be able to ride a bicycle 10 miles a day (sometimes they ride a bicycle 30 miles a day.) In Europe, Hostelers have to be practically indefatigable hikers, and sometimes they bicycle 100 miles a day. Mayes says.

"Our idea is not to achieve speed or endurance records but to see the country and have fun doing it without spending much money," explains the regional chairman. He says that often the local Hostelers go on trips and have a good time for $1.50 a day; sometimes the price climbs to $2.50 or $3.

Glass Is a Many Splen dored Thing

'Atomic energy (above) is used in research laboratory to determine impuri-ties in glass. Lead shielding glasses protect the workers from radiation.

long to Earth Woman.

For she's the gal who made him develop glass.

From the time ancient glass beads and the slit window made milady "ocoh" and "ahlh" — to modern women's retail "vote". modern women's retail "vote" for glass draperies, glass insu-lation, glass to cook in, glass to give TV sets good contrast — women have sparked the development of a material that boosts our standard of living, has helped unlock secrets of the universe, is helping man master atomic energy and explore outer

Actually, much of the world revolves around this female inspiration. When we tumble out of bed and find our way to the nearby mirror, we look into glass which throws back a reflection—for good or evil—de-pending on the success of last night's party. When we drive to the office or the market, we look through a wide wrap-around windshield that has made driving safer and lessened eye strain eye strain.

AT THE OFFICE many of us drink our coffee from a glass cup or do our work smoothly on a glass-topied desk that can't be marred by spills, scratches or burns. And what budding of-fice genius hasn't sought his inspiration - at one time or anby staring out the other — window?

This is the world of glass which the average person knows: a window, a mirror, a table top, a tumbler.

A special survey of the distaff

A special survey of the distant side would turn up other items such as a bright bracelet, a vase or the new light-as-air glass curtains and draperies which require little or no care at all and seem to wear forever.

Homeowners think of glass as insulation, in the form of double-glazed windows that help bie-glazed windows that heip maintain even temperatures the year 'round, as well as the fiber glass lining that is a weather buffer for house walls and roofing. The TV set was added later, but many of us don't realize that it was the dedon't realize that it was the development of a special gray glass, which gives our picture the sharp contrast of a good black and white photograph rather than a mediocre and indistinguishable tintype. Why the special TV glass? Women! Engineers know what side of the special TV glass: Wenten: En-gineers know what side of the marital loaf their livelihood is buttered on!

To the architect, engineer, builder, scientist and other professionals, the world of glass holds more splendor and meaning. It's basic to progress, an engineering material that can be as versatile and adaptable as the installation demands.

IF ALL THE predictions for glass become realities, cities visualized for the future will be gleaming glass marvels in myr-iad rainbow hues. Homes—are you listening, ladies? — will be cooking with glass and have windows which will automatic-ally control light and heat transmission by the very nature of their chequical composition. Buildings will be made of glass Buildings will be made of gaiss from foundation to finish, for glass can be as fragile as a spi-der's web or as hard and dur-

The amazing and most thought - provoking feature of man's oldest known material is that its source of supply is prac-tically inexhaustible. The in-gredients should continue in gredients snown continue in abundant supply lunger than the sagest seer might predict. And if the proof that archaeologists have discovered in their dig-

THO SAYS "Tugboat Annie" never will be replaced by "Helicopter Harriet"? In some instances right now, the versatile whirlybird does a better Job. When fog settles down to wave level, which often restricts surface craft, for instance, 'copters definitely could be used to better advantage. initely could be used to better advantage.

Who says so?

No one but the U.S. Navy. But because the Navy still is experimenting with 'copters as aerial towboats and tugs, officials are as silent as Hemingway's silent but long-suffering fisherman.

Figures on extensive tests are not available either from the U. S. Navy or whirlybird companies. Nor, as one 'copter official put it, "would we want to suggest that helicopters eventually will replace tugs."

J. C. Waugh, an official of the Vertol Aircraft Corp., said that, "In certain cases, though, and because of such factors as mobility, weather, etc., that would restrict surface craft," the 'copter could do an excellent job.

IN A SERIES of tests conducted at the Naval Amphibious Base at Chronado, the H21B 'copter amply demonstrated itself as an excellent flying tugboat, and in some ways, it surpassed the performance of its water-horne colleague.

Flying, hovering, and darting up and down above reefs and shallows that would prove to be barriers for tugs, the H21 swooped over a stranded amphibious landing craft, hovered over it, and dropped a tow cable in less time than it takes to tell of it.

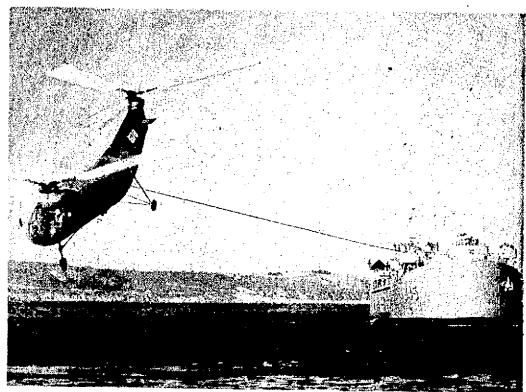

During the tests, the whirlybird maneuvered to shore and anchored a 200-foot pontoon causeway. It then hauled an LCU (Landing Craft, Utility) loaded with Cateroillar fractors on and off a surf-pounded beach. Later, it demonstrated its versatility and capability when it towed several other types of amphibious craft.

Of particular interest to the Navy was the total absence of cable snapping. A 'copter functions much like a halloon on a string. As a result, cable snapping because of sudden lautness—fairly common in ship-to-ship towing operations—is almost eliminated.

A versatile workhorse, the 'copter pulls a stalled LVT over a hump and into the /water. Loose sand made the job difficult, but the whirlybird came through fine.

Whirlybird here tilts to near-vertical angle. Unorthodox position is permitted by unique tandem-rotor design. Test showed the vessel handled better with the tow.

Hook unit has remote control mechanism so pilot can quickly disengage hook and reel in cable when towing assignment is completed.

Powerful helicopter pulls grounded LCU off Coronado beach. The vessel was loaded with tractors to make the assignment rougher.

HOLLYWOOD

She Got the Part

By Betty DeWeese

NE of Hollywood's most dramatic talent quests came to an end when Natalie Wood, 18year-old actress, won the role of modern fiction's most famous heroine in Warner Bros, forth-coming film production of "Marjorie Morningstar," ce novel by Herman Wouk.

For Miss Wood, award of the coveted part, amounced by Jack L. Warner, meant realization of more than a year-long ambition and striving against the odds of filmland's best-known star names.

For Milton Sperling, who will produce "Marjorie Morningstar," the casting meant the happy culmination of an international search for the ideal actress to portray a character of rare sensitivity and great emotional depth. And for author Herman Woulk it all meant seeing his favorite brain child come to the vorite brain child come to fullblown life.

MORE THAN a score of actresses were tested for Marjorie since Sperling and Warner Bros. acquired the Wouk novel as a screen property 18 months ago.

Throughout the extensive searching that spanned continents, youthful Natalie Wood remained a hopeful "long shot" mained a noperal riong snot-working day after day right on the Warner Bros. studio sound stages, Persistently she studied the Marjorie Morningstar character and with equal persever-ance continued to seek for herself one of the tests being awarded to others.

THE BIG HANDICAP against her was her youth. Natalic ob-served her 18th birthday only a few months ago.

Persistence finally won. Natarerastence many won. Mata-lie got her test. The result, ac-cording to Warner and Sperling, was a revelation. "It was in-spired," they said. "She was Mar-jorie Morningstar."

The picture, from Everett Freeman's screenplay of the Work novel, is now being filmed.

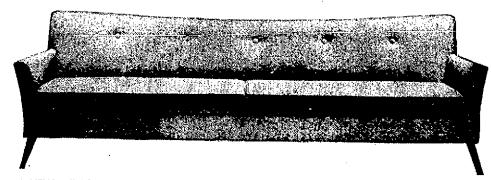

Natalie, who will play fiction's famous heroine for Warner Bros., displays some of her many scrapbooks.

BEACON STREET and San Pedro's skid row have never seen anything like it. Art has come to the streets of the Shanghai gesture, the Mickey Finn and breakfast muscatel. People are flocking there from San Marine Boyely Illie and Sun Marino, Beverly Hills and the exotic depths of Hollywood. They come to look at avant garde art at the Exodus Art

James, of Newport; Willie Suzuke, of Gardena; John Bauer, of Los Angeles, and Everts.

ONCE THE GALLERY was in shape they sent out opening notices and on opening day the artists stood around, anxiously watching the front stairs.

Said one artist, "We expected a few hundred people and we were sort of doubtful about them."

By closing time about 1,000 people had crowded into the gal-lery. They came in every type vehicle from jatopies to a Mercedes Benz and from every part of the Southland, Among their numbers were a countess, a handful of movie and television stars, several tycoons and hunstars, several tycoons and hundreds of people who simply wanted to look at good art.

"IT WAS A staggering experience," said one artist. "I would stand around staring and trying to be sociable and then after awhile it would be too much and I'd run neross street and hoist a drink. It didn't seem possible that a gallery in that neigh-

Today it isn't unusual for the gallery to attract 100 visitors on an ordinary day.

Federal agents threw a damper on the opening when they seized the galleries etching press. It wasn't a raid—simply a polite request for the press. Fr polite request for the press. For a small sum an artist or a non-artist can join the Exodus Gallery and take part in life classes, dance re-citals, lectures and the showing of artistic but unprofitable movies.

Said Everts, "This area needs a gallety like this. Los Angeles is a street a thousand miles long and one house wide. There is no real art or cultural center. We came here because the rent is low and there are plenty of empty buildings. It could grow into something great."

If ability, confidence and en-thusiasm is enough, the South-land has a new cultural center,

SAD STORY OF AN APOSTLE LOST

I gathered that the beginners' department of our Sunday School was studying the mis-sionary journeys of Paul, when 5-year-old Jean came home one Sunday noon and breathlessly told about the disciple's trip to "Thessamonica."

Each Sunday she brought Each Sunday she brought home the latest glowing reports on Paul. One morning he had gone to Corinth—the next, he had visited Macedonia, On another Sunday she reported that he had healed the Ephesians. One day, however, she came home from Sunday School crying almost uncontrollably. tried to guess what was wrong so I could comfort her.

luminate an entry hall defined from the living room by means of a free-standing mahogany guest closet that serves both for storage and partition. The living room, beyond, overlooks the terrace, the beautifully tended lawn and the field that leads to the well-kept stable. Three horses, a quacking family of ducks and the dogs turn the scene into one of real rural charm.

THE LIVING ROOM is surprisingly furnished in 18th Century pieces that reflect the graceful elegance of that era as exemplified in the styles of Duncan Phyle Shersten and Adme-can Phyfe, Sheraton and Adams. Toast striped damask upholsters the graceful Duncan Phyfe sofa. Bristol lamps with silk shades stand on either side. Near the sofa is a lounge chair covered in dubonnet and eggshel striped satin. Small pillows on the sofa match the fabric of the chair.

The fireplace (located opposite the sofa) is not of period styling, yet neither is so rustic as to stylike discord. It is outlined in red brick and framed in a wood-paneled unit that terminates in a mantel that spans across the top of the firebox and extends to the open bookcase on the right. Over the bookshelves hang a variety of tiny, gitframed period pictures. Over the fireplace is a watercolor done by

Hot, hazardous desert crossings over the early-day gold trail pioneered in Caachella-Imperial Vallevs were made in stagecaaches such as shown above.

Gold Road to Arizona

By Francis J. Johnston

OTORISTS FROM the Long Beach area, bent on a desert holiday and swiftly covering the long miles on tocovering the long miles on to-day's modern highways in com-fortable cars, seldom realize that they are following closely the route of one of the oldest and most important stage and freight routes in early South-ern California history. Few know of the story of the man, William D. Bradshaw, who pioneered the route or of the fate that was in store for him soon after opening what he in-

Gold was the lure that inspired the opening of the road, gold from the mines that were opened up by Herman Ehrenberg, a German mining engineer and adventurer. Gold strikes were made in 1862 near La Paz on the Arizona side of the Colorade River, and core retinue attendant to a gold strike came pouring across the desert from all over the West

TWO ROUTES were openboth tedious. One was over the old Butterfield stage line to the old Butterfield stage line to the south and up the Colorado from Yuma by riverboat. The other was over a government crossing of the Mojave Desert to the river, a hazardous journey.

In the early summer of 1862, Bradshaw realized that profits were to be made from a shorter and better route. He was a frontiersman of the breed of early California adventurers and late of Fremont's California Battalion. He lined up eight other men and set out to find a better way to La Paz.

Acting on directions from Acting on directions from Chief Cabezon of the desert tribe of Cahuilla Indians (the town of Cabazon takes its name from the Chief), Bradshaw and his productions of the chief of the control of the chief of the chi from the Chief), Bradshaw and his party reached the Indian village of Toro above the Salton Sea. There they obtained a map from a Maricona Indian which marked all the water holes to the river by way of Salton Wash. They soon reached the Colorado and Bradshaw established a ferry across the river to La Paz, the ferry and road soon to bear his name.

A STAGE LINE was put in operation from Los Angeles to La Paz and stations were established at ranches near the present towns of Beaumont, Banning and Whitewater and at Dos Palmas, an important easis of the rest of the rest of the rest of the rest of the set of the set of the rest of the set of the set of the rest of about five miles due east of the north end of Salton Sea. Wells Fargo held a franchise in the 1870s and the U. S. mails were carried over the road from 1866 to 1876.

Bradshaw was not to live long to enjoy the fruits of his pio-neering. He was killed in a gunfight at his own ferry a few gunfight at his own ferry a few months after opening up the road. #### GLASS

duction of flat glass could not rival European methods and production until the latter part of the last century. However, it was left to the present century to refine techniques and developments and introduce some new ideas that have revolutionized the world.

IF LIPPERSHEY or Galileo who gave us our first telescopes, could inspect the mammoth models in today's observatories, they might really feel that they were in another world.

The early men of science might have considered themthought as pluming a trip to the moon or making the sun the source of power that cooks our food. But many far-reaching and far-sighted modern scientists place both in the line of logical reasoning and occur-

The solar furnace, which now is being used in research to find the heat-resistant materials needed to break through the "thermal barrier," may some-day provide the means for putting the energy of the sun to work in Main Street kitchens. And guess who cun't wait for the atomic energy and aircraft fields, the versatility of glass becomes more evident. Researchers and plant workers in atomic projects are protected from high-level gamma radia-tion by thick windows of glass. When the Alomic Energy Commission's Savannah River Project was constructed, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. supplied a special non-browning glass for ob-servers' windows which weighed more than 20,000 pounds each.

DURING World War II, glass was at home on land, sea and air — used in radar screens, control towers, landing strips and for important bullet-resisting windshields for the bombers that invaded enemy shores. Today, jet fighters, flying at su-personic speeds, are glazed with windshields of laminated glass with a special electro-conducting coating that prevents leing and fogging and allows clear vision. A similar glass is going to sea on huge super carriers.

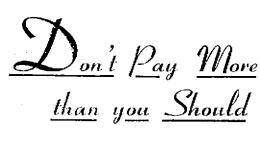

Perhaps more than in any other field, the weight of glass and its tremendous potential for average Americans is in the building field. Milady wants a more comfortable home? The architect, builder and construction man are giving it to her-- with glass.

The story of the window has grown. From narrow slits in the Cape Cod bungalow, a modern housewife turns one of her walls to glass with sliding doors that make the outdoors an important and integral part of living. The owner of a small or large retail Business feels he doesn't need the telents of P. T. Barnum when he has the open vision talents of glass to display mer-chandise and tempt an interested public.

TODAY'S SKYSCRAPER uses timeless glass to bridge the gap between past, present and the days to come. Buildings that reach for the sky are being sheathed with glass. Architects are finding that ceramic enameled glass is giving the color they have always sought to their ageless designs. And of course, most important, the course. glass is durable and economical. It will withstand impact, resist weathering and clean easily. Color moves up from its natural setting to add jewel-like beauty to the school, the museum, the shopping center and the skyseraper.

Glass is indeed a many splen-edored tring' that promises a much brighter and rosier future.

I Was World's Fastest Gunman

Al Jennings, onetime train robber, holds copy of pardon issued 50 years ago by President Theodore Roosevelt.

By Jack Lefler

(Editor's Note; He's amiable little man of 93, kind to animals and critical of TV westerns. You wouldn't think he was once a notorious gunfighter, train robber and frontier scourge-that is, until he tries to recall (unsuccessfully) how many men he's killed.)

THE LAST OUTLAW fondly stroked the barrel of a shiny old six-shooter.

Squinting from beneath the low-pulled brim of his hat, Al Jennings, one-time badman of the Old West, said;

"There was no faster gunman in the world than me."

Jennings, at 93 as spry and cocky as a banty rooster, was sitting on the tree-shaded porch of his white frame house on a quiet street in Tarzana.

A little fellow-barely 5 feet tall—he seemed anything but the notorious gunfighter and train robber of a bygone era.

STARING at a snoring cat that had edged him from his fa-vorite chair, Jennings shuttled his thoughts between the wild days of his youth and the television westerns which he studies with considerable contempt,
"Most of 'em are terrible," he snorted. "I watch 'em just to

"Who ever heard of a real cowboy running around with a silk tablecloth around his neck?

"And fighting all over a room like they do is silly. I never saw but a few fist fights in my life. In the old days the fights never lasted longer than a couple of blows. That's all it took to settle

And as for fanning a gun, in which the gumnan uses the palm of his left hand to flip the hammer for supposedly shooting:

"Only a damn fool would ever

JENNINGS STOOD UP, slid his six-shooter down the side of his right leg and snapped it into his right leg and snapped it and firing position with surprising agility.

"See," he said, "the sight's filed off so it won't snag in the holster and the trigger's removed so you can fire real fast by working the hammer with your thumb."

Jennings is mighty proud of his shooting prowess. He re-

"When I was 14 years old I ran into Jesse and Frank James in Dodge City. I had a .45 strapped on each side of me, "Jesse asked me if I could shoot, and I said, 'Purty fair,'

"Jesse said he'd bet me 50 cents he and his brother could outshoot me. We put a bottle on a rock and Jesse and Frank both missed. I hit it the first shot.

Al was born in Tazewell County, Va., the son of a preacher - lawyer - musician When he was 11 years old, Al says, he ran away from home in a rage because his father killed his pet squirrel for stealing corn.

"I COULD ALWAYS kill a man without balting an eye but I couldn't stand to see an aniharmed.

The pint-sized boy made his way to Cincinnati and then was swept westward in the flood tide of migration to a new frontier, He saw at close range men like the James brothers, the Dalton brothers, Bat Masterson, Doc Holiday, Wyatt Earp.

"I was standing around in Dodge City one day," he remem-bered, "Bat Masterson and some of his boys were hanging around. A man wearing a stovepipe hat and a long black coat got off the west. I learned later.

"Bat pulled his gun and said,
"Ill plug that hat.' He fired and the actor fell dead. 'Guess I shot
too low,' Bat said,"

At Trinidad, Colo., Al was taken in by Jim Stanton, who ran a ranch for its owner, an English lord.

STANTON was "the greatest gunfighter who ever lived," said Al, obviously an apt pupil. The lad also read every book in the ranch's extensive library, includ-ing law books.

"My brother Ed, who was a lawyer, came out west. He made me leave the ranch and become a lawyer."

Jennings was admitted to the bar in Comanche County, Kan., in 1884. He moved to El Reno, Okla., and was elected county attorney in 1892.

"I had quite a reputation as a gunfighter and that put me over," he said, adding: "I killed quite a bunch of fel-lows but that's because they were always hunting me up to kill me so they could make a big name for themselves."

JUST HOW MANY MEN fell before Jennings' gun is lost in the haze of long-gone years. He said he just can't recall exactly.

After two years in office, Jonnings went to Woodward, Okla., to join his brother. There Ed. was shot to death after winning a court case.

"I swore vengeance if Jack Love and Temple Houston were acquitted of the killing." Jennings said.

"The jury turned them loose, and I rode into Creek Indian country after them.

"I came on Love and Houston and two other men on the porch of a little store. They opened fire and hit me in the ankle. I shot three of them dead quicker than I can tell about it. I shot the fourth one but he didn't dic.

'THAT STARTED me as an outlaw,"

Al rounded up a band of robbers and they started holding up trains and banks. He soon became the most notorious bad-man in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas.

"Guess we robbed 15 or 20 trains," Jennings drawled in rec-

"I robbed several trains in Texas but they didn't have any money on them so we had to take up a collection from the passengers—just like in church. Al and his gang got $90,000 on their last train robbery.

"I ran into three old friends in one of the coaches. They recognized me even though I had a mask on and I stopped and passed the time of day. At my trial they testified the head robber was 6 feet tall but I got convicted anyway."

Jennings was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Columbus, Ohio, federal penitentiary. He was a model prisoner and be-came secretary to the warden. President William McKinley pa-roled him after five years and President Theodore Roosevelt pardoned him and restored his civil rights in 1907.

Jennings came out of prison a repentant and ambitious man. He went oack to Oklahoma and resumed the practice of law. He ran for governor in 1914.

"I would have made it but I was counted out," he said.

NCE ITS press agents boasted that it was "the Oberammergau of America" -and San Gabriel's famed Mission Play was, indeed, a spectacular production. Today its actors no longer tread the tacular production. Today its actors no longer tread the hoards of the beautiful theater that was built to house the play; today the Mission Playhouse is the City of San Gabriel's Civic Auditorium.

sion Play, as it was more popu-larly known. The production was written and produced by the late John Steven McGroarty in San Gabriel in an old building beside the mainline railroad and passing trains at times would drawn out the actors' voices. Then the new playhouse was built.

No longer do you hear the feet of Father Serra as por-trayed in the old Mission Play. Today the staccato tapping of high heels breaks the silence as members attend adult groups in the Civic Auditorium.

Today, the auditorium features travelogues, operas, phil-harmonic concerts, circuses and conventions. When the play-house was acquired in 1915 by vote of the people of the "town with a mission," it was hoped that for a limited season each year the playhouse again would bring this poignant and beautiful story of California to life. However, to date this has not been realized.

YEARS AGO, the play was produced at an approximate cost of $3,500 per week. In 1950, according to Miss Margaret McKale, nicce of McGrourty, when an attempt was made to present the play the cost was present the play, the cost was $12,500 per week.

The play was a dramalization of the early history of Califor-nia with emphasis on the good work of Father Junipero Serra.

The Mission Play has the world's record for any drama of either ancient or modern of either theleft of instacts to be given in one place. The 3,158 performance sellpsed the Passion Play of Oberanunergau. It was from the Obstanmergat, it was from the latter drama, while on a trip in Europe, that the late Frank Miller, founder of the Mission Inn at Riverside, conceived the idea of a historical play on California. It was his dream to pro-duce the play during the Christduce the play during the Christ-mas season at the Mission Inn. However, upon completion of the script by McGroarty, it was found that a far larger place would have to be selected. It was not accidental that San Gabriel was chosen. The Arch-angel of Missions nearby is rich in memories and a natural bein memories and a natural lo-cale for the very drama portrayed.

AFTER 15 YEARS in the old structure, a larger playhouse was needed and a three and was needed and a direct and one-half-acre site, once part of the mission domain, was chosen. Patriotic Californians, through the financial resources, and business abilities of William E. Hampton and E. K. Hoak, raised a million dollars. Arthur B. Benton modeled the new playhouse after the San An-tonio de Padua Mission. #### Pageant of Yesteryear

The playhouse was remodeled in 1946. The seating arrangement is staggered so that every patron has a full view of the stage at all times.

It is estimated that more than two million persons witnessed this magnificent old Cali-fornia pageant. The Mission Play was more than a pictur-esque dramatization of California's early history — it taught a lesson of unswerving faith.

It always was McGroarty's wish that the Mission Play, his most supreme and successful effort in writing, should pass in heritage to the Franciscan Fathers. The text is now carefully preserved in the archives of old Mission Santa Barbara,

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

TEAR MISS RULE: Could you give information about the French name DuBOIS?-C. J. D., Long Beach,

C. J. D.: The name DuBOIS was one of the oldest and most honored in France as well as in early America. "Bois" meant "forest" and the surname Du-Bois describes "land owners hav-ing a forest on their property." The DuBois lineage achieved a coat of arms in the northwest French province of Artois, Their French province of Artois. Their shield was silver with two black hammers on it. In the ancestry was the French Cardinal Guillaume DuBois (1656-1723), U. S. Sen. Fred DuBois (born 1851) secured the admission of the State of Idaho to the Union.

WALTERS.-Mrs. D. W., Long

WALTERS.—Mrs. D. W., Long Beach.
O. J. AND D. W.: The Ger-man surname WALTHER has been Americanized by some de-scendants to agree in spelling with the English-origin sur-names Walter and Walters. The source of these names was the names Walter and Walters. The source of these names was the given-name Walter, which meant "ruler of the multitude." Walther became a registered family appellation in Germany in the 1200s. The Walther coat of arms, granted the lineage by the rulers of Saxony in 1741, had a golden lion holding a silver rose in its paw. This emblem was on a blue shield. The English Walter family are listed in the Domesday Book of 1066. The spelling Walters indicated "son of Walter."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell what you can of the sur-name BEHEN or BEHAN. My ancestors came from Ireland before 1800.—MRS. F. S., Long

. S.: The remote Gaelie F. S.: The remote Gaelic Irish ancestor of the Behen or Behan family was called "Reacain," meaning "little bee." This was a child's baptismal name, perhaps alluding to qualities such as "busy as a bee," etc. Descendants of Beacain assumed the support Officerain Descendants of Beacoin assumed the surname O'Beacain. This was eventually respelled O'Behan, then Behan. Some of the progeny condersed the name to Bean. The family were notable as prolific writers in the Middle Ages. Their home was originally in Offaly, to the west of Dublin in central Ireland, but their descendants have now spread descendants have now spread over most of south Ireland and

SUZIE WONG ... A YUM-YUM GIRL

"The World of Suzie Wong," by Richard Mason (World, $3.95): A great deal about life in Hong Kong with emphasis on a place of assignation—the Nam Kok Hotel and its pretty Chinese girls and sailor patrons-make up the third novel for Mr. Mason, native of England and avid traveler. The reader will come to love Suzie, a "yum-yum" girl who follows her illicit profession so that her small boy will grow up a student. How she finds true love in a young British artist, overcoming great obstacles of ill health, imprisonment and racial frejudice, occupies the plot. As Suzie makes her way through a very sordid way of life she creates a world of her own, thereby keeping her beautiful spirit untouched.

By Bertha Blanchard

YOUR mail box can be attractive as well as useful. An unusual mail box adds to the beauty and interest of a street and gives an air of distinction to the house to which it belongs.

In the suburbs of California cities, the estates and the houses, that are set back from the street, have mail boxes. There are two kinds of mail boxes in front of these homes: the conventional oblong galvanized iron type, and the individualized artistic type, upded dividualized artistic type, made of wood and metal.

Wooden mail boxes can be made by some member of the family or by a local carpenter. It is interesting to have the mail box a replica of the home to which it belongs, but many other ideas will present them. other ideas will present them-selves to the home handyman.

Scars of the Mojave

By Ada M. Young

MOODS OF THE Mojave are many and capricious, and only the intrepid dare penetrate desert's fastnesses. But many historic sites and scenes of nature's cataclysms are not far from the main highways and hold high interest for the casual descrit-goer. ~

One such is the Amboy Crater, a 200-foot black volcanic erater that has stood for centuries in the wastes. It is situated about 1% miles south of the town of Amboy on U. S. Highway 66, between Barstow and Needles. The road to the crater is sandy and hazardous and must be negotiated carefully, much of the way through lava beds, sharp-edged and resembling broken chunks of asphalt. Sand bogs and lava pose a threat to cars and tires. The road ents a half mile from The road ends a half mile from the crater and a steep trail leads to the top.

THE UPREAVALS which created Amboy Crater and Poe's Crater, 42 miles to the west, may have had much to do with the formation of mineral, lime and marble deposits which man later was to harvest. It is believed the Poe disturbance pre-vented the Mojave River from flowing through the area now the site of Amboy.

Amboy, population 350 and elevation 614 feet, was founded as a community in 1900 when a milt was built to produce gypsum products. Salt also was

One of Amboy's interesting citizens is "Idaho Bill" Bolen, who takes his winters in California. In 1904, when he was living in Minnesota, doctors gave Bolen six months to live. Today, in Amboy, he stands a straight 6-feet-2 and is a healthy, tanned 75-year-old man. His motto, he says, is: "Idaho Bill from over the hill, who never worked and never will." But he is a mine owner, and mine owners work— although Bill works at lead, silver though Bill works at lead, silver and zine mining in the northern mine in summer and winters in California while his partners work the mine.

BOLEN HAS collected a rich store of desert lore, including data on mineral and other deposits, among them a mountain of iron ore in Lucerne Valley which is being tapped by the same Idaho men.

Twelve miles east of Amboy on Hwy, 66, through Cadiz and over a stretch of sand and rock trail, is a mountain of marble. The cornerstone of the Los Angeles City Hall was cut from this quarry. Marble is no longer taken here commercially, but the area is a rich field for rock hounds and amaleur fossil hunters. Here are refect specialization. ers. Here are prefect specimens of trilohites reputed to be 550 million years old. They have million years old. They have been extinct since the carboniferous age. These vertebracic fossils of the Cambrian period resemble a sow bug. Today's living likeness is the horseshoc crab. Careful digging in the shale at the end of the path left of the quarry diggings will wight fine examples. Even a leave yield fine examples. Even a lacy plant fossil is to be found, thought to be a form of algea.

ON OUR first adventure as fossil hunters, we were not too successful until four young men doing student research for San Diego State College took their time to help us.

We were awed to find specimens so ancient. We had an hour or more of pleasant, and interesting work until a sand-storm drove us out of the area.

It is well to carry a shovel, a this well to carry a shovel, a rope and always plenty of water when on a desert venture. Stay on the traveled route unless local information can be obtained, and then proceed with caution. Desert exploring can he lots of fun but it can be dangerous as well.

country is one of the few areas country is one of the few areas where amaryllis can be grown outdoors during the winter months. This plant enjoys a very long planting period, stretching from October through the spring months. In other parts of the United States amaryllis are restricted to con-servatories, green houses or other sheltered locations.

THE BULBS ARE quite large and a single amaryllis may weigh several hundred times as weigh several numered times as much as an anemone or rannin-culus. Considerable quantities of food are stored in the bulb and the nutrients are utilized until the feeding roots become thoroughly established.

If the bulbs are started now they should flower during the late spring months. Planted somewhat later they will continue their blooming season throughout the summer. A very wild range of colors is earlichted. wide range of colors is available including shades of scarlet, dark red, salmon, rose, orange and pure white. Striped varieties may also be started now.

DURING THE GROWING season the plants require liberal feeding. It would be well to feeding. It would be well to enrich the soil before planting. Then when the buds start to show, a dosage of commercial plant food should be applied. This should be repeated once every three weeks until the flowers open. Plants grown in pots may be fed with liquid foods.

Drainage is an important factor in growing this plant. Dur-ing the winter months especialing the winter months especially, he excess of moisture must be guarded against. For pot culture place a curved section of pottery over the drainage hole and line the bottom of the container with drainage material. This will improve aeration and prevent dirt from clogging up the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot.

THE BLOOMS WILL prove extremely valuable for floral decoration indoors. It is perhaps not well known but the flowers will last for quite some time if the pollen is removed before bringing the flowers indoors. Cut the stems about four inches above the surface.

GARDEN TIPS for the week , Dichondra can be seeded now as the seed germinates most rapidly during warm weather. This plant forms a tough sod and re-quires practically no mowing; possibly a few times each year. The leaves have the appearance of clover. Vacant garden spots can be lighted up by planting Martha Washington pelargoniums. Colors include shades of white, salmon, pink, lavender, crimson and or-ange. These plants thrive in the Long Beach area, flower on and off throughout the entire year.

Dwarf Citrus Trees Are Big News

By David I. Gilfillan

Dwarf Washington navel orange tree is one of the many true dwarf citrus varieties that enjoy wide popularity.

WARF CITRUS trees, since their comparatively recent introduction, have created wide-spread interest among garden-ers, filling a definite need in home gardens because of their productivity and ornamental value.

These trees make attractive ornamentals which can be grown in all types of containers, and in all types of containers, and are ideal for the home owner with a small lot. The trees can be planted as close as eight feet apart compared to the 20 feet required by regular fruit trees. Tests have shown that these dwarf trees will bear up to 70 per cent as much fruit as the large trees using only one-fourth the space. the space.

DELIGHTFUL fragrance and delicious fruit are produced by the dwarfs, and home garden-ers are using them on the porch, in the patio and in the small garden. Most popular varieties of the true dwarfs include the Robertson Navel, Washington Navel and Valencia oranges; Eureka and Neyer lemons; Marsh's seedless grapefruit; Kinnow mandarin; Mexican and Rangpur limes and Negami kum-

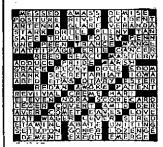

Whether planted in containers or in the garden, be sure the trees have perfect drainage and full sun. A good growing me-dium for containers is four parts dium for containers is four parts good loam, one part leaf mold, one part peat moss and one part sand. This same mixture can be placed around the root ball when planting in the garden. Avoid the use of all types of fertilizers at time of planting. Start your regular feeding program about four months after planting using the special Cltrus Food according to directions on the container.

IF VOU HAVE a very heavy soil in your garden, provide proper drainage by digging a hole 18 inches deeper than the planting hole alongside the hole where the tree is being set and place gravel in the deeper hole. In growing ornamentals in Regular spraying of the trees with a good combination spray, one that will control both insects and disease in one opera-tion, will keep the trees clean and healthy. However, be sure not to spray while the flowers are on the tree as this will kill fruit-set. Spray just before the flower buds open up and again when the fruit is about the size of a small pea.

On the northern bank of the river, scores of additional fish-ermen stand shoulder to shoul-der to cast from the shore to catch the silver horde on its way upstream.

The kings average about 20 pounds at spawning time but some twice that size are hauled in during the run which comes off, with a varying schedule of a few days, year after year.

NOT LONG AGO a friend fold us about an album that pleased us very much. First, because it's such a good idea—and secondly, because it's always nice to hear that some of the suggestions we make are really being put to use.

Our friend has a young daughter just turned seven, "The last year was a very exciting and busy one for Kim," she writes, busy one for Kim," she writes, "and I decided to do something about setting it down between covers." No, she didn't pen a book—she just collected all the pictures of Kim she had snapped during the year and assembled them in proper sequence in a large allum. large album.

Entitled "Now We Are Six," the album includes the high spots of those very important twelve months in a child's life. There are all the wonderful new experiences of going to school for the first time—new friends and playmates—the school bus the playground and after-school activities. And as if that weren't emough, there are pictures to testify that Kim also had a brand-new set of front teeth and a very pert new Dutch-boy bob!

THEN, TOO, there are snapshots of Kim singing in the choir, practicing her ballet steps, making her dramatic debut in the school pageant, "going steady" with her favorite beau Skippy (aged seven)—all inno-vations that occurred during the past year. And finally, the album closes with Kim's delight in retelving as a birthday present what she had been asking for all year long—"a new baby kit-ten named Christopher Cross— Chris Cross for short"!

Electric cooking keeps more juice in meat-because it's flameless!

When you cook electrically there's no draft of constantly changing air because there's no flame. (Flame, you see, needs air to breathe. So a flame-heated oven constantly inhales dry air, exhales moist air -- literally cooks meat in a hot draft that evaporates good juices.) In an electric oven there's no draft of dry air, You cook with moist heat. As a result, more juice stays in the meat... and the meat fastes better.

Electric cooking is far cooler, too. As much as 16° cooler. The reason is obvious: electric cooking puts the heat directly into the food, not into the room. Electric cooking is cleaner, too, because it's flameless. There are no hy-products of combustion to dirty walls and darken your bright pans. Truly, it's the only modern enay to cook. Why not see your appliance dealer for a demonstration of the new electric ranges?

LIVE BETTER - ELECTRICALLY!

fild you know? Flameless electric cooking costs about $1.50 a month for a family of 4.

Goat that Thinks She's a Lap Pet

By Eleanor A. Price

ALTHOUGH Mrs. Ruth Schriefer, 12441 E. Carson St., is a breeder of show quality German shepherd dogs, she also takes a fancy to other pets, and for some time she had a yen for an Alpine goat, a pretty deerlike animal with stripes down the face and a very alert expression.

Not long ago she got her goat as a birthday gift from her husband, Roy, and appropriately named the kid Bertha.

Whether Mrs. Schriefer will will not "show" Bertha as she does numerous dogs remains to be seen, but it is true that the importance of the show ring at county fairs and expositions is a contributing factor to the continuing popularity of various species of goats. The spirited competition among breeders for honors is often as intense as that among breeders of pure-bred dogs and eats, and, as with bred dogs and cats, and, as with these latter animals, encourages the development of improved animals. The most recent com-petition of various runnimants was held at the Southern Cali-fornia Exposition and County Fair at Del Mar.

HOW TO Apply Gypsum Board And Battens to Wall

1. TRY THIS simple step to hide unsightly seams and at same time avoid taping joints, plastering over nailheads. After nailing up standard 4-foot-wide sheets of wallboard to every other stud, nail ½x3-inch battens through to each stud. This laps and seals joints where the wallboard goes together, also places a strip down the center of each sheet for added strength, improved design. Be sure that you paint your new wall and finish the ½-inch battens before you nail them up. the Z-inch battens before you nail them up.

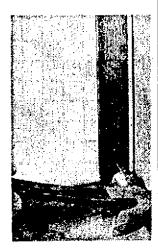

studs, staggering nails and keeping them as close to joint as possible. Let last hammer blow dimple the material slightly. This 'countersinks' nailheads below surface. You don't have to tape the joints—the 14-inch battens will cover them. Paint wall before nailing on battens.

2. Nail the wallboard to

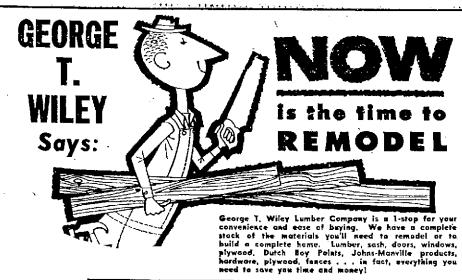

3. Use two battens at corners, butt-jointing just edges of them so both will be same width. Horizontal base and celling molding (½x3 inches) is nailed on first. Vertical batters go between base and celling molding. Well the welling with the control of the ing molding. Nail the strips to each stud — 24 inches on center. You may have to tochail in "false" studs if others are on standard 16-inch center.

4. A finished corner looks like this. Because spacing of horizontal base and ceiling nonzoniai uase and ceiling molding won't slow, you can lap one edge of one strip over the face of another. If you batten just one wall, finish corner with single hatten. It file flush in corner between fits flush in corner between floor, ceiling strips.

HAROLD SOLOMON Magnificent!

GATHER ROUND, ye lovers of steaks grand and glorious, and be informed about three fabulous beauties served at Hoefly's, 4911 E. 2nd St., Belmont Shore.

These tremendous charcoalbroiled steaks are the 22-ounce Chateaubriand, the 28-ounce double New York and the 40ounce double porterhouse, Each steak serves two persons and they are so large, so thick and juicy (the finest beef available. of course) that many patrons exclaim: "Gadzooks, I've never seen so much meat in all my

The steaks are rolled to the guests' table on a cart and then skillfully carved by host Harold Solomon, The display is quite magnificent. Each steak is on a plank, surrounded by a border of whipped potatoes and topped with golden fried onion rings and gigantic fresh mushrooms. Also on the plank are asparagus and a vegetable du jour. Each guest also receives Hoefly's famed tossed green salad, a large baked potato and choice of beverage. The prices (for two persons) are quite reasonable, considering what is received: The Chatcaubriand (all filet, no fat or bone) is $11.75 and the double New York and double Porterhouse are $10.75.

Other excellent dinners at Hoefly's are from $2.25 (filet of rex sole) on up. For example, eight superb sea food dinners, $2.50 each, include entree, soup du jour, the famed tossed salad, choice of potato, pumpernickel and sourdough breads, vegetables, choice of dessert and choice of beverage. Two special $4 dinners are the defectable medallions of filet (the meat is sauteed in butter with thin onlons, burgardy and leaves in the control of the second sec burgundy and lemon juice), and the charcoal-broiled tournedos of beef tenderloin. The latter consists of two pieces of beef served on grilled tomatoes with mushroom souce.

Hoefly's also features a scrumptious Ceasar's salad Open 11:30 A.M. 10 F P.M. Closed Sun.

August 4, 1957 REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

WITH DAUGHTER LEISA, Mrs. Rita Steeves bravely planned for the future after her missing Air Force husband was declared "dead,"

I'll always remember...

CONSTANT REMINDER was David's picture

In this exclusive PARADE interview, Mrs. Rita Steeves, whose Air Force husband miraculously came back "from the dead" in one of this year's most inspiring stories, has a message for the women of America.

"Twe been supremely happy three times in my life when I got married, when I had Leisa, my daughter, and then, a month ago — as the happiest moment of all — when David came back from the dead."

These are the words of Mrs. Rita Steeves of Fairfield, Conn., whose husband, Air Force pilot David Steeves had disappeared over California's High Sierras on a routine jet-flight. The Air Force listed him as officially dead. And for 54 days Mrs. Steeves thought she was a widow — until July 1 when her husband telephoned from a forest ranger's cabin that he was alive and safe.

What sustained Mrs. Steeyes through her awesome ordeal? What did she learn from it to guide all persons confronted with a sudden, tragic loss?

"You face reality. It does you no good to sit and worry. All the crying in the world won't bring him back. At first I waited, while the Air Force searched for David for two weeks. When finally they sent me his death certificate, I knew it would do me no good to be self pitying, or bitter. There is inevitably tomorrow to think about. And I determined if I am going to be alone, I must do something. I had to have a livelihood, so I went back to school at the University of Bridgeport to learn to be a teacher.

"I had my 15-month-old daughter, and myself to support. I knew I must now be the head of my family—families, I know, can fall apart when there's a death. I resolved this would not happen to us. My new studies would keep my mind on new things. Most of all, I was looking forward to something. My mother, who lost my father when I was a baby, brought me up to be prepared for whatever life has to offer—and now, believing David to be dead. I was not only prepared, but was planning the future of my daughter and myself so we would be secure.

"I don't believe any wife in my situation gives up hope that her husband is still alive, although told he is dead. But you must not spend full time on that hope — you can build nothing on it.

"Now, with David back, my future is changed again. But I have learned that death can be bearable, that it does not have to end life, for you, the living—if you put your mind on the future, not the past."

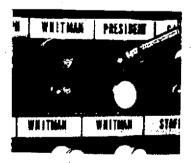

LT. STEEVES sported fine beard after his rescue.

WHAT HAPPENED to the estimated $80,000,000 loot Benito Mussolini had with him and lost — along with his life — when he tried to skip out of Italy in 1945? Today an exclusive article by Melton Davis (pp. 8-9) gives you the amazing inside story of the lost treasure. Davis, author of the book All Rome Trembled, is an American now living in Italy and an expert on Italian affairs.

TODAY'S COVER is a typical "gag" pose by one of the world's great gagsters, Bob Hope. He arranged it for PARADE'S Lloyd Shearer between interviewing sessions for the story on pp. 10-13. Since he was making a picture called Paris Holiday, Hope happily donned a Paris-type artist's outfit for the occasion. You may find more artistic viewing in the ladies at his side, actresses Martha Hyer (1.) and Anita Ekberg.

"WHO 1S this Whitman and who elected him?" writes Mrs. Alice Clark, Chicago, after seeing our June 7 photo (below) of the White House switchboard. Well, for Mrs. Clark and others who asked, "Whitman" is Mrs. Ann C. Whitman, Ike's personal secretary. Her name is up there three times because she has three phones and, along with her other work, makes or takes some 100 calls a day.

Headache?

Bufferin®! acts twice as fast as aspirin

- Medical science knows that a pain reliever must go through the stomach and into the blood stream to relieve pain.
- Bufferin combines aspirin with two antacid ingredients. These speed the pain reliever out of the stomach and into the blood stream twice as fast as aspirin.
   So...
- Bufferin acts twice as fast as aspirin to relieve pain. And it won't upset your stomach the way aspirin often does.

Won't upset your stomach as aspirin often does

Ask your own doctor about Bufferin's remarkable ability to relieve pain and its freedom from harmful ingredients.

- 9 years of continuous medical research in hospitals and clinics have established Bufferin's effectiveness and speed of action. Bufferin has met the same rigid tests a doctor demands of medicines used in his own practice.
- So, for effective, fast relief from headaches, discomfort of colds, neuralgia and ordinary muscular aches and pains use the modern pain reliever... Bufferin.

by PAUL STEINER

Parrot: Owned by a Texas fillingstation attendant, he waits until a car drives in, then shrieks, "Fill 'er up," before the startled motorist can say a word.

Monkey: A New York housewife has trained her pet to wash dishes, while she dries them.

Cow: Property of a farmer in Hartwell, Ga., she moos five times at 5 a.m., seven times at 7 a.m.

Boa constrictor: It got a Soviet circus in trouble with the commissars, who said the snake act was a flop. The snake refused to wrestle with its charmer, went to sleep instead.

Greyhound: He outsmarted the electric rabbit on a London dog track. Switching directions in the middle of the race, he caught the hare head-on.

Goats: Twenty-three of them were given a "dishonorable discharge" by the U.S. Navy. Hired to crop grass at a fuel depot in Maine, they refused to graze in bad weather and habitually went AWOL.

Sled dog: In Santa Rosa, Calif., he pulled 2,100 lbs. of freight 25 feet, claimed a new world's record.

Spider: It spun a web over a hole in the porch screen of a woman's home in Atlanta, Ga., kept out insects until the screen was repaired.

of the flock yanks the switch cord, turns off the light.

Mockingbird: Nursed back to health by a North Carolina couple after a fall from its nest, it now pinch-hits for an alarm clock by singing every morning at 5 o'clock.

Monkey: Bauished to a farm after harassed neighbors in Memphis, Tenn., reported her as a delinquent, she made good. Now she herds the farmer's cows, rounds up stray calves.

Cat: Parachuted from a bomber into the Malayan jungle, it zeroed in on the target — hordes of rats that were menacing food supplies of British troops.

Cocker spaniel: He's been trained by his master in Empire, Ore., to deal with carelessly thrown eigaret and eigar butts. First he stomps on the stub with his forepaws; if that doesn't extinguish it, he rolls on the stub, picks it up in his mouth, moistens it, then drops it.

Cat: Owned by a telephone operator in Hahira, Ga., she sits on the window sill of the exchange, rakes coins into a cigar box with her front paw when customers pay for long-distance calls.

Monkeys: In a Siam bank, they are "employed" to spot fake coins. When a teller suspects a coin is counterfeit, he gives it to a strong-jawed monkey, who bites into it. Phony coins dent, good ones don't.

LEISURE TIME is spent making new pals. Each child wants to be first to pet friendly Blackie.

GANGGA PARK, CALIF.

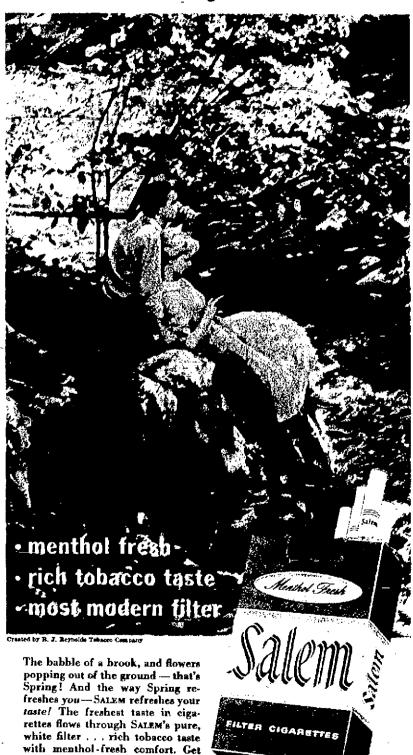

Illackie, the nondescript beast you see trotting across these pages, is one of America's traditional characters—the town dog. He "belongs" not to one master, but to many. Residents of this suburban Los Angeles district have been attending to Blackie's needs since, about 18 years ago, he adopted it as his home. Where he came from, no one knows. But his friendliness has won him devotion, even a "bank account." Children and grownups contribute to his account, kept at a pet shop. Blackie rarely needs the money, since local butchers see to it he has no food worries. But a financial emergency came up once. A new dog catcher "arrested" Blackie for not having a tag and leash. Indignant citizens bought Blackie a tag with money from his account, told the catcher what they thought—and that leash issue was forgotten quickly.

AT ANY TIME Blackie stops traffic. Local drivers know he is deaf and hardly able to see. Like the rest of the town, they want him to stay around as long as possible.

Mussolini's MISSING MILLIONS

by MELTON S. DAVIS

PADUA, ITALY.

A little past dawn on April 27, 1945, a long column of Luftwaffe trucks, armored cars and automobiles-wound its way toward Switzerland along the shores of picturesque Lake Como, some 140 miles west of here. It was a cold, wet morning; occasional peals of thunder alternated with the rattle of machine-gun fire, the splat of sharpshooters' rifles.

All northern Italy was in a fever of apprehension. No one knew where the Germans and the fleeing Fascists might halt to organize a last resistance. Partisans were coming out of hiding and the Allied armies were moving steadily forward.

Suddenly the column came to a halt. Across the road was a felled tree. As German soldiers tried to clear the road, Partisaus of Italy's famed 52nd Garibaldi Brigade began popping out of the woods.

A bald head emerged from the third truck to complain about the delay. In a flash, Partisans were dragging the man onto the road. One of the leaders took him by the German corporal's greatcoat he was wearing: "Cavaliere Mussolini, I arrest you in the name of the people of Italy!"

Fabulous Booty

The convoy was taken to the main square of the nearby village of Dongo. There it was discovered that members of Mussolini's cabinet were with him—and that distributed among the trucks were fantastic amounts of currency, gold, jewels, furs, all hastily assembled for the Fascist flight. The Partisans' eyes grew wide at this treasure. They transferred the loaded trunks, suiteases, bundles and bags to a guarded room in the Dongo city hall.

Word of the incident spread like wildfire. Soon the area was seething with Partisans — some looking for more Fascists, some scavenging for plunder, some just trigger-happy. The scramble went on until the following day when Walter Audisio, then known as "Colonel Valerio," arrived from Milan to restore order.

Valerio had his orders from the Insurrectionist Committee. On the 28th, as he hustled the shaken Italian dictator and his mistress, Clara Petacci, into a car, Mussolini had a moment of hope. "I knew they would not abandon me." But Valerio was in a hurry. American forces were nearing the lake. If Mussolini were dead by the time they arrived, then the Insurrectionists could claim the Fascist booty.

On a country road, the rattle of submachine guns finished the dictator and his mistress. Valerio and his men then went back to Dongo and machine-gunned 16 Fascist ministers in the village square. The next morning, two Partisan convoys left Dongo. One took the bodies of Mussolini, Clara and the others to Milan, where they were strung up by the heels. The other carried away the Fascist booty fabled since as the Treasure of Dongo.

Where did it go? Last April 29 the Italian Government finally set about finding out. Into court here marched 35 defendants, charged with stealing most of the treasure and covering up the theft with a trail of violence that had resulted in almost 100 deaths and disappearances.

For 12 years the Government had tried repeatedly to lift the blood-stained curtain on this last episode in the war in Italy. Bribery, robbery, threats, beatings, murders, all were interwoven with what happened to the gold. The story involved suiteases, full of sapphires and pearls, passing from hand to hand; bizarre voyages made by pesetas, pounds, dollars, Swiss and French francs; sacks of gold ingots; leather brief eases jammed with secret documents.

The treasure was in two parts: 1) public monies, including the entire resources of three banks rifled by Fascist troops, and 2) private funds and possessions scooped up by Fascist members of the column as they fled. The whole boodle is said to be worth between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 today.

The treasure had started disappearing even before Dongo. Two nights earlier, a truck which carried gifts from Japan to the Duce and a chest labeled "Personal Documents of 11 Duce" turned out to be missing. An officer sent to look for it was never seen again. The driver of the truck was found murdered.

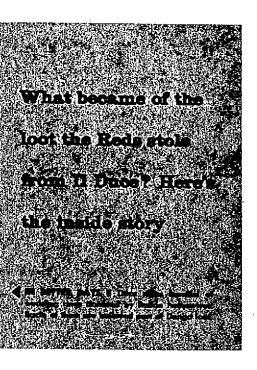

Thereafter the killings mounted. Among the Partisans directing what was to become the most important event of Italy's immediate postwar history were fresh-faced Captain Luigi Canali, known as "Neri," and his mistress, lovely "Gianna," otherwise Giuseppina Tuissi. Although present at the captures, the killings, the lootings, they didn't like what was going on. As chief of staff of the brigade, Neri insisted on turning the treasure over to the new Italian Government.

Disappearing Act

Valerio quickly agreed. Some of the suitcases and boxes were loaded into a car for Milan, but the rest were taken to Como, escorted by Gianna. There she turned them over to a minor Communist official, Dante Gorreri. Gianna was promptly arrested. Gorreri suddenly became very busy. During the day and night of April 29 he barely slept. Out of his office in Como went bags and valises, some to indivduals, some to banks (to be withdrawn hours later along with the deposit slips), some to Communist headquarters in Milan, some to Partisan bands. By next morning, when Gianna was released with apologies, not a trace of the whole fantastic swag could be seen.

Not till then did Neri begin to suspect that he had fallen into a trap and that Valerio had had no intention of turning anything over to the proper authorities. This belief was strengthened when Neri discovered that an aide of Valerio who questioned his superior's acts had disappeared and that the local head of the National Liberation Committee, who had tried to get the treasure put in the Bank of Italy, had been tossed into prison.

Full of indignation, Neri accused Valerio and Gorreri and Pietro Vergani, the Partisan commander for Lombardy known as "Fabio," of having acted against the interests of their country. He set about preparing a paper giving the reasons for his charges, but never finished it. On May 7, nine days after the treasure had vanished, Neri was called to the Communist headquarters in Como. He was never seen again.

Knew Too Much

The next day, a frantically worried Gianna was told by Pietro Vergani that Neri had been tried as a spy and executed. He warned her that it would be dangerous to stay in Como, and that she had better not interest herself in what happened to Neri. Wild with fury, she ran into the streets shouting, threatening Vergani with revelations of his conduct and that of other Partisan leaders. Vergani followed her; yelling, "Keep quiet, or I'll finish you off in the same way."

Ignoring the threats, on June 13 Gianna began a personal inquiry of her own. Helping her was Anna Maria Bianchi, a typist for the Partisans.

On June 23, their investigation took them to the lake town of Gera, where they met and talked with various Partisans. Anna Maria returned to Como. Gianna never rejoined her. Two men taking a walk outside Gera at 10 o'clock that night heard a cry for help, shots and then the sound of a body falling in the water. It was Gianna's. Anna Maria was not long in following her. On the morning of July 5, police found her body floating in the lake, a pistol shot through her head. The body showed traces of blows, torture and burns.

At Anna's funeral, her father Michele Bianchi, swore vengeance. "If the dead cannot speak," he cried, "the living can!" Striking his mouth with his hand, he said, "I have all the names here!" The police waited for him at the cemetery gates. As Michele walked slowly out, two shots came from a passing car. The old man did not live long enough to name his daughter's — and his own — murderers.

The chain of deaths was not finished. Next came "Biondino" and a girl called "Dina," friends of Gianna and Neri. Their bodies were found in a clump of pine trees on the shore of the lake.

Now Government authorities, with astonishing slowness, started shuffling the case back and forth between civil and military courts. The first investigator was a Communist who said the treasure was legitimate war loot. The second was a civil judge who said that it was finders-keepers. The third timidly said that the legal owner of the treasure was the State, but since no one knew where it was nothing could be done about it. Nothing was said of the murders.

Finally, on February 21, 1957, Gen. Leone Zingales, a lawyer turned military man, was named to start a special inquiry. He went to work with energy and, despite threats and intimidations, picked up real facts and began piecing together the intricate mosaic.

He had hardly started v hen one night documents were stolen from his desk and his office set on fire. Then the editor of a Milanese paper tried to publish "sensational and authoritative revelations" on the Dongo mystery; he was killed, and his manuscript disappeared. Zingales arrested several Communist suspects, who promptly were released on orders from Rome. Then Zingales found out his name was next on the murder list.

Finally Gives Up

Undismayed, he prepared to fix major responsibility on four top Communists for the looting and bloodletting. They were hard to pin down. Valerio and Luigi Longo were members of Parliament and immune to prosecution. Pietro Vergani had left Italy. Dante Gorreri was arrested, but elected to Parliament while in jail and set free.

Before Zingales could act, he suddenly was transferred. This was his breaking point, and he resigned — but not before two men who tried to warn him about it suffered the same fate as many predecessors. One was killed; the other mysteriously vanished.

Meanwhile, clues to the missing treasure were showing up in odd places. Money and jewels appeared around Lake Como. A woman tried to pay her butcher with a check made out to Mussolini's secretary, a peasant was seen wearing the dictator's decorations, little boys played marbles with gold coins. A local treasure hunt took place. Troops, gold diviners, tourists, deep-sea divers poured into the area, but only small amounts and empty jewel cases were recovered.

Not until this year did Italy's Center Government feel itself strong enough to bring the case to trial. By then, the Communists had been weakened by the uprising in Hungary and other events. Gorreri and Pietro Vergani were charged with embezzlement and murder. Of the other 33 defendants, six have been charged with following their orders in carrying out murders and disposing of the major part of the treasure. The rest are up for having dipped their hands into the till for varying amounts and objects, even including Mussolini's underwear. About 300 witnesses have been called but not all have appeared. Like some of those implicated in the murders and tooting, they are unavailable — some in hiding, some blatantly established in Iron Curtain countries.

At the trial, which still is going on, the Partisans, now tailors, clerks, small businessmen, no longer have the lean, taut faces of men living in a continuous state of excitement. To hear them tell it, they've been more interested in cheese and fruit than in brief cases full of money and documents. Not one has admitted keeping a single valuable. They also claim exceedingly faulty memories. For Italians, they have shown an odd reluctance to talk.

Even when three of Neri's fellow officers, one a Communist, told of several attempts on their lives in 1945 because of the treasure, they refused to give names. Defense lawyers freely admitted that some of their clients would like to say more, but they were prisoners of a chain of fear still capable of finding fresh victims.

Despite months of testimony, the tormented and tragic voyage of men and money is still not fully reconstructed. It appears probable that the full story of Dongo will never be told.

The real defendant, of course, is Italy's powerful Communist Party, which evidently used the treasure to build the biggest Red party bloc this side of the Iron Curtain. As for the secret papers — said to be mainly Mussolini's defense of his actions and to include letters and documents so important that Mussolini called them "vital to the destiny of Italy" — they probably went to Moscow, but copies of them exist. According to one man in Italy today who knows — and prefers, for his own safety, to remain nameless — "one set is surely in the hands of Communist chief Togliatti; another was purchased by a Communist prince, and a third set sold to secret agents."

Here's what he says happened to the missing treasure: "The foreign currency and gold were taken from Como and Dongo to Milan, where — in close collaboration with the Russian military mission there — it was changed to lire. Under Valerio's watchful eye it was then carried to Communist headquarters in Rome. Party head Togliatti has said, 'The treasure of Dongo never existed.' He's right, as far as the public coffers are concerned. But it did exist long enough to change the political life of the nation."

HOPE-25 years on top

PARI

How does a top comedian stay on top? Particularly since television began devouring comic material like a flash fire, how does a 25-year veteran of TV, radio, movies, stage and vaudeville maintain his position?

The other day I sought the answer from Bob Hope, who at 54 has hung up a unique record in the five media just mentioned. Currently he's finishing his 39th motion picture, a typical Hope vehicle that presents him as a breezy, overconfident American abroad. Titled Paris Holiday, it logically enough has been shot here in Paris.

For once, Hope has plenty of comic competition. The picture co-stars Fernandel, the world-renowned French comedian who excels at one of Hope's own specialties: mugging.

"Just look at Fernandel's kisser," Hope remarked when I talked to him on location. "Mine's supposed to be good for a laugh, but I can't compete with that unless I call for a plastic surgeon!"

Actually, the French press has been calling Paris Holiday "the battle of the comics." It's one of the few times two top-ranking international comedians have risked appearing together, and the combination has set sparks flying.

At one point Fernandel even quit the picture because, he explains, "I had none of the funny lines, none of the funny situations. Bobope" — the French pronunciation of Bob Hope — "had them all."

War and Peace

Hope sees it differently. "Fernandel," he points out, "doesn't speak any English. He knows just three words: 'Ladies and gentlemen.' Naturally, he didn't have as many lines as I. Besides, I'm the producer of this picture, spending my own dough. My writers still had him in 30 per cent of it — the really high spots. But he wouldn't go for it."

In any case, peace was restored and Hope and Fernandel, each armed with two writers, proceeded to mutilate the original script. The result, according to Hope: "Fernandel is with me through the whole picture. He has 50 per cent of the lines. He gets top billing in France and Italy; I get it everywhere else. The two blondes in the film, Anita Ekberg and Martha Hyer — they get what's left."

This carefree resolution of what could have been a sticky problem is typical of Hope, a man basically intelligent, well-adjusted and forthright. Those qualities also appear in the answer he made to my diplomatic question, "How come you've been in the big time 25 years and people still aren't wise to you?"

"First of all," he explained, "I've been lucky. Without luck you can't go anywhere in show business. I've been lucky because I've been able to move from one medium into another. When vaudeville was dying back in the 1920s, I managed to get into Broadway shows. After six shows I went to Hollywood and landed in the movies. At the same time, radio was growing; I grew with it. Eight years ago when radio began to slip, I made the jump to TV, still keeping my hand in movies and personal appearances.

MUGGING to illustrate their feud, Fernandel and Hope first grin . . .

... then frown, showing mutual fealousy. But suspicion ands...

3·DAY TREATMENT FOR CORNS

BLUE-JAY Plastic Corn Plasters with wonder drug PHENYLIUM®

Gusranteed to relieve pain . . . and get rid of ordinary corns in three days

Medical science has found a fast and effective way to relieve the pain of a corn, and get rid of it at the same time.

This treatment works by getting to the base of the problem. It actually gets rid of your corn by pushing it up from underneath.

The secret is a wonder drug from the Blue-Jay laboratories which took nine years to perfect. That wonder drug is called Phenylium (phenoxyethanoic acid).

How BLUE-JAY Corn Placters relieve poin, remove corn

The Blue-Jay plaster consists of a felt ring surrounding a pad with Phenylium. The felt relieves the pain of the corn by removing the pressure and friction which causes it.

Simultaneously, the Phenylium goes to work to remove the source of the pain—the corn itself. It penetrates through the tough, horny skin of the corn to its base, where it stimulates the growth of new cell tissue.

In most corns, by the end of the third day this new tissue has grown to the point where it pushes the corn loose so that it can be lifted out.

ON TELEVISION Hope charms the camera with a hand-picked charus line. Over the years, pretty girls have been as much a part of his act as tast cracks or ludicrous expressions.

One big reason he's lasted

"When TV began coming into its own," Bob continued, "I was offered all kinds of dough to do a weekly program as I had on radio. I wouldn't do it. I knew even then it would mean fatal overexposure.

"Guys ask me all the time about what happened to Sid Caesar or George Gobel or Jackie Gleason or Wally Cox. You've got no idea what a tremendous strain it is trying to be funny week after week. The American audience is the sharpest, most sophisticated and fickle audience in the world. You can't get away with old jokes, old routines, second-class material. Trying to satisfy the public — honestly, it can tear you apart.

"It doesn't tear me, because I love this audience. I love to stand up on a stage, look at people and crack jokes. I'd rather entertain than do anything. I've got more money than I can ever spend, but still I've got to work. I couldn't live without it.

"But even on a guy like me it's a strain. Last year I lost $30,000 on every TV show I did. I went way over the budget for guest stars, for material, for expenses. Why? Because I knew I had to give the audience the best possible show, or they'd say, 'Hope is beginning to slip.'"

One basic reason Bob Hope has lasted so long is that his humor itself is not lasting. "For my money," he has said over and over again, "the No. I joke of them all is the topical joke, a quip based on today's newspaper headlines. When you use one, everybody is with you."

is that his humor doesn't

Thus when Hope plays Detroit, for example, his writers gather material on the mayor, the state of the automobile industry and whatever is funny in Michigan. When he does a coast-to-coast TV show, he sweats over his opening monologue. editing every word, insisting that his writers develop Eisenhower gags or topical jokes that are national in scope. For every one joke he uses, he throws out seven. (Actually, he throws out nothing. Those he doesn't use go into his tremendous gag file for future use.)

However fleeting his subject matter. Hope can lay a legitimate claim to freshness. And he is a master of split-second timing. "I can honestly say," he told me, "that my timing is pretty good, that I know how to milk a gag and even make an average one sound better by timing."

Quick with the Quips

Hope uses what is known as the "cover" technique. After he delivers a punch line, he covers it with a few words, then waits for his laugh. For example, in Washington, D.C.: "I was visiting the Pentagon Building the other day and I never saw so much brass. Anyone below a lieutenant colonel runs the elevator. And let me tell you - "Or at the 1955 Academy Awards presentation on TV: "We have a special prize for losers - - a do-it-yourself suicide kit. And let me tell you --- '

Hope explains, "I try to make the audience an integral part of my act. I like to make them feel that there's a contest going on between the two of us. I'm going to try to get some gags past them, and they're going to catch me by acknowledging the gags with their laughs. In that way, almost everyone has a good time."

In movies, where there is less opportunity for sensitive timing, Hope mugs a good deal, using his mobile face to advantage. In practically all his films he plays the wise guy, the "great lover," a mixture of braggadocio and wisecracks. He did try quasi-dramatic roles in The Seven Little Foys and the recently released Beau James -- but fearfully, afraid to relinquish the quips and the cracks. Hope, observers feel, cannot make his mark as a dramatic actor until he is willing to take parts without jokes -- even as his sidekick, Bing Crosby, has been willing to give up singing for dramatic roles (as he did in The Country Girl and his latest movie, Man on Fire).

It may be, of course, that Hope enjoys comedy too much to settle down to serious drama --- yet. He regarded "the battle of the comics" over Paris Holiday as a big lark. "After Fernandel and I got through our hassle," he told me, "we went out and played a benefit together. Neither of us speaks the other's language, but we understand each other perfectly. The fancy word for what we've got is rapport. Our relationship is now completely without suspicion.'

A minute later, Fernandel motioned me to his side. "I know," he said, "that Bobope has been talking about me. What has he been saying?"

"He just told me," I confided, "that you are the world's greatest comedian."

Fernandel broke into a wide, fulltoothed smile. "Monsieur Bobope," he shouted, "is a gentleman! Do you hear? A true gentleman!" Then, softly, "But your must watch him every minute,"

THE HOPE FAMILY lines up. Reading down: Bob, wife Dolores, Linda, 18; Tony, 17; Nara and Kelly, both 11. Bob and Dolores met when he was in a Broadway musical, have been married 25 years.

AT 17 Hope were this outfit as an entertainer in Cleveland (where he lived after coming to the U.S. from England).

YOUR SINDE

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

You spend about one-third of your life asleep - but how much do you know about that blissful state? Scientists have been probing the mysteries of wakefulness and sleep. Here, from up-to-the-minute research findings, PAHADE answers the questions most often asked about sleep.

Q What is sleep?

A Scientists aren't quite sure. They do know there seems to be a "waking center" at the base of your skull. This "bombards" your brain with stimulating impulses. So long as the bombardment continues, you're awake. When it slows, you get sleepy. This activity is thought to be at its lowest during sleep.

Q Can you make up for sleep lost?

A Probably. Tests show even a brief catnap can refresh you after an inadequate night's sleep. However, most doctors still recommend eight hours' sleep for adults. Youngsters need (and usually get) more. Many adults can get along well with seven hours as they grow older.

Q Do people differ in their ability to become fully awake and active after a night's sleep?

A Yes, there seem to be "morning types" and "afternoon types." The former tend to spring out of bed and do their best work before noon. The latter seem to be more efficient later. If you're an afternoon type and want to feel fresher in the morning, try exercises or a cold shower after you arise.

Q What's the best way to fall back to sleep after you awake during the night?

A Relax. If you have to think at all, think only about pleasant things. Above all, do not worry about sleeplessness. Thinking about insomnia is said to be its greatest provoker. Tests show that some people can fall into deep sleep within 1 minute—apparently because their minds are free of conflicts.

Q Do bedtime snacks keep you awake?

A Not if they create a sense of peace and well-being. But food does have a stimulating action on the system. It sets off various body activities (digestive processes, increase in metabolic rate) which can contribute to wakefulness. A rule to remember: Never cat a big meal just before retiring.

■ Is darkness necessary for proper sleep?

A It is not necessary, but it helps. Light stimulation, like other stimulation, can cause arousal, and darkness represents the time of quietness, which also promotes sleep.

Are the early hours of sleep the best ones?

A You tend to sleep most deeply early in the night—shortly after you retire. But this does not mean that an hour of early, deep sleep is worth an hour and a half of lighter, early morning sleep. Researchers have found no weighty evidence that early (11 p.m.) sleep is "healthier" than later (4 a.m.) sleep.

• Do you get to sleep earlier on heetic, high-pressure days than on easy-going, routine days?

A Scientists hedge on this question. Perhaps on a hectic day you fall off to sleep more easily than on a lazy day, but more important is your normal "sleep-waking cycle." Each of us has a sort of sleep-waking rhythm, the result of circumstances, experience and training. Other things being equal, we follow it.

• Is sudden awakening harmful?

A No—for the average, healthy person. Sudden awakening can cause the heart to accelerate and blood pressure to go up for a short period; these are dangerous only in the presence of certain physical conditions.

Q Why can some people get up by themselves in the morning while others need an alarm clock?

A Under the proper circumstances, almost anyone can get up "on time" without using an alarm. If you go to sleep at, say, 11 p.m., you begin the waking process at about I a.m. From then on your sleep becomes lighter; by about 7, you are hovering at the point of wakefulness. Various stimuli are at work—light, the birds chirping, signals from your stomach and kidneys. Scientists suspect that if you want to face the day, if you look forward to its prospects, you are likely to get up without an alarm. If you are not eager to, you may do an amazing job of ignoring the stimuli and go right on snoozing.

Q Does the body sleep completely—or is there a "sixth sense" that remains awake?

A Apparently some sensory pathways to the brain do stay "awake" and functional even in sleep. Whether this can be described as a "sixth sense" is yet to be settled.

Q When do most dreams occur?

A Most authorities say it's during the phases of drowsiness and light sleep which precede and follow sleep's deepest phases. Some people claim they never dream. Researchers doubt that claim. They say all people dream. However, some simply never remember dreams. $50,000.00 Canada Dry Sweepstakes 5083 PRIZES

A tent you INFLATE

Earthbound 'balloon' gives show business á new look

LAMBERTSVILLE, N.J. The grinning gentleman above is St. John Terrell, manager of America's oldest summer musical theater - the famous Music Circus here. He's testing a model of a new tent, designed to replace the traditional canvas one he's used for shows from New York to Florida. Made of plasticcoated nylon, the new tent is fireproof, easy to cool or heat, steady even in high winds. And it inflates, collapses and transports as easily as a balloon. Terrell's final version will be 165' across, seat 2,100 persons (who'll enter and leave via an air lock). Its manufacturers think the inflated tent may prove useful in other ways. Example: Tomorrow's fairgrounds may look like huge mushroom patches.

BALLOON-LIKE theater seats more than 2,000, is deflated for easy starage, transportation.

EUMED. A dog that chews shoes and clothing can be a very expensive pet. Teach him to respect your property by following this simple MILK-BONE training plan.

TRAIN HIM. When your dog chews something he shouldn't, startle him by throwing a light object toward him, such as a magazine. At the same time say, "No!" in a firm voice.

HEWARD IMM. After each lesson reward him with MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS. He'll want to earn another tasty reward. Soon he'll know what to chew and what not to chew.

MILK-BONE WORKS. Your property will soon be safe and, at the same time, your dog's natural craving for chewing will be satisfied with healthy, nutritional MILK-BONE.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR DOG BEHAVE:

Train him to stop chewing up your home—the Milk-Bone way

Follow the advice of dog experts such as Lee Duncan, trainer of Rin Tin Tin. Train your dog the MILK-BONE way for better behavior. After every trick or lesson, reward your dog with a MILK-BONE DOG BISCUIT. You'll find training is easier, faster, more funboth for you and your dog.

Your dog will love the real tempting goodness of MILK-BONE. And remember, MILK-BONE is good for your dog. Gives him all-important chewing exercise that helps keep his teeth and gums strong and healthy.

Only MILK-BONE comes in three different textures and sizes. Look for circle on package front for size of biscuit that suits your dog best—LARGE, MEDIUM, or SMALL.

'Super' eating—in seven easy steps by BETH MERRIMAN PARADE FOOD EDITOR Heavenly Barbecue Sauce: Pour 1½ cups molasses into large mixing bowl; gradually blend in 1 cup prepared mustard. Stir in ½ cup Worcestershire sauce, 1½ cups vinegar, 2 teaspoons bottled hot pepper sauce, ¼ teaspoon each marjoram and oregano. Store in tightly covered jar in refrigerator. (It keeps.) Makes about 1 qt.

Golden Barbecued Chicken: Buy broiler-fryer chickens, quartered. Brush with melted butter or margarine; brown on both sides over charcoal; place in foil pan. Grill about 45 minutes, basting often with Heavenly Barbecue Sauce (about 34 cup for 2 chickens).

Chili Corn: Husk corn; spread ears with softened butter or margarine; sprinkle with solt and chili powder; double-wrap in foil; place on coals; roast 15 minutes, turning two or three times.

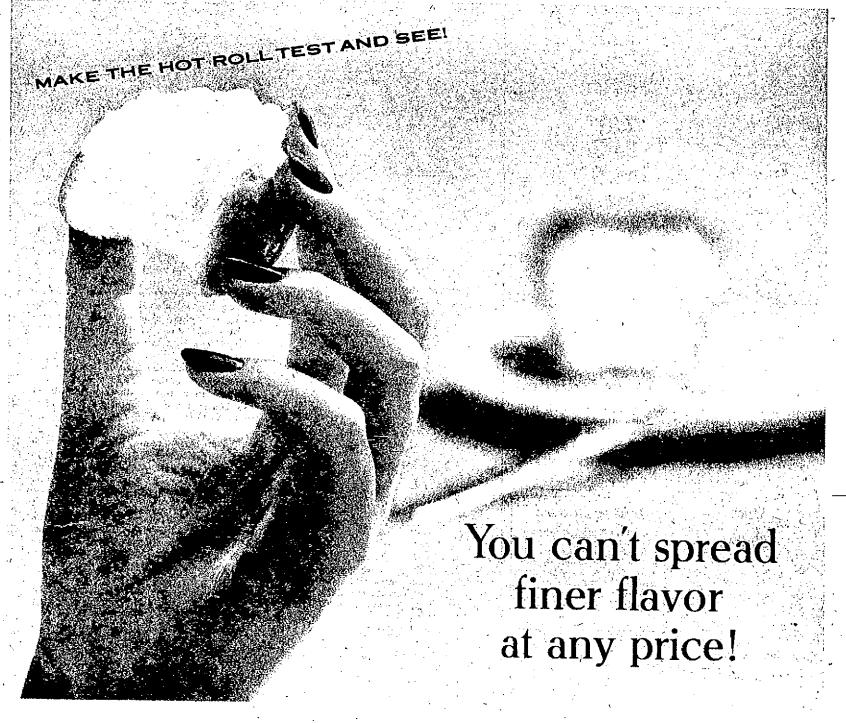

Luscious Potatoes: Scrub baking potatoes; rub with soft butter or margarine; double-wrap in foil; place on coals; roast 1 hour, turning several times. Break open; top with sour cream and cut chives.

Savory Zucchini: Slice zucchini squash ½" thick. Combine 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce and 1 tablespoon instant minced onion. Place enough squash for each serving in double square of foil; top with 2 or 3 tablespoons tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon butter or margarine, salt and pepper. Gather up foil; twist top. Grill 25 minutes.

Onion Bread Cuts: Melt ½ cup butter or margarine; add 1 tablespoon instant minced onion; let stand over low heat 10 minutes. Cut French bread loaf lengthwise, then crosswise. Brush all cut surfaces with onion-butter; wrap in foil; set on grill where heat is not too intense.

OBJECT LESSON: Three parked cars burn in a San Francisco street. The blaze started when another auto hit them.

WHAT TO DO WHEN...

Your car's afire!

by EDWARD D. FALES, JR.

Near Danbury, Conn., motorists recently saw the engine of an old car burst into flames. The car lurched off the road, stopped; the driver sprang out and frantically began pulling out luggage. Luckily, a quick-thinking truck driver came along. He stopped his truck a cautious 200 feet away, came running with an extinguisher and in 10 seconds had the fire out.

In Baltimore, Md., pedestrians noticed flames spurting from the right-rear wheel of a passing car and shouted a warning to the driver. He scrambled out. Unable to do anything, he retreated to a safe distance while the flames mushroomed under the gas tank. Someone finally called the firemen. By the time they arrived, the gas tank was frying merrily. The whole car would have followed had not a fireman doused the blaze with an extinguisher.

Trouble At Home

In neither of these emergencies did the driver know what to do — nor did he have an extinguisher. Could you have dealt properly with either fire in your car?

Then there was the motorist who put his car away, went to bed and was awakened at 3 a.m. by a tremendous roar. Garage and car were a blazing inferno. If the garage had been under his house — as so many are today — the house might have burned, too.

"I should have known better," he said

the next day. "One evening last month my engine began smoking. I stopped at a gas station and a mechanic ripped off the worn battery cable. When the hot wires cooled, I drove on. I should have replaced the bad wiring immediately. But I forgot about it, and last night those same wires caused a short circuit."

These cases are typical. Every day 650 Americans have car fires. Of course, you may never have one—but to be fully safe you should 1) know what causes fires and how to prevent them; 2) learn what to do if a fire breaks out. The National Fire Prevention Association says virtually every car fire can be put out with little or no damage.

Another authority is the Rockford (III.) Fire Department, one of the few in the country that keeps a careful record of car fires. Its chief, Wayne Swenson, also is president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

In dealing with a fire caused by short-circuited battery wires, Chief Swenson advises: 1) Turn off your ignition, get everyone out of the car and have someone call firemen at once. 2) Lift the hood and disconnect the thick battery cable (if you don't, the fire will start again).

If the engine is in flames, use an extinguisher, or throw handfuls of dirt or sand. Don't use water — it may spread the grease-fed flames.

While short-circuiting is perhaps the most common cause of car fires, there are these other hazards to watch for:

- Overheated engine: May cause alcoholtype anti-freeze in radiator to boil over and ignite on hot engine.
- Brakes: If you smell a hot brake, or feel a drag while driving, check your brakes at once. Heat can ignite grease and spread fire to brake fluid.
- "Ground fumes" at gas station: When you are getting gas, don't smoke. Your car may be standing in a "lake" of gas fumes, which a spark can explode.
- Seat fire (second worst cause of car fire): Never throw a cigarette out of a car window while driving. It may blow back and smolder in the back seat — or land on a seat of the car in the other lane.
- Collision: First rule is, turn off your ignition and the ignition of the other car, if you possibly can.
- Backfire: If muffler is broken, flame can ignite leaking gasoline.

More Points to Watch

- Snow tires: If under-inflated, undue friction may ignite them.
- Broken rear spring: Causes rear wheel to shift back. This tightens emergency brake cable, sets brake. When car is driven, friction can ignite brake.
- Gas line: Always check it for leaks.
   On every car, gas line follows the hot exhaust manifold. Also see that carburetor and fuel-pump connections are tight.
- "Attached" garage: Make sure your garage is separated from your living quarters by a firewall (required by some city codes) or at least a fire-resistant wall. If you have a basement garage, he sure the celling is fire-resistant. Ordinary "sheet rock" or other fire-resistant cumposition board, nailed on walls and ceiling, can contain a fire for as much as 20 minutes.
- Final precautions: Keep checking your wiring even if your car is new. (Don't "fix" chafed or dried-out cracked wire. Replace it.) Never garage your car if it is leaking gas. Keep your engine clean. (Have it washed twice a year to remove highly inflammable grease and oil.) Last but not least: Buy a fire extinguisher.

Girl friendships, "I'm 13. For the last two years I have had one very special friend. Now she likes someone else better. What can I do?" - C.L., Honolulu.

Dorothy Hollis, 15, says the same thing happened to her once, "It was a terrible blow. For a while I lost all confidence in myself and spent must of my time wondering what I could have done," she says.

After a while, though - and it does take a while to make friends, and you can be lonely in the meantime, she says - Dorothy began to pal around with another girl. And the next year she seemed to have not just one friend, but many.

One of the hardest things for Dorothy to learn was that, as you grow up, your friends are bound to change. And your interests are too.

Her advice to C.L. is to look around for other girls to do things with. It's fun to have more than one friend - especially during vacation, when best friends are so likely to be separated.

Conversation. Do you ever quake in your boots waiting for a new date to show up --- wondering how you'll get through the evening, conversation-wise - trying to keep in mind what everyone has told you: talk about him, not about you?

Helen Hunter, 17, Pasadena, Calif., finds it's easier and more practical to do just the opposite.

First, she says, take it for granted that the boy asked you out because he wants to know you better. Then help him to do that - talk about yourself.

Tell him that you like Pat Boone but not Elvis Presley (if you do). That you had meat loaf for dinner which you simply can't stand. (Can he?) That you hope someday to see some really professional tennis matches. (Does he like tennis too?)

These are sample topics which will give your date a glimmer of what kind of a girl you are. They should make him feel more at ease - and soon he will be talking too.

Perhaps you'll find yourself in a fine, long discussion about swimming or some perfectly ridiculous fad such as wearing scatter pins or bobby socks. And the evening's off to a good start.

Seems to me Helen's idea sounds as though it would work with any boy. What do you think?

REAL EX-BOXER Tommy Laughran, oùthar of this article, spins a story. Once lightheavyweight champ—(1927-29), he's now a witty, urbane Wall Street broker.

An all-time great boxer tells TV comedians

'Don't call us

by TOMMY LOUGHRAN

Red Skelton bounced out on the TV stage. Dressed in a baggy turtleneck sweater, he made windmill motions with a pair of boxing gloves, bobbing and ducking wildly around the ring.

The television audience roared at this comical impersonation of a boxer. Watching my TV screen, I had to laugh too. And then, suddenly, Skelton stopped being funny.

He began impersonating a helpless, "punchy" ex-boxer named "Cauliflower McPugg." He mumbled, jigged crazily whenever a bell sounded, screamed that he heard "strange sounds" in his head.

The studio audience laughed uproariously at Skelton's capering. But he got no laughs from me — and not just because I happen to be an ex-fighter.

When I see boxers pictured on TV and in the movies as pathetic stimblebums, I burn. Why? For two good reasons:

- 1) The public is led to think that most ex-fighters are "punch drunk." But that just isn't so. There's new medical evidence, for instance, indicating that punches don't make anyone "drunk."
- 2) The comedians create the illusion that so-called "punch-drunkenness" is a funny thing. If we think being "punch-

punchy!'

drunk" is funny, then we should also find great humor in persons who are crippled, deformed or mentally ill.

Skelton, of course, is not the only offender. Jackie Gleason and Peter Lind Hayes, to name just two, find great fun in picturing ex-boxers as idiots.

Some ex-fighters are guilty, too. You may have seen Rocky Graziano, the former middleweight champion, on TV. Once I interviewed Rocky during a televised boxing show. I asked him to describe his then new book, Somebody Up There Likes Me.

"Well, Toma.y," he mumbled, "it's about how I was raised on the East Side of New York and all and could've wound up in the electric chair."

"Why, Rocky," I said, "I've known hundreds of people from the East Side who didn't end up in the electric chair."

Rocky just shrugged, "That's what they told me to say,"

"Who are they?"

What the Doctors Say

Rocky's put-on dumbness, of course, is part of his television and night-club act. But many people, after hearing him, undoubtedly say: "See, what did I tell you? All those ex-fighters are punch-drunk."

Yet our best medical researchers—who should know who's punch-drunk and who isn't—are not as sure as the self-styled "experts." Writing recently in The Journal of the American Medical Association, two New York City doctors pointed out that those who talk about a "punch-drunk" fighter actually "know nothing of his intellectual capacity during his prefight years, his environment, his heritage or his educational advantages."

In other words, a "punch-drunk" fighter might have been mentally relarded — because of heredity or a lack of opportunity to develop his mental abilities — before he ever started fighting.

"Certainly," wrote the doctors, "a bashed-in nose, scars over the eyes and cauliflower ears" do not mean a man has a slow-moving mind.

What a punch can do to a fighter's brain has been greatly exaggerated, added the researchers. They pointed out that only the rare punch to the head knocks out a fighter. Jack Dempsey, possibly the greatest puncher of all time, told the doctors that only about one of his punches in a thousand landed solidly on an opponent's head.

And even those few punches, I've noticed after 30 years in boxing as a fighter and spectator, do not harm the brain of a normal, well-conditioned boxer. For proof, have a look at the fighters who took an awful lot of head punches during their careers — but were always in condition. Here are just four:

- Top heavyweight Tommy Gibbons: for 20 years he's been the sheriff of St. Paul, Minn.
- Ex-heavyweight champion Gene Tunney: he's now a successful executive.
- Former heavyweight contender Armand Emmanuel: he's a Los Angeles attorney.

EX-CHAMP Rocky Graziano makes like a truly "punch-drunk" type on Martha Raye's TV show.

• Ex-flyweight champion Fidel La Barba: he's a writer in Hollywood.

There are plenty more.

Now, of course there are ex-fighters who might well be called "punch-drunk." You see them - mumbling, glassy-eyed, half-wrecks of men — hanging around fight arenas. I could name a dozen right now. But I maintain these men are not mentally defective because they took too many punches in the head.

The Real Cause

Their brains were damaged, I have found, either because they suffer from an inherent mental defect or because they contracted some disease which ravaged their brains.

Thousands of other unfortunates are just like these ex-pugilists. They are people who never entered a ring — who once were cashiers, accountants, typists, business executives, even comedians. They're called mentally defective or mentally ill.

Ex-fighters, though, are just plain plain

Today, nobody makes fun of mentally ill accountants. Why aren't mentally ill ex-fighters treated with the same compassion? One big reason is that the "punchdrunk" fighter so long has been held up to public ridicule by the Gleasons, the Skeltons and the Hayeses.

What these performers are doing is, to me, absolutely despicable. Those are strong words. But I'm going to keep on repeating them till television comedians remember what any gentleman knows—that some of our fellow men are objects more for pity than for laughter.

We make this offer to demonstrate an exciting way for young and old to learn about the many lands and peoples of our wonderful world. This revolutionary new program in home education, sponsored by THE AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, is like a "guided tout" around the world, conducted by butstanding authorities on each region's bistory—geography—trade—customs—landmarks—native crafts—flags, samps, currency—and many other subjects.

How Your Family "Visits" a Different Land Each Month

Different Land Each Month

Each month you receive a set of full-rolor photographs and an informative, illustrated guidebook album with spaces for mounting the color prints. By means of these prints and albums prepared under the with spaces for mounting the color prints. By means of these prints and albums, prepared under the guidance of American Geographical Society experts, you and your family "visit" a different country every month. You explore the country's famous landmarks and natural wonders. You go' sight-seeing in the strange cities. In quaint little villages you stop to observe-native costumes, customs, and crafts. An expert on the history of the region spins stories of the macient legends. You pore over maps showing the principal cities, rivers, mountains. You actually learn MORE about these foreign lands than many tourists do! Helps Children in School—and in Later Life, Too!

Here is an educational hobby that will draw the whole family together—for there is something in it for everybody. Grade school children will enjoy the pictures and captions; yet high school students will find much of the text a valuable supplement to their studies in history, geography, social science, etc. This knowledge will give them a tremendous advantage in life, as they grow up in a world where other countries are only hours away by air. And Mom and Dad will find this an enjoyable way of planning trips—or re-living memorable inurneys.

No ordinary soap with "something added" protects you like new Golden Dial!

NEW GOLDEN DIAL SOAP STOPS ODOR BETTER THAN EVER!

(milder, too!)

Dial's new Super AT-7 is twice as effective as any deodorant ingredient in any soap!

One look tells you something wonderful has happened to Dial Soap. One bath tells you much more: New Golden Dial stops odor better—better than any other soap you've ever used!

For Golden Dial is not just another soap with some ingredient added. Dial was born to be a deodorant soap! Its Super AT-7 was developed especially for Dial. It's more effective than Dial's original AT-7::: twice as effective as any deodorant ingredient in any other deodorant soap!

In one bath, Golden Dial stops odor better than ever! Removes odor-causing bacteria better than if you scrubbed with any two ordinary soaps. And Golden Dial keeps fighting odor for days!

You get all this with new cosmetic mildness: 11 smart new wrapper... new golden hard-milled bar. Obviously, such a fine soap costs more to make—costs more to buy than ordinary soap. But it's worth every cent of it!

Aren't you glad you use Dial Soap?

INDIANAPOLIS - ONE TESTING GROUND FOR SUPERFUEL

Racing champions at the "500" classic, and in other major engine competitions world-wide, for years have depended on Mobil of for first that win. The same skill that blended fuels for six straight winners at Indianapolis brings you Mobilgas Special — the superfuel. For clean, quick yetaway, safe passing on high-speed highways, put superfuel in your high horsepower car.

PIKES PEAK WINNER SINCE '45! To get fuel that makes cars really go you'd better test it where the going is toughest. We did just that. In Mobilgas Special - the WASHINGTON (U.P.)-The Eisenhower clan gathered for a rare Washington wegiend Saturday night to celebrate the 35th birthday of Maj. John Eisenhower, only son of the President and First Lady.

Mrs. Eisenhower flew back to Washington from a six-day stay in Denver where she visited her mother and attended the dedication of a park named in her own honor. The President played golf Saturday morning at the sub-urban Burning Tree Club.

He drove to Washington National Airport in the after-noon and surprised Mamie by greeting her as she stepped off the presidential plane, Columbine III.

"This is an unexpected pleasure," she said as she kissed her husband and joined him in their air conditioned limousine.

Late this afternoon they were joined at the White House by Maj. Eisenhower, his wife. Barbara, and the three oldest of their four children—David, 9. Barbara Anne, 8, and Susan, 5.

The President's brother, Dr. Milton Elsenhower, came from Baltimore with his daughter to join the party. Dr. Elsenhower hower, president of Johns Hopkins University, will leave for Mexico today as the President's personal representative on a committee set up at the Panama conference of American

HOW IT FEELS TO HAVE . . .

A Little Genius Around the House

By SAUL PETT

YONKERS, N. Y. (A) -Many people, confronted with a boy genius, immediately assume the child must be a brilliant but unmitigated brat. True or false?

False, say experts like Dr. Irving Lorge, psychologist of Columbia University, who has made broad studies of gifted children. False, says Mrs. Albert

Strom, whose testimony might be considered prejudiced except that she appears to have examined the question critically. Her son, Robert, 11, is probably the country's best known juvenile brain, having won $224,000 on TV with his knowledge of the sciences. More than 99 per cent of gifted children, Dr. Lorge has found, are well-rounded emotionally. Other authorities agree that a child highly developed in one area frequently is well developed in others and in his ability to get along with people. Living with Robert Strom, concedes his mother, is like living with a Roman candle. "He emits sparks all the time. He is intense about everything. The most frequent phrase we have to use with him is 'simmer down.' "

BUT, SHE ALSO points out, the boy responds to authority, he recognizes he is a child in an adult world (where few adults have his high I. Q.) He is a highly social creature who plays child games with other children, is well liked by them and his teachers find him well adjusted although there is very little they can teach him. Mrs. Strom holds a master's degree in education. Her husband teaches electricity in a vocational school. Their older son, Stephen, 14, also is highly gifted; he attends a special science high school reserved for children with rare ability.

recognized authorities in reports to the city and to oil companies. Now the city is employing experts to compile these various reports into documents which should impress any reasonable body or individual.

For the first time there is a concentrated effort by the City Council and City Manager to prepare the city's case for such a presentation. An effort is in process to employ an administrator whose sole duty will be a program to get the necessary action. It can only be done by a concentrated effort supported by all the people of the city. There is danger in "hiding our head in the sand." The only safe course is to face facts and accept the responsibility for allowing what has happened, and then to move quickly to correct it. We are in trouble and only selfish interests or apathetic people will retard the efforts to get us out of it .-- L.A.C.

AN INVITATION

To Visit Marina Shores Model Homes

You are cordially invited to view five beautiful homes furnished by Frank Brothers, and located in the new Marina Section, two blocks north of Pacific Coast Highway and Bolsa Avenue in Seal

The models were designed by two outstanding Southern California architectural firms: Killingsworth, Brady and Smith, A.I.A, and J. Herbert Brownell, A.I.A.

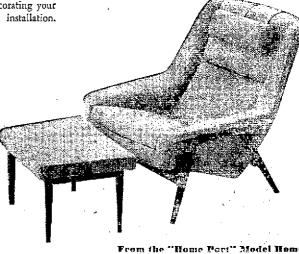

Each of these beautiful homes features an individual style of architecture ranging from Early American to Contemporary . . . All reflect the friendly informal way of living that is Southern California.

Frank Brothers maintains the largest selection of domestic and imported contemporary furniture to be found anywhere. A compiete Carpet Department, Drapery Workroom, Custom Upholstery Shop, and beautiful furniture displays are all under one roof to make your shopping more convenient and enjoyable.

A qualified Interior Design Staff, under the direction of Edward Frank, A.I.D., assures you competent assistance in decorating your home. Skilled craftsmen insure proper delivery and installation.

WEST SAID the others prom ised him there would be no shootin, but that they became angry when he was unable to maneuver Kiehle to the cage.

The bandits strode into the store armed with shotguns and plstols and wearing putty noses and false whiskers. One held shoppers at bay while the others forced Kiehle to open the store

The manager was shot when he didn't move fast enough at the bandits' commands. He was shot in the arm while trying to open the cage with a key, then in the leg as he worked to open the safe. His condition was reported as good Saturday in St. Jude's Hospital.

POLICE SAID the $9,280 share for White and West was found buried in a cloth sack in a canyon near White's home.

Howard's share, $7,533, was found scattered throughout his home. Police said bills were discovered in the refrigerator, under shelving paper in the kitch-en, nailed to rafters, under a rug and under the house itself.

Maciel's share, $7,510, was un covered under a jacket in hi covered under a jacket in his brother's car in nearby Norwalk. The brother found the money and turned it in to police. Police said Howard had spent $100 for a motorcycle payment and had given his wife another $350, telling her he "won It

Councilman Dooley Describes Mexico City Quake Experience

(Another Quake Story on Page A-10)

The earthquake that rocked Mexico City last Sunday was gentle compared to the Long Beach quake of 1933, City Councilman Charles R. Dooley reported Saturday.

Councilman Dooley and Mrs. Dooley are the latest returnees who survived the Mexico City shocks. They were in a downtown hotel when the quakes began.

"We were on the second floor of the Plaza Vista Hermosa, a new 12-story hotel," Dooley said. "The top of the building swayed three or four feet, but it stood up very well.

"ALL THE DAMAGE was on our floor and the one above it. A great deal of plaster and marble fell from walls in corridors and bathrooms, but there was little other damage.

DOOLEY SAID practically all the damage appeared to have been done to new buildings, He said a theater two blocks from their hotel was caved in, and a Mexican government building across from the American embassy was leaning three feet.

"But one new 45-story office building, the Mirador, a glassand-steel job, didn't have a single window broken. All around it, glass was broken out of other buildings."

Dooley said repair crews went to work immediately, "They were busy all over the city by Sunday afternoon, shoring up weak buildings and pouring new cement and clearing rubble."

Russian-Born Sculptor of Celebrities Woman and Marvelous buys! Does Ike's Head, Finds Him Interesting Two Children

The dark-skinned, graying man in the white smock patted the plaster cast fondly.

"He is interesting," the sculptor said, "a good face that shows feeling and often changes. Sometimes a good mood, some times a bad one. Often he is preoccupied. But he is interested in the work and some times we talk art.

"Also he talks with General Snyder. But I am discreet, like a doctor, and will not repeat what he says."

THE SCULPTOR is Niscon Tregor, a Russian-born American citizen who lives in Paris. The subject he discussing is President Eisenhower. Tregor has finished a head of the President and will have it cast in bronze in France. He also modeled Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman. Eisenhower and the sculptor

Youth Slays

The Suffolk County district attorney's office said Saturday night a young man had admit-ted stabbing to death a mother and her two children after she resisted his advances. He was identified as Eugene Michael Harty, 22.

He lived next door to Mrs Margaret Patricia Skiffington, 30, who with her two children, Maurine, 8, and Robert Jr., 5, were found hacked to death in their small ranch house in this Long Island community.

WILLIAM COLEMAN, the district attorney's zone chief here, said Harty gave this account of the slaying:

He, his parents and Mrs. Skiffington were in a bar together Friday night and re-turned to their homes early Sat-urday, He lived at 61 Doolittle st. and Mrs. Skiffington at 59

Harty, who is unmarried, said he went to Mrs. Skiffington's house after his parents had fe-tired. He made advances, she rebuffed him and he picked up a knife and stabbed her five times in the left chest.

Harty's account said their struggle had made considerable noise which attracted the Skiffington children.

Coleman said Harty said he "had to kill them to keep them quiet" since they knew him.

Temblors Tremble Less When You're on Bedrock

By PAUL WALLACE

Build your house on bedrock and forget about earthquake damage.

This is the advice of the men who operate the Seismological Laboratory at Pasadena's California Institute of Technology—among the world's leading authorities on tremors, temblors and after-shocks.

Research by Dr. Beno Guten-berg and Dr. C. F. Richter has shown that the composition of the earth is an important factor in quake damage.

A deep layer of soft strata such as sand, clay and gravel can increase the damage from given shock manyfold, Dr Gutenberg says.

He estimates an area built n deep, soft material may get h to 10 times more shaking than another district, equally lose to a quake's epicenter, but

REP. CLEVELAND M. BAILEY, a West Virginia Democrat, calls President Dwight Eisenhower a "lousy liar." The only thing that need be said about such an insult was said by Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty: "Statements like that speak for themselves and the men who make them."

Bailey's outburst followed Mr. Eisenhower's refusal to accept blame for the defeat of the federal school-aid bill. The West Virginia Democrat and several others say it was all the President's fault. To which the President, if he were not more of a gentleman than his critics, might appropriately reply with Rep. Bailey's own words.

THE RESPONSIBILITY for the passage or the defeat of legislation lies not with the executive branch but with the legislative branch of government.

It is not the President's job to enter the corridors of Congress and lobby for or against a bill. If he did such a thing, the air would ring with the indignant cries of lawmakers defending their prerogatives. Congress has both authority and responsibility in the field of legislation.

As for the school bill, the fact is that Mr. Eisenhower has made his attitude perfectly clear about federal school aid. In January of 1956 he recommended a five-year school construction plan. Federal aid to education, he said, should not become an established principle; but, he added, the current emergency required a stop gap remedy.

Subsequently Congress got in a hot wrangle about the terms of the proposed legislation and killed it.

In January of this year Mr. Eisenhower again called on Congress to "act quickly" to provide a program of federal grants to help states build new schools.

CONGRESS DID NOT ACT quickly. The President on a number of occasions spoke up for school legislation, and even promised to sign the compromise bill which Eisenhower Republicans and liberal Democrats put together and which he felt was in many respects unsatisfactory. Early in July, by way of Vice President Nixon, he told the National Education Assn. that he hoped for "prompt" approval of federal aid for school construction.

It is true the President did not raise a political whip and order Congress to do its job. He is a Presidentnot a mule driver.

The President can go so far, then it is the work of Congress. He can recommend; they reject or accept. What happens in the Senate and the House of Representatives is the primary responsibility of Senators and Representatives. When a Congressman says otherwise, he's just trying to pass the buck.

DAVID LAWRENCE

It Must Be Heat or Political Humidity

WASHINGTON-It must be the heat or else the political humidity. For one day someone in Congress says President Eisenhower doesn't have "brains," and another day some other member says the President is "a lousy liar."

All this comes under the head of "free speech," but whether it's good manners and courtesy and upholds the dignity of Congress is something else again. It is true, of course, that the snipling is being done by the Democrats and that modern politics evidently knows no limits to the smear—it's all supposed to be within the rules of party warfare. But fortunately the public doesn't regard party zeal as permitting anyone to trans-cend the rules of gentlemanly conduct, especially in govern-mental affairs—and it may be doubted whether the people back home are proud of those representatives who engage in name-calling. It was the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt who once said that, as soon as name-calling starts, it is evident that the name-caller is devoi dof persuasive arguments and has begun to lose the debate.

Could Senators Do Better? impression that the President lacks integrity as well as fidelity to his office. At the press conference this week someone brought up a published story about Mr. Eisenhower having made a million dollars. He laughed this off and said that he would be glad to sell all his estate for that figure any time and would reap a big profit.

MAXWELL GLUCK

THEN THERE WAS the innuendo at the press conference repeating a senator's question in a Foreign Relations Committee hearing—that Mr. Eisenhower appoints 'ambassadors primarily because they have contributed to political campaign funds. This, of course, the President indignantly depied.

The fact is that all Presidents get recommendations for appointments, and, as a rule, the one thing nobody ventures to mention to a President is that a political campaign contribution should be rewarded.

The list of nominees who have gone to foreign-service posts under Democratic administrations after making notable contributions to Presidential campaign funds is very long indeed to mention only Joe Davies, Joe Kennedy and Perle Mesta. It would be a grave mistake to imply, however, that none of them proved able, for most of them have, and so also have the Republican appointees. Business experience is an asset in diplo-

AS FOR MAXWELL H. GLUCK, the new Ambassador to Ceylon—who, when questioned by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, couldn't remember offhand how to pronounce the name of the Prime Minister of Ceylon (S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike) or the full name of the Prime Minister of India (Jawaharial Nehru)—it is doubtful whether any test in pronunciation has ever before been required before approving the nomination of our ambassadors or ministers to posts abroad.

It could be, of course, that the Democrats are instituting a new reform and that after this they intend to be very meticulous about such things. One would naturally expect the test now to be applied to the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, if not indeed to membership itself on that august group. It might be the new rule that no Senator may qualify who cannot offhand recite and correctly pronounce the names of all the members of the polithuro in Moscow. Also, it might be urged that nobody can be chairman who can't reel off quickly the names of the secretaries of the treasury of each government to which America has made financial grants in the foreign-aid program in the last 10 years.

MR. DULLES is in London, it appears, to find a respect-able common position on which the West can stand and while the West German after the conference adjourns tions, There are at this point no signs that we are any nearer to an agreement with the Rus-evidence that LIPPMANN while the London talks have been going on, the positions taken publicly by both sides have become harder and less negotiable. Both sides seem to regard the existing military and diplomatic stalemate as mere acceptable and as less dangerous than a substantial negotiation.

One question which we are bound to ask ourselves is why we are disappointed. Did we ever have any right to hope that what has always failed before — namely, world dis-armament by international agreement—had some chance of succeeding now? Men of experience, all the old hands in diplomacy, have known as a matter of course that nations engaged in a cold wer will not disarm themselves. Why then, could so many of them have taken seriously what has been going on in the London talks?

Some, no doubt, have taken it seriously because they have been determined that if or when the disarmament talks fail, the blame would not fall fair, and on them.

BUT THERE has been another and a more interesting reason. It derives from the act that modern armaments have reached a size and a destructiveness which makes them intolerable and incalculable. The race of armaments is so swift that weapons are obsolescent about as soon as they come into mass production. The result, on the one hand, is that no one really knows what is a safe limit on the expenditures for armaments, and the military budget is really a kind of blind wager with the national security. On the other hand, in the military establishment there is no stable strategical doctrine by which the services are bound to act together.

the second World War, it has not been foolish to think that an agreement on araments be possible. There is no doubt that both in Moscow and in Washington there are men in high places who feel, as does President Eisenhower. that modern war can no longer be a rational and effective instrument of any political policy. What we are seeing, however, is that there is a great difference between a tactic understanding, such as has existed since the summit meeting at Geneva, and an open, formal agreement in cold print. is possible to have a tacit understanding that nuclear war is intolerable. But when we reach beyond that for a treaty to spell this out, every separate interest concerned with every unsettled issue rises up to block it. As these issues cannot within the foresceable future be settled, as so many of these interests involved are irreconcilable, the real choice is this: shall we keep the tacit understanding but without a treaty, or shall we risk a breakdown of the tacit understanding in the

Billboard Bill Being Prepared for Burial?

WASHINGTON-The billboard bill to keep unsightly signboards off the new federal highways will be quietly buried in the Senate Public Works Committee-if certain senators can get away with it. When Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, a supporter of the Neuberger billboard bill, asked New Mexico to report the hill to the full committee, Chavez stalled "Now, boys,"

"I think the thing to do is to hold hearings during the congressional recess in about four cities around the country, to test sentiment on this matter. It would be a nice trip for you, too."

"Mr. Chairman," bristled Gore, "we've held thorough and exhaustive hearings on this bill—the most thorough hearings on any measure be-fore our subcommittee. Every person on either side of the issue has had a full chance to be heard. The hearings went on for many weeks. They drew people from all over the country. I don't intend to hold another day of hearings on this bill. The time has come to bring it before the Senate for action."

SENATOR Neuberger, the 44-year-old Oregon Democrat who is author of the bill, re minded Chavez that the rights-of-way for the new highways already are being surveyed in many states.

warned. "it will be too late because the signs will be erected and 'grandfather rights' will be claimed by the big outdoor advertising companies.'

Knight Warns, Knowland Scoffs About Party Peril in '58 Battle

GOV. KNIGHT'S latest pronouncement on the dangers of a major quarrel in the Cali-fornia GOP was so emphatic it almost suggests that the Governor, himself, might step aside to prevent such a "tragedy."

That is, of course, put-ting an extreme and probably unwarranted interpretation on the Governor's remarks last week to the northern division of the California Federation of Republican Women, All signs indicate Gov. Knight expects to run again, and presumably he intends to convey the thought that if he and Sen. W. F. Knowland should get into a damaging (for the GOP) 1958 primary fight, it will be

But the Governor made it plain in his talk to the ladies that he thinks such a struggle should be avoided, at all costs. So there remains the possibility, extremely remote, that, if Knowland declares for the of-Knight might find something to do other than running for reelection.

NO LESS than ten times in his speech, Gov. Knight told of the importance of unity and the hazards of a party quarrel. For ex-

. . we should not dissipate our strength in family quarrels, for the enemy is at the gate ready to do battle."

"The Republican Party in California is in no better position to go into the 1958 general election campaign beset by party splits and disunity than it was 20 years ago (when it lost the governorship.) ... we cannot expect to attract sympathetic outside support or converts to our cause if we present a divided, confused and conflicting front, This is plain talk but you know that it is the truth."

"We must forego the luxury of angry dissension . . . ."
"The dangers inherent in division in our midst must be as apparent to you as they are to me."

"It is up to us to work together with the most vigorous effort possible, putting aside any differences which might momentarily divide us, and to reconcile personal ambitions in the common interest of Republican victory."

Whose personal ambition should be "reconciled"? No doubt the Governor is

But if Knowland's won't "reconcile", must another person make the sacrifice? Here is an interesting angle for speculation as Republicans continue to worry about the possi-bilities of a knock-down battle in next year's GOP primary, and to "dream up" ways by which such a thing might be averted.

While Gov. Knight continues to warn of the risks of an intraparty fight, the Knowland camp is taking exactly the opposite view. It is reported Knowland aides are compiling some case histories to show that party organizations in some states have been strengthened, rather than weakened, by vigorous intraparty contests. THE POSSIBILITY that Knowland will run for the governorship came closer and closer to a probability in the last week. Early in the week Newsweek Magazine came out with a cover story on Knowland. stating flatly that he is preparing to run for the presidency and is quitting the Senate to run for Governor because governors often become presidents, Senators almost never attain that office.

Newsweek quoted Mrs. Knowland to the effect that she feels positive the Senator will run for governor, Newsweek must have had access to family confidences, because it quotes a letter to her mother on that very subject—a letter which Sen, Knowland read and mailed for her, Quite obviously, the Knowlands didn't mind Newsweek's virtually flat assertion the Senator will run for Governor,

Another development was an announcement from Sen. Knowland's office that he probably make his long-awaited al declaration on his intentions some time in late September or early October. This would follow a statewide speaking which includes an appearance as ipal speaker at a meeting of the Caliprincipal speaker at a meeting of the Cali-fornia Republican Assembly in Long Beach

Ostensibly, the tour is to test the mood of the state's voters. Ordinarily, politicians on such projects get whatever results they're hoping to get. So there appears little doubt as to what the decision will be.

RIGHT NOW, the odds strongly favor a Knight-Knowland battle in the 1958 primary. But until the battle lines are irrevocably drawn, there will be hope—and a possibility—that somehow the painful contest can be avoided.

Camping in the wilds—even Usuch tame wilds as the Yosemite Park tent city—has its terrors for vacationing residents of this super-settled region, especially for little girls.

And so today's vacation note Anu so today's vacation note is about Jacki, 5-year-old daughter of the Bernard Hughes of 2061 Gondar Ave. in L.B., who takes a dim view of the sleeping accommodations in the famed park.

As the bell boy directed the Hughes to their tent hut he instructed them not to take any fruit or food in with them because it might invite a furry friend.

This little remark sank deeply into the minds of the Hughes' three little girls. One wouldn't sleep on the bed close to the door, another crawled ir with her father, and the other moved her bed next to her mother's.

Just before she went to sleep, Jacki, obviously trying to cover her fear with mock bravery, said: "Well, monimy, maybe tonight I'll get a bear hug."

I'VE BEEN to a lot of ceremonial openings—from open-ings of immense dams to hamburger huts-but Friday night I attended my first one at a

And it was quite a happy affair out at Station 13, at 25th and Adriatic on Long Beach's west side, to which I was in-vited by Fire Chief Frank

It was attended by numerous city officials, a lot of firemen, Chamber of Commerce people, and residents of the surrounding area who are protected by the two-company station. Also, there was on display a lot more fire equipment than could be crowded into the station, brought there for the special occasion. The visitors looked things over, talked to the firemen, and had coffee and cake. Secmed like a fine idea.

Firemen said they weren't the least bit superstitious about serving at Station 13—in fact. Station 13 has been operating in that neighborhood for 15 or years, and has had good

I wasn't quite sure whether that meant there hadn't been many fires, or there had been a lot of them to make a fireman's life interesting. But apparently, there have been no

THE OLD STATION, now I vacated, is just a block away, at 26th and Sante Fe, but it won't be there long.

It's to be cut into two or three pieces and moved bodily town to the Pistol Range, in the extreme northeastern section of the city.

That'll help fill a serious protection gap out that way.

CAPTAIN on the day shift at Station 13 is Kenneth Hoffman, who is 6 feet, 412 inches

That puts him up there a little higher than the gangling Chief Sandeman, who is 6

They measured, back to back, and that reminded City Mgr. Sam Vickers of the Chief Sandeman came in, 10 years or so ago, to ask for a new hook and ladder truck.

Vickers knew the budget wouldn't stand it. So he looked up at the towering fire boss and said that with a chief that tail, the city shouldn't have to have a hook and ladder truck. Sandeman went out of the office, mumbling to himself.

THIS DEPT. doesn't want to L become a baby-sitter exchange, but without setting a precedent, I'm going to tell about a woman who is looking for a special baby-sitter deal.

Her predicament is that she wants to pursue her education at a local college, but has the problem of caring for her two children while she's at classes.

So, she's wondering if there may be some other local mother facing exactly the same problem. If so, they might strike up an arrangement whereby they can attend classes at separate times, each taking care of the other's children while the mother is in class.

In the cause of education, I'm willing to act as a go-between. If anybody is interested, write this dept. and I'll send the letter along.

THAT'S IT for B-C on the first day of a new week which, let's hope, will be cool, smogless and full of all sorts of interesting and amusing happenings to add to the pleasure of deep summer living.

By GEORGE WEEKS

Since the publication in the June 23 Independent, Press-Telegram of an article on bootleg building in Long Beach there has been a substantial increase in the number of ap-plications for permits for small projects, Superintendent Edward M. O'Connor of the City Building Dept. re-ported Saturday.

The gain has taken up part of the slack in valuation caused by a decline in larger building projects in recent

A corresponding increase has been noted in the number of inquiries about electrical, plumbing and building regulations, particularly as to the circumstances under which city building permits are required, O'Connor added.

ALSO AUTHORIZED without permit are the following: Reinstallation of attachment plug receptacles-but not the Repair or replacement of any overcurrent device or lamp holder of the same rating and in the same location.

Repair or replacement of electrodes or transformers for signs or marquees.

Repair or replacement of cords or cables or cord pendants allowed by other sections of the code.

Taping of joints. Removal of electrical wiring.

Any similar minor repair or replacement determined by the chief electrical inspector not to involve any hazard to life or property.

THE EXEMPTIONS are not to be construed as allowing any electrical wiring to be done by unauthorized or un-licensed persons..

Permits are definitely required for even such relatively minor jobs as the installation of garbage disposals and electric water heaters. Under the new code, a $10 investigation fee is charged in cases where electrical work has been done without a required permit.

'It is therefore economical to the owner to see that the necessary permits are obtained and inspections made, said O'Connor.

"In most cases where the electrical division discovers illegal installations, the work has been done in a hazardous manner, and in some instances fire has resulted.

"In other cases illegal installations have set up conditions where occupants are apt to become electrocuted.

"Some electrical systems are overloaded through the addition of new appliances. Owners or occupants have foolishly put pennies in fuse receptacles."

ANOTHER PROBLEM has arisen with the increase in air-conditioning equipment. Only the extremely small units can be safely plugged into exist-ing floor circuits. Those of any larger size will cause overloading.

Many other illegal installations involve lamp cords that are strung about the floors or partitions of dwellings. The electrical regulations permit only a six-foot extension to portable appliances. All portable electrical equipment installed outdoors should be protected by a three-wire grounded-type receptacle.

Building officials strongly recommend that, in letting a contract for electrical work, the owner make certain that contractor is licensed, qualified and will take out required permits calling for city

Councilman Favors Night Golfing, Too By HARRY FULTON

Councilman D. Pat Ahern Saturday urged Long Beach to light up its beach and golf courses during warm summer evenings to provide additional recrea-tional outlets for Southern California residents.

He called for installation of lights all along the shoreline from the harbor district to the Alamitos Bay entrance jetties, and he contended that such a project not only would "pay for itself" but "prove to be the best summertime business-getter this city has ever had."

Ahern said he will outline his proposal to the City Council on Tuesday and at the same time urge local representatives in the state assembly to work for release of tideland oil funds to assist with the beach development program.

"WE BRAG ABOUT our weather, but we show no confidence in it because we do not plan enough evening and night recreation," said Ahern, plugging for his beach lighting proposal. "We have one of the golden assets of our country in our beach; yet, come shade of night, we throw it out of our thinking except for the neon-lit amusement rides at the pleasure parks along our coastline.

"We forget that the waves keep pounding against the sand all night long with the same health-giving rapidity that they do in the sunlight. We let one of our prime assets literally obliterate itself at sundown; yet millions of people, unable to get here in the daytime, could reach the beach at night in only a few minutes time.'

THE CITY COUNCILMAN proposed that the west beach area be lighted primarily for water skiing and small boat activity and that the rest of the strand be illuminated for bathing.

He said "there is no reason why we could not, with proper spacing of light pillars and with direct beam lights out into the water and pan floodlights back to the sand, make our beach have a continuous day." He suggested leaving the beach lights on until 11 p.m. or midnight, saying "this will make it possible for recreation and business to thrive about 16 hours a day." He urged night lighting for existing municipal golf courses and the new Skylinks course at Municipal Airport, now being built, as "a boon to those who work in the daytime and must seek recreation at night."

Ahern believes that batteries of lights on poles spaced about 150 feet apart would provide necessary illumination for night beach recreation. He said these poles should be sturdy enough to support glass enclosed lifeguard stations.

AHERN'S PLAN calls for installation of concessions and metered parking all along the beach, and he said revenue from these sources would take care of the cost of lighting. He said he would advocate an increase in the county's allotment for local lifeguard service inasmuch as people from all parts of Los Angeles County would benefit from the lighted beach.

As a "business-getter," Ahern described his concept of night beach development as "the greatest stimulus to the downtown section ever concocted since Pine Ave. was a pup.'

He said that nearly all night-time swimmers would make some expenditure of money while in Long Beach, and he predicted that many women would form the habit of shopping in downtown Long Beach Friday nights while their families swim in the ocean.

THE COUNCILMAN described the local surf as "most excellent' for evening bathing. Checks with lifeguards, he said, reveal that a slight breeze which arrives around 4:30 p. m. daily in the summertime departs about 6 p. m. creating pleasurable conditions for night swimming.

Ahern, who played in the first night softball game ever played in Southern California-in Pomona in the 1920s-said California has lacked "real development" in evening recreation under the lights. "We have forgotten the lesson taught us during World War. II when we planned recreation on a 'round-the-clock basis for three shifts of workers employed in wartime industry," said the councilman, who was recreation director for Western Pipe & Steel, a shipyard employing upwards of 16,000 during the

"I predict that within 20 years that confidence in our wonderful Southern California weather, plus daytime overcrowding of our beaches, will open this new avenue of lighted beach recreation all along the coast.

10,000 Due to View Rare Stamp Exhibit

Thousands of rare stampstelling picture stories of history government, music and romand —will be on public display this week as 2,000 delegates of the Society of Philatelic Americans hold their 63rd annual international convention here.

It marks the first time that the international stamp collectors' convention has been held in Long Beach, and the first time in Southern California since 1932.

Mrs. Emily Moorefield, member of the hosting Long Beach Stamp Collectors' Club, Inc., and general chairman of convention, estimated that 10,-000 persons would visit the four-day exhibit.

HUGGED BY SUBSIDENCE Big Squeeze Hits Bridge

Harbor Department engineers are fighting a continuous battle to keep a vital link to busy Terminal Island in operation.

Subsidence, that familiar villain, is putting the squeeze on one of the highest vertical lift bridges in the United States, the Commodore Heim Bridge over the Cerritos Channel.

'Horizontal ground move-ment accompanying vertical sinking is inexorably compressing the huge structure.

The bridge's two 230-foot towers, housing the mechan-ism which raises the 840-ton lift span, have moved a foot toward each other.

SINCE 1946, the bridge's approaches on each side have shortened about 2½ feet. All expansion joints in the girder spans are closed except one, Where 1½ inches clearance

Sugar Chile Digs All That Medical Jazz

ELBOWS, FISTS, anything went when Sugar Chile Robinson at 7 perched on a stool to wham out boogie-woogie.

OLIVET, Mich. UP.—His schoolmates at tiny Olivet College know him as Frank Isaac Robinson—a little fellow with an engaging grin who wants to be a doctor.

You'll remember him as Sugar Chile Robinson—a boogie-woogie scat-singing child prodigy. These days, a 17-year-old Negro pre-med student, he is happy with an occasional jam session.

"Sugar Chile is gone," says Frank. "I want to come back as Dr. Frank Robinson."

He stands an excellent chance of accomplishing his goal. A modest, alert youth, he appears to have profited from all the advantages of fame without succumbing to

Sugar Chile could read at 2. At 6 he was an accomplished, if unorthodox planist.

Name musicians of the immediate post war years remember the amazing Sugar Chile who at 6 was banging out barrel house jazz in some of the classlest gin mills and vaudeville circuits in America and Europe.

BEFORE HE RETIRED at 15, he made $10,000 a week. He played at Madison Square Garden, was the youngest headliner in the history of the Palladium in London.

"Playing for President Truman when I was 6 was the biggest thrill in my life," Frank says.
"I was playing like everything. I shouted, 'How'm I doin'. Mr. President?' and just then one of the piano legs broke.

"Well, the President laughed, so I got down on the floor and finished playing on my knees."

One thing about Frank hasn't changed much. He was small when a youngster and even today is only 4 feet 8 inches tall and weighs less than 100 pounds.

Besides his pre-med course, Frank is studying the piano formally.
"It's strange," he says, "but after making a good living at it for a dozen years, I'm finally learning how to read music."

Third World Lutheranism Assembly Set

World Lutheranism assembles hundreds of its most distinguished figures here next week for a probing and perhaps nerve-touching examination of the church's role in Christendom.

For 10 days starting Thursday churchmen of the world's biggest Protestant denomination will raise and try to answer pivotal questions that go to the core of the modern church's mission.

They will debate subtle theological points. But they also intend to come to grips with such hard issues as how should the church deal with communism, colonialism, national policies and what it should do about healing rifts between various Lutheran bodies.

The giant third assembly of the Lutheran World Federation will draw some 275 official dele-PEACHY NEW AMECHE gates from 57 church bodies representing about 50 million of the world's 70 million Lutherans. Joining them will be nearly 500 official visitors, observers from member and non-member church bodies, and thousands of specta-

"Officials of the assembly's advance guard here expressed fears that refugees from Iron Curtain countries now living in Minne-apolis and neighboring St. Paul might demonstrate against the Eastern Europe delegates,

Some Lutheran leaders themselves are represented as feeling it is a mistake to accept delegates from Red-dominated lands, and that churches in those countries are not free,

Taking the other view is stocky, plain-speaking Bishop Hanns Lilje of Hannover, Ger-many, the federation president who 12 years ago was liberated from the Nazi hangman by American troops.

"WE WILL NOT be fooled," he said. "If there is a man who is just a servant of the other system (atheism) and who does not really care for Christianity, we would soon find hîm out."

The Lutheran Church, he said, takes the view that "the shep-herd must stay with his flock" takes the view that "the shepherd must stay with his flock" and ministers serving congregations in Eastern Europe must

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Billy Muffett, making his first major league appearance, twirled four scoreless innings of relief as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia Saturday 3-1. The victory went to $50,000 bonus baby Von McDaniel.

The victory meant the Cards rabbed a one-game lead over Milwaukee in the torrid Na tional League race. The imph was the streaking Redoirds' eighth in a row.

The win was McDaniel's, alhough he was lifted for a! plnch-hitter in the fifth inning when the Cards scored twice, after trailing 1-0.

McDaniel has now won six of ight decisions. Robin Roberts. ho won his last two starts, was tagged with the defeat, He is now 8-14.

In the fifth Don Blasingame doubled down the left field line with one out and scored the tying run as Alvin Dark sin-gled for his third straight hit

ED BOUCHEE fielded Stan Musial's high hopper, stepped on first for the out, but then threw wide trying to get Dark at econd. Dark made it to third on the miscue.

Then Joe Cunningham, one of he hottest clutch hitters in the majors at present, drove in Dark with a single to left. The Cardinals added an insurance run in the eight inning. Wally Moon walked against reliever Dick Farrell and darted home as Ken Boyer banged a double to center.

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (Special)—Canadian Cliff Lumsden won the first Owen Sound international 15-mile marathon swim Saturday but it was a woman, Greta Andersen of Long Beach, who won the plaudits of the huge finish-line crowd as she finished second, just five seconds ahead of Tom Park of Lakewood.

Lumsden, who defeated Park by inches in last year's Atlantic City Steel Pier swim, was timed in six hours, 23 minutes, some 20 minutes better than Miss Andersen's and Park's time. All three swimmers bettered the existing men's world record of 7:20 for 15 miles.

Miss Andersen and Park fought a tremendous duel and Park was overtaken just 10 yards from the finish. Miss Andersen won $1,500 for second place and $2,000 for first place among the women. Park received $750. Due to unfavorable wind conditions, the swim was conincted over a five-mile course once and then 20 tours of a half-mile course within the Owen Sound Harbor.

The race, which is to become an annual affair, replaced

CHICAGO (P) - The College, game at Soldier Field Friday

If the ambitious collegians, try to master the masters the pro champion New York Giants, in the 24th annual All-Star grid League title team, it will mark only the eighth All-Star victory in the colorful series. The pros have won 14 games, and two ties were played.

The game will be televised via KABC (7) beginning at 6:30 p.m., PDT.
This will mark the third year that the grooming of the hand-picked collegiate squad has been entrusted to a staff of pro-trained coaches, headed by E. L. (Curly) Lambeau.

THE 1955 ALL-STAR team handled by Lambeau, who founded and coached the Green Bay Packers and was head coach for the Chicago Cardinals and Washington Redskins, spilled the Cleveland Browns, 30-27 Last year's Lambeau unit los to the Browns, 26-0.

But the 1956 All-Stars were weakened considerably when quarterback Earl Morrall of Michigan State was injured on the fifth play of the game and his replacements failed to display the tricky Spartan's skill. # Big Ten Tenders Attract 600 of 700 Prospects prospects to outside recruiting.

CHICAGO (P)—Big Ten schools offered a total of about 700 tenders under the new financial aid to athletes plan and there were approximately 600 acceptances. An Associated They show that the conference lost about 100 high school

This number, however, could be reduced, for the 100 tenders of aid turned down could have been from athletes sig-nifying their intentions at more than one Big Ten school. This is a common procedure. But although the conference may have lost as many as 100 prospects, assistant commissioner Bill Reed said this num-

Ed Schmidt Rushes to Victory

DEL MAR-Elobee Farm's Eddie Schmidt squirted out of a pack of horses going around the second turn and bull-dogged his way to a popular length and 🧸 quarter victory over Gigantic in the $22,550 San Diego Handicap Saturday before a jam-packed erowd of 20.181.

Eddie Schmid) and his runs ning mate, Noredski, wen! postvard as the even-money favorites of the big throng, but It appeared there was an upset in the making as first Miss Todd made a big move going into the far turn, then Gigantic moved into the lead and then for a moment it looked like Lover Boy's belated rush would get the job done.

But there was no catching Eddie Schmidt, once he got into high gear. Early in the race he trailed along in seventh and eighth places in the ten-horse field while his pal, Noredski, was killing off the front-runners with a potent early pace.

GOING INTO the far turn, Miss Todd and Gigantic both moved up fast, and Gigantic continued on to gain the lead in the stretch while Miss Todd suddenly stopped. It was later explained that she popped a stifle and apparently will be out of action for some time. Three parts of a length back of Gigantic, in third place, was Pirnie. Eddie Schmidt paid $4.20, $2.90 and $2.60. The victory completed a riding double for Milo Valenzuela. who also scored≪vith Bullarezzo in the second race. He now holds a 14 to 12 lead over Ray York in the jockey standings.

SIMCA HERE

WORLD OF WHEELS James Center Now Dealer for Simca

By ART STEPHAN Independent. Press-Telegram Auto Editor

Paris comes to Long Beach with the announcement by Bob James that James Motor Center has been appointed as the Sim ca dealer for the Harbor Area

"My father and I were impressed by the ever-growing interest in foreign-built cars in Southern California. Last year one out of every 19 new cars sold in Los Angeles County was imported." James, remarked.

"We have building plans un-der way to develop Jamestown at 1350 American Ave. into a block-long international salor where many makes of imported automobiles can be compared, side by side. In the top price bracket, we represent the Ger man-built Mercedes-Benz and the British-huilt Jaguar. In the lowest price bracket, we are proud to add the complete Simca line, produced by the leading car maker in France.

"SIMCA WON world renow for its fine engineering and Parision styling. Last year the huge Simca plants built more than a third of a million cars, chiefly for export. Plans call for stepped up production to meet the increasing demand in this country for a car that combines American roominess and lively performance—plus European operating economy.
"The 1957 Simco models include a 50-horsepower in-line 4 that cruises at 70 miles per hour yet gives more than 30 miles per gallon in congested traffic. De-livered prices on these Aronde models start at $1,820. We are also displaying the 85-horse power Simca V-8, the most lux-urious car built in France. These new V-8 Vedettes deliver for $2,278.

"We believe car makers abroad, free from the inevitable limitations demanded by mass production, build personal cars that put pleasure back into fam ily motoring while greatly re ducing the yearly cost of family transportation," concluded

GMC TRUCK TO RESCUE-I think a few paragraphs are not amiss to say thank you to Dick Wood of General Motor Truck Sales of 2699 Atlantic Ave. Dick came through in hurry last week when at the iinute a big truck wa needed to transport props and equipment in connnection with the Soap Box Derby.

The Derby is sponsored annually by this newspaper and the Chevrolet dealers of the area and when two of the paper's trucks went out of commission at the last minute, a hurry-up phone call to Dick Wood, gen-eral manager of the GMC truck firm solved the dilemma.

Woods loaned us one of GM's big jobs that carried the boys racers back up the hill after trial runs and performed as a general work horse in transporting Derby equipment.

Thanks, Dick, the coopera tion is appreciated.

- VEHICLES OVER BRIDGE
-A total of 16,531,562 vehicles passed over the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge during the first six months of this year, according to the National Automobile Club.

80 TIMES AROUND-Around the world 80 times could well be the theme song of engineers at Cadillac Motor Car Division.

During the past 12 months Cadillac engineers have recorded enough test miles—2,008,000—to circle the globe slightly over 80 times.

Test mileage is accrued in two ways: on the highways and in the laboratory, with nearly two miles of actual highway driving being done to every one mile in the laboratory.

"Those laboratory test miles are legitimate test miles, though", says C. F. Arnold, Cadillac's chief engineer. "We actually hook up instruments when a car is being laboratory tested to give us accurate mile age.

Winning Recipes in Cook Book Edition

A hand-picked collection of favorite recipes, timetested and often borrowed, set to a modern tempo, will form the Independent, Press-Telegram's Cook Book Edition Sept. 1. Women from the Southland have submitted these recipes which will be judged Aug. 12 by a panel of five home economists, following the selection of three recipes from a classification of 30, by leading women's organizations in Long Beach.

Mrs. Herman H. Ridder, wife of this paper's publisher, was hostess at a tea several weeks ago for lisher, was hostess at a tea several weeks ago for representatives of women's clubs, when they were instructed in their official contest duties. From the selection of winners will be a grand prize winner, and all winners will be included, along with the entrants' names and addresses, in the Cook Book Edition. At the close of the competition Wednesday evening, Mildred Flanary, Cook Book Contest Editor, said that many thousands of recipes have been received and judging them will be a major endeavor for the home economists.

PRIZES WILL BE awarded in the following cate-

Appetizers, beverages, cakes, candy and nuts, canning and preserving, casseroles, cookies, dairy foods, desserts (other than pies or cakes), dietetic dishes, dishes made with wine or beer, eggs, foreign recipes, game cookery, hot breads, icing, fillings and dessert sauces, leftovers, macaroni, rice and spaghetti, meats, pies, poultry, refrigerator dishes, salads, salad dressings, sandwiches, meat sauces, seafoods, soups, vegetables, waffles, hot cakes and fritters.

New York in Summer Friends Bidden

By ILKA CHASE

Although I would not go along with the Cham-ber of Commerce or the Mayor's Committee in considering my home town a summer resort, from the point of view of a native there is a good deal to be said for New York in July and August. In the first place despite the often oppressive heat you can begin to breathe a little. There is less tension in the town and fewer people.

With the exception of Friday afternoons when it is worth your life to try to get over the bridges and through the tunnels due to the press of citizens taking to the hills and beaches, the city streets are almost navigable. A taxi can actually make a light and sometimes in streets where parking is allowed there's place to do it! In the shops, although they are reasonably busy, it is possible to find a saleswoman who doesn't stare down her nose you and remark loftily, "This is not my department,

SOCIAL LIFE is a delight. You can call up friends at the last minute and often find them free for dinner-a rare occurrence in the winter time. Then, too, the restaurants seem more fun. Some of the pets, of course, are closed, necessitating a good deal of telephoning to find one that is doing business, but when you get there the waiters are almost pleased to see you. It's the weather I think, the general sense of relaxation, rather than lack of trade because the places that are open do a land-office business. We dined at "21" the other night, late, too, around nine o'clock after my television show and it was packed.

My dear Chateaubriand is closed but the boeuf a la mode en gelee and the smoked trout are still holding open house at the Baroque and the Vichyssoise at the Colony still slips down, a cool creamy blessing.

In back of many of the small Italian and French res-taurants the gardens are open and eating a good casserole into which you dunk crusty French bread and wash it down with a chilled Rose is the nearest thing to being in Europe.

WHAT I DO miss are the roofs. Possibly I don't go to the right hotels, there may be more than I know about, but I think all adult New Yorkers, as long as they live, will miss the old Ritz roof and the hotel's Japanese garden in summer and its grill for win-

has, but I haven't been there in quite a spell. Not, in fact, since an occasion many a long evening ago when I went accompanied by the gentleman with whom, at the time, I was "walking out," For reasons of our own, we preferred to keep our tender emotions to ourselves.

It was a hot summer evening and "the Pennsylvania Roof will be great" said he. "Not a soul we know goes there." We stepped from the elevator and rounded the corner. There was a row of small tables for two and at the first three tables were couples we knew well. Possibly the look I gave him was unflattering because shortly after that our own romance broke up.

SINCE FEW theaters are open in the summer and since they house hits that most native New Yorkers have already seen, there is a good chance to eatch up on movies. I, at last, have seen the French picture, "The Red Balloon," and appoint myself along with practically every other customer an enthusi-astic drum beater. It is a film of pure enchantment.

If you don't want to stay indoors on a beautiful moonlit evening you can circle the island of Manhattan by boat and gaze upon New York at night, one of the great sights of the twentieth century, although personally I consider the spectacle even more spectacular in the winter. When the sky is cold lavender at twilight and the great tow-ers around Central Park are blossoming into light - the naked branches of the trees etched against them-that is a sight for which I shall be nostalgic, even in a better

to Luau Brunch

Tapa cloth folders bidding their recipients to "come linger awhile at Cole's Aloha House" have been received by more than 100 friends of Mrs. James Nickelson and Mrs. Orville Cole who will entertain at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday with a luau brunch at the Cole home, 268 Granada Ave.

Hawaiian dress is mandatory for the day's guests who will relax at outdoor tables amid the tropical atmosphere of the garden. An arrange-ment of anthurium, flown in from Hawaii, will grace the table, but focal point in decor will be the swimming pool.
"Aloha Island"—complete with

"Aloha Island"....complete with palm trees, will float on the pool and will be setting for authentic dances by Val Moore's troupe.

Oil Women Set Meet in Chicago

Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs of North America will have as their main speakers at their Sixth Annual National Convention at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago Aug. 30-31, Robert L. Minckler, president of General Petroleum Corpora-tion, and Keith Fanshier, president and publisher of the 'Oil Daily."

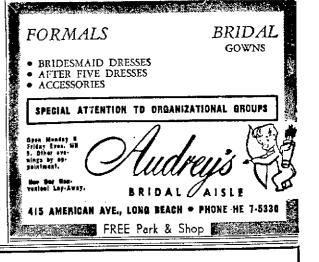

Fanshier had the vision and courage to publish a national daily newspaper devoted to petroleum and his editorials are quoted in Washington, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Minckier is best known for his leadership on the west coast. His experience has covcred a wide field in transportation, electric power, petroleum and government.

Lady Lions to Stage Annual Luau Saturday

Enthusiastic preparations are under way by members of West Long Beach Lady Lions for their annual Luau and Aloha Party, set for Aug. 10. The lanai, patic and extensive gardens of the Hayden Bolander residence, 4345 Linden Ave., will provide an enchanting tropical setting for this year's entertainment.

Softly lighted lanterns, flower leis, colorful Island costumes, native hula dancers swaying to bewitching melo-dies played by George Rocha and his Hawalian Paradise Boys, will set the mood for an evening of relaxed pleas-ure and entertainment and, barring a possible flight to the Islands on standing commitments the week of the Luau, George Kainapau, famous television and recording artist and guest artist on the "Hawaii Calls" program, will be on hand to sing.

On the barbecus patio, chicken and suckling pig will roast over charcoal broilers; the Aloha Mui boat filled with crushed ice will be studded with tropical salads. On the table next to the boat will be found every conceivable kind of tropical fruit—topped off with fresh pineapple and cocoanuts brought in for the Luau.

For those who prefer to go not quite so native there will be roast pork, chicken breasts, baked salmon, winesteamed albacore, savory rice, potato and elbow salad, served from long buffet tables by members of the club.

High and low tables, beautifully decorated with ti leaves and hibiscus flowers, will provide eating comfort. for the guests and members , and throughout the evening dancing under the stars to the haunting music of ukuleles and steel guitars promise to make this an occasion not soon to be forgotten.

Why Grow Old? Don't Let Details, Others Make You Forget Self

It can happen to you! Unless you take steps to avoid it you are almost certain to become trapped by the myriad details of daily living, by your responsibilities and what others expect of you.

You'll wonder what happencd to your plans for self improvement and self expression. What happened to the courses you wanted to study, the things you meant to do? What happened to the books you planned to read, the exercises you meant to take, the skin care you were going to give yourself? What happened to those pounds you were determined to lose?

It is admirable to take our responsibilities seriously and to be helpful to others, but we also owe ourselves something. We have an obligation to ourselves to take care of our health, to develop our personalities, to improve our looks, to have some time alone, to delay all the processes of deterioration for as long as possible.

NOTHING so graces the world or a home as a healthy, charming, levely looking woman. So in saving a little time for yourself you actually have more to give others. You have more in beauty and graciousness, in humor and self confidence. Even the most spar-kling personality can be dulled by fatigue and physical disability while a vibrant outlook builds health. All women want to remain attractive and even to improve on what nature gave them. It is just that they get into a rut of hurry and responsibil-

Guests arriving July 14 at 4125 Virginia Rd., home of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Kahler, for an afternoon tea were delighted with the surprise engagement announcement of their hosts' daughter, Nicoline Ann, to James Oakley Pittman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oakley H. Pittman of Dallas, Texas.

The betrothal news was first revealed to guests in the entry hall where white lace bells filled with pink lity of the valley and tied with pink satin bows bore the inscription, "Nikki and Jim."

On the grand plane in the living room a musical motif was employed. A bar from Grieg's "I Love Thee" was fashioned in silver sparkles, while miniature angels chorused the names of the engaged couple.

Tea was served in the dining room on a pink tulle and taffeta cloth trimmed in silver. A silver and pink musical floral arrangement graced the center. Pouring for the occasion were Mmes. Charles T. Smith, Stanley Maple and Mar-taken music lessons in youth know only too well that you never liked to practice and did it, at times, feeling the whole thing to be pointless. You could not see that you were one bit better after practice than before.

If you have been through this personally you'll have more patience with your young musician. If you merely have ambitions for him or her, this reluctance to practice in the face of your probable sacrifices to give him lessons will drive you to angry frus-

You can make a child practice but it is better to offer compromises and encouragement which help to make it bearable. Cut the periods to 10 conscientious minutes three times a day. Ten minutes is not long, but multiplied by three this adds up to the usual half hour daily of practice which music teachers demand.

SIT BY THE child and praise his progress. Assure him that if he goes over each phrase for 10 minutes carefully that when he next sits down he'll note the improve-ment. If he actually can see the results of practice, spending the time becomes easier.

Sometimes it helps if chil-dren will practice what they know with other children, one playing one instrument, the second another. This makes it enjoyable and highlights the pleasures of the future when a certain level of accomplishment has been reached.

Not every child is going to be a musical virtuoso. But even if a child never reaches the point at which he can entertain himself or others with his music, he can develop appreciation so that he enjoys the art of others.

The type of instrument chosen for the child may not he the one at which he will make the most progress. He may crave a flute or clarinet, but if there is a plane in the family he may be urged to learn to play that. It is well, in such a case, to rent the instrument the child feels an interest in, and see how long that interest lasts.

Boys and girls, like what you have because it is your own. Sometimes you see what another boy or girl has and immediately you are discon-tented. When this happens you are making a fundamental mistake. What you have at home, possessions of all sorts, is very likely what you should have because it fits into your scheme of life and suits you personally. If you had what the other person had you soon would discover that it did not make you as happy as you thought. That is because it really did not belong to you as an individual with position, tastes, money, needs. It be-longed to that other person at least physically.

THERE'S THE RUB. It is possible to own things and still not possess them because they do not belong to you personally. Before one can accept anything comfortably or feel at ease with it, one's mind and spirit has to accept it. That is why, when you wish you had something the other person had that you also had an uncomfortable feeling even thinking about it. Somehow it just didn't belong. Dr. Pike also attended preconvention meetings of the Board of Governors of the American Ostcopathic College of Anesthesiologists of which he is a member in his ca-pacity as president-elect of this college

Mrs. Pike, immediate past president of the Auxiliary to the California Osteopathic Assn. was elected to the office of director of the Auxiliary to the American Osteopathic Assn. for a three-year term. Her specific duty for the year 1957-58 will be to serve as National Students' Wives Counselor, which will entail visiting each of the six osteopathic colleges at least once during the year, to counsel with the officers and members of the Students' Wives auxiliaries at each institution. The colleges are located in Kansas City, Mo.; Des Moines, Ia.; Chicago, Ill.; Philadeiphia, Pa.; Kirksville, Mo., and Los Angeles.

The purpose of the auxiliaries is to enable those young women to work logether and learn what it means to be the wives of physicians, while their husbands are undergoing the five-year training period before they engage in private practice. The wives must learn to operate on a very limited budget and in the majority of cases provide the

Besides this many of them are rearing families. An exchange of ideas within the groups and a sense of working together and sharing problems in common has proved to be invaluable in helping them to weather this difficult period and prepare for their future life as doctors' wives. Each group has its local adviser who is either a senior auxiliary member or someone connected with the local college. This person counsels and assists on a local level and in a personal way, while the National Counselor aids in the exchange of ideas among the six students' wives auxiliaries It is her particular duty to help these young women learn to work together as auxiliaries to professional groups, so that by the time they and their husbands are located in a community this objective group endeavor is part of their thinking. With this background the transition from being students' wives to being the wives of practicing physicians becomes a much easier process.

Sigmund Spaeth, or "Sig", as we called him, was a music critic on the New York Evening Mail in New York City when I knew him. A graduate of Princeton and a violinist on the side, he was seen everywhere where music was to be heard. A big fellow, he had a very ingratiating manner. He loved his fellow-manunless there were more than three concerts to cover in one evening! I met him when I was a student in New York City. He took me to many concerts and introduced me to the best in music. For years he has been one of the regular members of the Metropolitan Opera

Quiz.
The following article was recently written by him and it has intrigued me. I wonder how my readers feel about it. 'Music started with rhythm in the jungle and now, after developing melody, harmony, tone color and form, it has come back to where it started. "THE SO-CALLED rock 'n' roll is nothing but rhythm of the most savage type, without melodic, harmonic or verbal interest of any kind.

Similarly, the experiments of John Cage, Edgar Varese and others have returned to the mere exploitation of percus-sive noises, with little or no formal significance and certainly no regard for the other elements generally considered essential to good music.

"This curious circle of development, starting and finishing with the most primitive expressions of the human urge toward beauty, has been paralleled in the other arts.

"Painting, after arriving at the perfection of Raphari, Michelangelo and Rembrandt, returned to the formless, un-skilled daubs that graced prehistoric caves, remarkable examples of instinctive self-expression, but certainly not models of craftsmanship.

"SCULPTURE has completed a similar cycle, with the Grecian masterpieces and the later inspirations of Rodin and others giving way to absurd masses of marble and clay.

"Literature passed over the peaks of Shakespeare and Milton to arrive at Gertrude Stein and James Joyce.

There seems to be a law of nature in this inevitable curve toward universally rec-ognizable beauty, followed by an equally inevitable descent to artistic illiteracy. In music it is perhaps more obvious than in any other art.

"THERE WAS enormous progress in the mere discovery of the octave by Pythagoras, the gradual addition of other intervals to complete the scale, the development of harmony from the crude "organum" of the Middle Ages to the complexities of Debussy and Richard Strauss, the elaberation of instrumental effects to the overwhelming climaxes of Richard Wagner. "Then came the scarcely perceptible disintegration of all these factors, including the formal techniques of Mozart. Beethoven and Brahms, until we arrived once more at meaningless ugliness and the final primitive, physical stimulus of rhythm itself. That is the history of art, and par-ticularly of music, in a nut-

Never Dark

By custom, museums throughout the country slack off during the summer months, mainly because of their locations in the heart of simmering metropolitan cities. However, the situation is quite the re-verse with the Long Beach Museum of Art, since it is part of an all-year city that is also heavily populated resort in the vacation months.

GSTAAD, Switzerland-This small Swiss town situated between Interlaken and Montreux will hold one of the major music events of the year Aug. 4 and 6 as a result of an agreement between two world famous musicians to

Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Gene Morgan, who were married July 14 in College Park Church of God, will reside in Wiesbaden, Germany. After a honeymoon spent at Yosemite, the bridegroom left for assignment with the U. S. Air Force in Germany where his bride will join him early in November. She is the former Guilene Schnurr, daugh-ter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Schnurr of Lake-wood. His parents are the Ivor G. Morgans of San Diego, previously of Long Beach. FOR HER WEDDING the bride wore a gown of white embroidered nylon, styled with a flowing train. A pill box of lace, trimmed with iridescent sequins, fastened her delicate veil of illusion. Two white orchids centered her houquet, a cascade of stephano-tis and lilies of the valley.

Maid of honor Patricia Ann Taylor was gowned in white nylon over lavender taffeta. Her hat of matching lavender velvet and net was trimmed with seed pearls and she carried a casecade arrangement of white carnations with pink rosebuds.

Bridesmaids were Sally Ward, Helen Schuck, Ida Lee Fox and Fran Mansuy. Two wore white nylon over mauve taffeta and two ere gowned in white nylon over violet.
Others in the wedding party were Veries D.

Aladdin Was a Piker!

By Vera Williams

DOOR ALADDIN!-all he had was a lamp and a genii to get him whisshih! from wherever he was to wherever he wanted to go.

Think of the fun he missed en route.

To see the country and to see it cheaply is the purpose of American Youth Hostels, Inc., which has a thriving Long Beach branch of 50 members, aged 14 to 62.

Moving spirit is red-headed, freckled, 23-year-old Ken Mayes, 3860 Pacific Ave., who when he isn't heading bicyclists, hikers and skiers, works as a salesman in the housewares department at May Co.

THE LONG BEACH group, which organized in World War II and sort of petered out in the Korean War, has been reactivated in the past year, according to Mayes, regional chairman. The local organization is under the Los Angeles Council headquartes, 332 S. Western Ave., Los Angeles, The Recreation Commission oids the local group in arranging for trips.

To date the local Hostelers have gone to Griffith Park and the Planetarium, Joshua Tree National Forest, Huntington Library, Malibu, San Diego, Arrowhead, Mount Whitney, Santa Catalina Island, Yosemite and Mexico. They spent last Christmas near Ensenada, camping out under the stars, cooking over a beach camp fire. A few have joined other Hostelers on trips to Europe. on trips to Europe.

AMERICAN YOUTH Hostels boasts that it has members aged "4 to 94." Mayes explains that the local group will accept members from 12 years old up, but they must be able to "take it." And they must be convinced that adventure is more important than comfort. Most of the Long Beach members are of college age or thereshouts. college age or thereabouts.

Local members must be able to bike five miles (sometimes they hike 15); they must be able to ride a bicycle 10 miles a day (sometimes they ride a bicycle 30 miles a day.) In Europe, Hostelers have to be practically indefatigable hikers, and sometimes they bicycle 100 miles a day, Mayes says.

"Our idea is not to achieve speed or endurance records but to see the country and have fun doing it without spending much money," explains the regional chairman. He says that often the local Hostelers go on trips and have a good time for $1.50 a day; sometimes the price climbs to $2.50 or $3. Local members must be able to hike five miles

Sometimes bicycles and other gear, are loaded onto cars, trains, boats. Sometimes cars go as far as they can, and the Hostelers pack in the rest of the way.

At hostels, which in this area usually are homes, ranches, community buildings or the like, Hostelers are met by "hostel parents." Separate accommodations are provided for men and women. All cook together, and the way it usually works out is that the girls do the cooking and the boys the dishes.

Smoking is frowned upon at hostels; drinking is forbidden.

Stout outdoor clothing is worn on the trips, with comfortable shoes.

"We eat pretty well. Usually steaks or bacon and HORSEBACK RIDING, canoeing, skiing, square dancing are favorite recreations.

Persons must be at least 18 years old to go on AYH transcontinental trips. Passes, good for one year, range from $2 to persons under 18, $4 for persons 18 to 20, and $5 for adults to family and organization passes which cost $7 and $11, respectively. Or one may obtain an introductory pass, good for a trial weekend, for 50 cents. Passes are valid in 32 countries.

AYH offers 22 trips in North and Central America, Europe and the Far East. These are combination bleycle and camping trips—one is a Volkswagen trip through Europe. They range from one week to 11 weeks. Expenses, of course, are cut to the bone.

Aladdin got around but he didn't see the world like Hostelers who travel from one point to another by foot, bicycle, car--what have you. Here's a group seeing Italy.

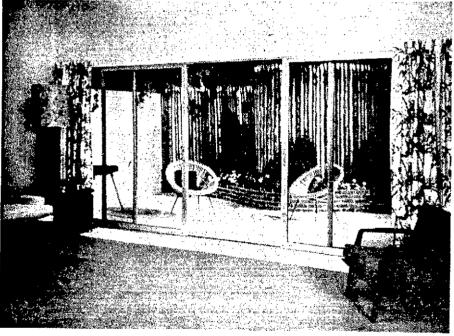

This group of Long Beach Hostelers goes over itinerary for day's travel abroad. Hostolers travel inexpensively, must be prepared for roughing it when necessary.

Glass Is a Many Splen dored Thing

By John Ronson

WHEN THE FIRST Earth Man sets foot on the moon, he'll probably be too excited to think of it — but a good part of the credit will belong to Earth Woman.

For she's the gal who made him develop glass. From the time ancient glass

From the time ancient glass beads and the slit window made milady "oooh" and "ahhh" — to modern women's retail "vote" for glass draperies, glass insulation, glass to cook in, glass to give TV sets good contrast — women have sparked the development of a material that boosts our standard of living, has helped unlock secrets of the universe, is helping man master atomic energy and explore outer space.

Actually, much of the world revolves around this female inspiration. When we tumble out of bed and find our way to the nearby mirror, we look into glass which throws back a reflection—for good or evil—depending on the success of last night's party. When we drive to the office or the market, we look through a wide wraparound windshield that has made driving safer and lessened eye strain.

AT THE OFFICE many of us drink our coffee from a glass cup or do our work smoothly on a glass-topped desk that can't be marred by spills, scratches or burns. And what budding office genius hasn't sought his inspiration — at one time or another — by staring out the window?

This is the world of glass which the average person knows: a window, a mirror, a table top, a tumbler.

A special survey of the distaff

A special survey of the distaff side would turn up other items such as a bright bracelet, a vase or the new light-as-air glass curtains and draperies which require little or no care at all and seem to wear forever.

Homeowners think of glass as insulation, in the form of double-glazed windows that help maintain even temperatures the year 'round, as well as the fiber glass lining that is a weather buffer for house walls and rooling. The TV set was added later, but many of us don't realize that it was the development of a special gray glass which gives our picture the sharp contrast of a good black and white photograph rather than a mediocre and indistinguishable tintype. Why the special TV glass? Women! Engineers know what side of the marital loaf their livelihood is buttered on!

To the architect, engineer, builder, scientist and other professionals, the world of glass holds more splendor and meaning. It's basic to progress, an engineering material that can be as versatile and adaptable as the installation demands.

IF ALL THE predictions for glass become realities, cities visualized for the future will be gleaming glass marvels in myriad rainbow hues. Homes—are you listening, ladies?—will be cooking with glass and have windows which will automatically control light and heat transmission by the very nature of their chemical composition. Buildings will be made of glass from foundation to finish, for glass can be as fragile as a spider's web or as hard and durable as steel.

der's web or as hard and durable as steel.

The amazing and most thought-provoking feature of man's oldest known material is that its source of supply is practically inexhaustible. The ingredients should continue in abundant supply longer than the sagest seer might predict. And if the proof that archaeologists have discovered in their diggings for lost civilizations is tangible evidence of the durability of glass, the products we use in today's architecture, industry and home will be the preserved relics of the future.

The beginnings of it dip back 5,000 years and can be traced through various cultures to the present. It came to America with the first settlers and held a distinctive place among honored crafts.

WIIO SAYS "Tugboat Annie" never will be replaced by "Ifelicopter Harriet"? In some instances right now, the versatile whirlybird does a better job. When log settles down to wave level, which often restricts surface craft, for instance, 'copters definitely could be used to better advantage.

Who says so?

No one but the U. S. Navy. But because the Navy still is experimenting with 'copters as aerial towboats and tugs, officials are as silent as Hemingway's silent but long-suffering fisherman.

Figures on extensive tests are not available either from the U. S. Navy or whirlybird companies. Nor, as one 'copter official put it, "would we want to suggest that helicopters eventually will replace tugs."

J. C. Waugh, an official of the Vertol Aircraft Corp., said that, "In certain cases, though, and because of such factors as mobility, weather, etc., that would restrict surface craft," the 'copter could do an excellent job.

IN A SERIES of tests conducted at the Naval Amphibious Base at Coronado, the H21B 'copter amply demonstrated itself as an excellent flying tugboat, and in some ways, it surpassed the performance of its water-horne colleague.

cone in less time than it takes to tell of it.

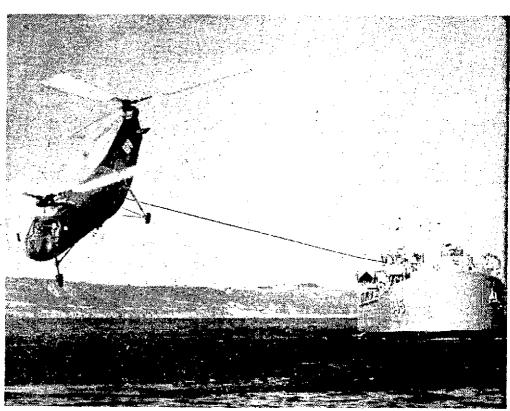

During the tests, the whirlybird maneuvered to shore and anchored a 200-foot pontoon causeway. It then hauled an LCU (Landing Craft, Utility) loaded with Caternillar tractors on and off a surf-pounded beach. Later, it demonstrated its versatility and capability when it towed several other types of amphibious craft.

Of particular interest to the Navy was the total absence of cable snapping. A 'copter functions much like a balloon on a string. As a result, cable snapping because of sudden tautness fairly common in shipto-ship towing operations—is almost eliminated.

A versatile workhorse, the 'copter pulls a stalled LVT over a hump and into the water. Loose sand made the job difficult, but the whirlybird came through fine.

Whirlybird here tilts to near-vertical angle. Unorthodox position is permitted by unique tandem-rotor design. Test showed the vessel handled better with the tow.

Hook unit has remote control mechanism so pilot can quickly disengage hook and reel in cable when towing assignment is completed.

Powerful helicopter pulls grounded LCU off Coronado boach. The vossel was loaded with tractors to make the assignment rougher.

Long Beach 'Waif' Sees Stars

THEN actor Robert Webber starts telling where he's from, he sounds like a waif.

"I don't have a home town," he said. "I have a home area."

"Home area" is Long Beach and vicinity.

"I never knew," explained the actor, "that it's so important to have a home base. When I was unknown, I'm sure nobody cared.

Tugboats

SUDDENLY, the 7/16-inch steel cable caught pulled taut.
While tilted nose down and straining like the airborne steel "terrier" that it is, the H21 slowly picked up speed. Within minutes, the ship was throwing in her wake a frothy bow wash.

As spectators watched, the flying tugboat was forcing the LST to cut through the water at five knots about half the ship's normal cruising speed. Officials found that under tow by the aerial tug, the ship was even more maneuverable than under her own power.

One leather-lunged, weatherbeaten bosun, watching the near vertical copter plough the LST through the brine, cracked. Let the submarine boys brag about their A-powered Nautilus. The amphibs have H-powered landing craft. Only, in this case, the 'It' stands for helicopier."

Maybe some people doubt that "Helicopter Harriet" soon will replace "Tugboat Annie." Maybe so. But when she's used as an aerial work boat, Harriet performs one whale of a job!

Natalie Wood, showing talent far beyond her 18 years, has won coveted film role of "Marjorie Morningstar,"

HOLLYWOOD

She Got the Part

By Betty DeWeese

NE of Hollywood's most dramatic talent quests came to an end when Natalie Wood, 18year-old actress, won the role of modern fiction's most famous heroine in Warner Bros.' forthcoming film production of "Marjorie Morningstar," cel novel by Herman Wouk. celebrated

For Miss Wood, award of the coveted part, announced by Jack L. Warner, meant realization of more than a year-long ambition and striving against the odds of filmland's best-known star names.

For Milton Sperling, who will produce "Marjorie Morningstar," the casting meant the happy culmination of an international search for the ideal actress to portray a character of rare sensitivity and great emotional depth. And for author Herman Would it all meant seeing his fa-vorite brain child come to fullblown life.

MORE THAN a score of actresses were tested for Marjorie since Sperling and Warner Bros. acquired the Wouk novel as a screen property 18 months ago.

Throughout the extensive searching that spanned continents, youthful Natalic Wood remained a hopeful "long shot" working day after day right on the Warner Bros. studio sound stages. Persistently she studied the Marjorie Morningstar character and with sound property and with sound property. acter and with equal persever-ance continued to seek for herself one of the tests being awarded to others.

THE BIG HANDICAP against her was her youth. Natalic observed her 18th birthday only a few months ago.

Persistence finally won. Nata-lie got her test. The result, according to Warner and Sperling, was a revelation. "It was inspired," they said. "She was Marjorie Morningstar."

The picture, from Everett Freeman's screenplay of the Wouk novel, is now being filmed.

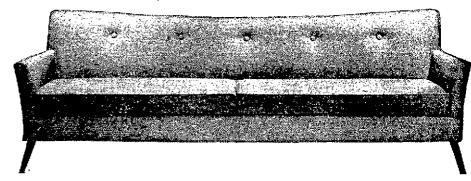

Natalie, who will play fiction's famous heroine for Warner Bros., displays some of her many scrapbooks.

BEACON STREET and San Pedro's skid row have never seen anything like it. Art has come to the streets of the Shanghai gesture, the Mickey Finn and breakfast muscatel. People are flocking there from San Marino. Beverly Hills and the exotic depths of Hollywood.

They come to look at avant garde art at the Exodus Art Gallery, at 235 W. 6th St., San Pedro

This gallery is owned and managed by 12 of the "finest artists" in the Southland if not the nation.

"Finest artists" is a quote of one of the member artists who thought over the statement and then added, "At least I don't know of any better artists."

THE LEADER of the group, THE LEADER of the group, billygoat-bearded Conner Everts, 4507 Spencer St., Redondo Beach, needs only a smock and a beret to complete the Hollywood idea of the handsome Bohemian artist. In addition to looking like an artist should look he is a fuer minute a comportant he is a fine painter, a competent longshoreman and an individ-

Everts studied in this country as well as England, France, Italy, Mexico and Chile where Italy, Mexico and Chile where he exhibited and won honors. But art being the unprofitable pursuit that it is, he turned to college teaching and then to longshoring for eating money.

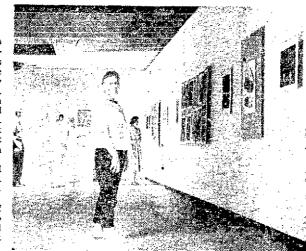

"I can work at longshoring about as many days as I want," he said. "The rest of the time is my own."
"How do the other longshoremen feel about you being an men feel about you being an artist?"

"They don't give it a second thought," he replied. "They're a great bunch for minding their own business."

A FAMILY MAN, Everls built his own home and has managed to fit a lusty enjoyment of living into loading slings and covering canvas with the lines of his private world. He wastes four hours a day on sleep.

The gallery is a former flop-house that required weeks of trash hauling, scrubbing and painting to get into shape for the opening show. The 12 founding members forgot art and did the work, In the group are: Sandra Coonen, of Seal Beach; Maurice Morales and Maynard Paige, of Santa Ana; Vic Smith, Paige, of Santa Ana; vic Smith, of Westminster: Doug McFaden, Ray Dutcher and Marlyn Prior, of Long Beach; Joanne Coeglein, of Lomita; George K. James, of Newport; Willie Suzuke, of Gardenn; John Bauer, of Los Angeles, and Everts,

ONCE THE GALLERY was in shape they sent out opening no-tices and on opening day the artists stood around, anxiously watching the front stairs.

Said one artist, "We expected a few hundred people and we were sort of doublful about them."

By closing time about 1,000 people had crowded into the gal-lery. They came in every type vehicle from jalopies to a Mervehicle from jalopies to a Mercedes Benz and from every part of the Southland. Among their numbers were a countess, a handful of movie and television stars, several tycoons and hundreds of people who simply wanted to look at good art.

"IT WAS A staggering experience," said one artist. "I would stand ground starting and trying stand around staring and trying to be sociable and then after awhile it would be too much and I'd run across street and hoist a drink. It didn't seem possible that a gallery in that neighborhood could bring so many people."

Today it isn't unusual for the gallery to attract 100 visitors on an ordinary day.

Federal agents threw a damper on the opening when they seized the galleries etching press. It wasn't a raid—simply a polite request for the press, Explained an artist, "There wasn't anything personal about it. They were grabbing all such presses. They were trying to get a line on one that had turned into a do-it-yourself-money-making-kit. They returned it though."

THE ETCHING PRESS as well as a lithographic press will be available to the member artists of the group. For a small sum an artist or a non-artist can sum an artist or a non-artist can join the Exodus Gallery and take part in life classes, dance re-citals, lectures and the showing of artistic but unprofitable movies.

Said Everts, "This area needs gallery like this. Los Angeles is a street a thousand miles long and one house wide. There is no real art or cultural center. We came here because the rent is low and there are plenty of empty buildings. It could grow into something great,"

If ability, confidence and enthusiasm is enough, the Southland has a new cultural center.

Bearded Conner Everts is leader of the member artists who have developed the San Pedro gallery. Painting in the background is "Woman—Anguished."

SAD STORY OF AN APOSTLE LOST

I gathered that the beginners' I gathered that the beginners department of our Sunday School was studying the missionary journeys of Paul, when 5-year-old Jean came home one Sunday noon and breathlessly told about the disciple's trip to "Thessamonica."

Each Sunday she brought home the latest glowing reports on Paul. One morning he had on Paul. One morning the had gone to Corinth—the next, he had visited Macedonia. On an-other Sunday she reported that he had healed the Ephesians. One day, however, she came home from Sunday School crying almost uncontrollably. I tried to guess what was wrong so I could comfort her.

o I could comfort her.
"Did you lose your mittens?"
Jean shook her dark curls.
"Your cap?"
No, again.
"Did someone hit you?"

Jean shook her head and lift-ed her tear-filled brown eyes. "Paul died," she said.—BET-TY R. HOEFER, 488 E. Platt St., Long Beach 5.

The Floyd Hickmans dreamed of a ranch-type home in a rural setting and this cinderblock dwelling is "it."

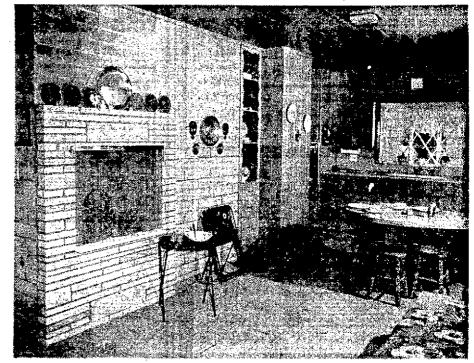

luminate an entry hall defined from the living room by means of a free-standing mahogany guest closet that serves both for storage and partition. The living room, beyond, overlooks the terrace, the beautifully tended lawn and the field that leads to the well-kept stable. Three horses, a quacking family of ducks and the dogs turn the scene into one of real rural charm.

THE LIVING ROOM is surprisingly furnished in 18th Century pieces that reflect the graceful elegance of that era as exemplified in the styles of Duncan Phyle, Sheraton and Adams.

Toast striped damask upholsters the graceful Duncan Phyfe sofa. Bristol lamps with silk shades stand on either side. Near the sofa is a lounge chair covered in dubonnet and eggshell striped satin, Small pillows on the sofa match the fabric of the chair.

The fireplace (located opposite the sofa) is not of period styling, yet neither is so rustic as to strike discord. It is outlined in red brick and framed in a wood-paneled unit that terminates in a mantel that spans across the top of the firebox and extends to the open bookcase on the right. Over the bookshelves hang a variety of tiny, gilt-framed period pictures. Over the fireplace is a watercolor done by

What Goes Into a TV Show

TELEVISION has been described as a giant menace that devours talent, stories and hours with all the gluttony of a King Henry VIII or a Diamond Jim Brady.

Just to give you an idea of what goes through a TV show, we looked up the statistics on "Matinec Theater," a daily NBC coloreast seen at noon each weekday. Statistics are pretty dull, but these might each weeknay. Statistics are pretty dult, but these might prove interesting if you have aspirations for a career in writing or acting . . . or are just curious.

Back on June 6, "Matinee
Theater" had done 400 performances and, if laid end-to-end,

Hot, hazardous desert crossings over the early-day gold trail pioneered in Coachella-Imperial Valleys were made in stagecoaches such as shown above.

Gold Road to Arizona

By Francis J. Johnston

MOTORISTS FROM the Long Beach area, bent on desert holiday and swiftly covering the long miles on today's modern highways in com-fortable cars, seldom realize that they are following closely the route of one of the oldest and most important stage and freight routes in early South-ern California history.

ern Cantornia history.

Few know of the story of the man, William D. Bradshaw, who pioneered the route or of the fate that was in store for him soon after opening what he intended to be a road to personal forture. fortune.

Gold was the lure that in-spired the opening of the road, spired the opening of the road, gold from the mines that were opened up by Herman Ehren-berg, a German mining engi-neer and adventurer. Gold strikes were made in 1862 near La Paz on the Arizona side of the Colorado River, and pros-pectors, miners and the usual retinue attendant to a gold strike came pouring across the desert from all over the West.

TWO ROUTES were openboth tedious. One was over the old Butterfield stage line to the south and up the Colorado from south and up the Colorado from Yuma by riverboat. The other was over a government crossing of the Mojave Desert to the river, a hazardous journey.

In the early summer of 1862, Bradshaw realized that profits were to be made from a shorter and better route. He was a feedfarsman of the breed of and better route. He was a frontiersman of the breed of rontersman of the breed of early California adventurers and late of Fremont's California Battalion. He lined up eight other men and set out to find a better way to La Paz.

Acting on directions from Chief Cabezon of the descrt tribe of Cahuilla Indians (the town of Cabazon takes its name from the Chief), Bradshaw and from the Chief), Bradshaw and his party reached the Indian village of Toro above the Salton Sea. There they obtained a map from a Maricopa Indian which marked all the water holes to the river by way of Salton Wash. They soon reached the Colorado and Bradshaw established a ferry across the river to La Paz, the ferry and road soon to bear his name.

A STAGE LINE was put in operation from Los Angeles to La Paz and stations were established at ranches near the present towns of Beaumont, Banning and Whitewater and at Dos Palmas, an important oasis about five miles due east of the north end of Salton Sca. Others were set up at Canyon Spring and Chuckawalla Well. Several other stage lines later were set in operation and number of San Bernardino residents engaged in freighting over the route in the period between 1862 and the coming of the railroad in 1876. Wells Fargo held a franchise in the 1870s and the U. S. mails were carried over the road from 1866 to 1876.

Bradshaw was not to live long Bradshaw was not to live long to enjoy the fruits of his pioneering. He was killed in a gunfight at his own ferry a few months after opening up the road. Ehrenberg, too, was slain at Dos Palmas and robbed of the gold he was carrying. Shootings and desert sun and thirst took other lives, as was the manner of the West, until rails spanned the desert and traffic trickled to a stop on the Bradtrickled to a stop on the Bradshaw trail.

THE BRADSHAW ROUTE roughly followed the course of today's U. S. Hwy. 70-99 from San Bernardino through Beau-mont, Banning and Cabazon to mont, Banning and Cabazon to a point about a mile south of the present town of White-water, then south through Palm Springs (then called Agua Caliente) along Indian Ave. Passing through Coachella Valley to the present Indian Wells, the route nearly paratheled State 111. At Indian Wells, the road veered off to run southeast along the Santa Rosa Mountains to near where Valerie Jean Date Shop now stands. Angling cast, it passed through Mecca to the hills, then due east, where now only a Riverside County unimproved road lies, behind the Orocopa and Chuckawalla Mountains to merge near awalla Mountains to merge near Palo Verde. The final leg was north to the river.

Careful search today will recareful search today will be veal a few signs of the old route from Beaumont to Dos Palmas in the area north of Cabazon. An unimproved dirt road still runs from Dos Palmas through Salton Wash to Palo Verde on the Coloredo pay little used. the Colorado, now little used.

duction of flat glass could not rival European methods and production until the latter part of the last century. However, it was left to the present century to refine techniques and developments and introduce some new ideas that have revolutionized the world.

early men of science have considered them-The might selves mad to entertain such a thought as planning a trip to the moon or making the sun the source of power that cooks our food. But many far-reaching and far-sighted modern scien-tists place both in the line of reasoning and occurrence.

The solar furnace, which now is being used in research to find the heat-resistant materials needed to break through the "thermal barrier," may someday provide the means for putting the energy of the sun to work in Main Street kitchens. And guess who can't wait for

In the atomic energy and aircraft fields, the versatifity of glass becomes more evident. Researchers and plant workers in atomic projects are protected from high-level gamma radiation by thick windows of glass. When the Atomic Energy Commission's Savannah River Project was constructed, Pillsburgh Plate Glass Co. supplied a special non-browning glass for observers' windows which weighted more than 20,000 pounds each.

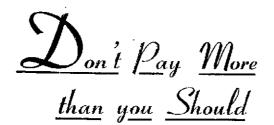

DURING World War II, glass was at home on land, sea and air — used in radar screens, control towers, landing strips and for important bullet-resist-ing windshields for the bombers that invaded enemy shores. To-day, jet fighters, flying at supersonic speeds, are glazed with windshields of laminated glass with a special electro-conducting coating that prevents icing and fogging and allows clear vision. A similar glass is going to sea on huge super carriers,

Perhaps more than in any other field, the weight of glass other field, the weight of glass and its tremendous potential for average Americans is in the building field, Milady wants a more comfortable home? The architect, builder and construction man are giving it to her with glass.

The story of the window has grown. From narrow slits in the Cape Cod bungalow, a modern housewife turns one of her walls to glass with sliding doors that make the outdoors an important and integral part of living. The owner of a small or large retail business feels he doesn't need the talents of P. T. Barnum when he has the open vision talents of glass to display mer-chandise and tempt an interested public.

TODAY'S SKYSCHAPER uses timeless glass to bridge the gap between past, present and gap between past, present and the days to come. Buildings that reach for the sky are being sheathed with glass. Architects are finding that ceramic enam-eled glass is giving the color they have always sought to their ageless designs. And of course, most important, the glass is durable and economical. It will withstand impact, resist weathering and clean easily. Color moves up from its natural setting to add jewel-like beauty to the school, the museum, the shopping center and the sky-

'I Was World's Fastest Gunman'

Al Jannings, onetime train robber, holds copy of pardon issued 50 years ago by President Theodore Roosevelt.

By Jack Lefler

Associated Press Writer

(Editor's Note: amiable little man of 93, kind to animals and critical of TV westerns. You wouldn't think he was once a notorious gunfighter, train robber and frontier scourge—that is, until he tries to recall (unsuccessfully) how many men he's killed.)

THE LAST OUTLAW fondly stroked the barrel of a shiny old six-shooter.

Squinting from beneath the low-pulled brim of his hat, Al Jennings, one-time badman of the Old West, said:

"There was no faster gunman in the world than me.

Jennings, at 93 as spry and cocky as a banty rooster, was sitting on the tree-shaded porch of his white frame house on a quiet street in Tarzana.

A little fellow barely 5 feet tall—he seemed anything but the notorious gunfighter and train robber of a bygone era.

STARING at a snoring cat that had edged him from his favorite chair, Jennings shuttled his thoughts between the wild days of his youth and the teleuays of his yourn and the tele-vision westerns which he studies with considerable contempt. "Most of 'em are terrible," he snorted. "I watch 'em just to

like they do is silly. I never saw but a few fist fights in my life. In the old days the fights never lasted longer than a couple of blows. That's all it took to settle

And as for fanning a gun, in which the gunman uses the palm of his left hand to flip the hammer for supposedly fast shooting:

"Only a damn fool would ever

engage of the control of the control

think of fanning a gun. You couldn't hit anything."

JENNINGS STOOD UP, slid. his six-shooter down the side of his right leg and snapped it into firing position with surprising agility.

"See," he said, "the sight's filed off so it won't snag in the holster and the trigger's re-moved so you can fire real fast by working the hammer with your thumb,"

Jennings is mighty proud of his shooting prowess. He re-

"When I was 14 years old I ran into Jesse and Frank James in Dodge City. I had a 45 The Bodge City. I had a Abstrapped on each side of me.

"Jesse asked me if I could shoot, and I said, 'Purty fair,'

"Jesse said be'd bet me 50 cents he and his brother could outshoot me. We put a bottle on a rock and Jesse and Frank both missed. I hit it the first shot."

Al was born in Tazewell County, Va., the son of a preacher - lawyer - musician. When he was 11 years old, Al says, he ran away from home in a rage because his father killed his pet squirrel for steating corn.

"I COULD ALWAYS kill a man without batting an eye but I couldn't stand to see an ani-mal harmed."

The pint-sized boy made his way to Cincinnati and then was swept westward in the flood tide of migration to a new frontier. He saw at close range men like the James brothers, the Dalton brothers, Bat Masterson, Doc Holiday, Wyatt Earp.

"I was standing around in Dodge City one day," he remem-hered, "Bat Masterson and some of his boys were hanging around. A man wearing a slovepipe hat and a long black coat got off the train. He was an actor, heading west, I learned later.

"Bat pulled his gun and said,
"I'll plug that hat.' He fired and
the actor fell dead. 'Guess I shot
too low,' Bat said,"

At Trinidad, Colo., taken in by Jim Stanton, who ran a ranch for its owner, an English lord.

STANTON was "the greatest gunfighter who ever lived," said Al, obviously an apt pupil. The lad also read every book in the ranch's extensive library, including law books.

Jennings was admitted to the bar in Comanche County, Kan., in 1884. He moved to El Reno, Okla., and was elected county attorney in 1892.

"I had quite a reputation as a gunfighter and that put me over," he said, adding:

"I killed quite a bunch of fellows but that's because they were always hunting me up to kill me so they could make a big name for themselves."

JUST HOW MANY MEN fell before Jennings' gun is lost in the haze of iong-gone years. He said he just can't recall exactly.

After two years in office, Jennings went to Woodward, Okla., to join his brother. There Ed was shot to death after winning a court case.

"I swore vengeance if Jack Love and Temple Houston were acquitted of the killing," Jen-nings said.

"The jury turned them loose, and I rode into Creek Indian country after them.

"I came on Love and Houston and two other men on the porch of a little store. They opened fire and hit me in the ankle. I shot three of them dead quicker than I can tell about it. I shot the fourth one but he didn't die.

"THAT STARTED me as an

Al rounded up a band of robbers and they started holding up trains and banks. He soon became the most notorious bad-man in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas.

"Guess we robbed 15 or 20 trains," Jennings drawled in recollection.

"I robbed several trains in "I roomed several trains."
Texas but they didn't have any money on them so we had to Texas but they didn't have any money on them so we had to take up a collection from the passengers—just like in church."

Al and his gang got $90,000 on their last train robbery.

"I ran into three old friends in one of the coaches. They recommind me over though I had ognized me even though I had a mask on and I stopped and passed the time of day. At my trial they testified the head robber was 6 feet tall but I got convicted anyway."

Jennings was sentenced to life ornings was sentenced to me imprisonment in the Columbus, Ohio, federal penitentiary. He was a model prisoner and be-came secretary to the warden. President William McKinley paroled him after five years and President Theodore Roosevelt President Theodore Roosevelt pardoned him and restored his civil rights in 1907.

Jennings came out of prison a repentant and ambitious man. He went back to Oklahoma and resumed the practice of law. He ran for governor in 1914.

"I would have made it but I was counted out," he said.

Then, turning, he expressed his these words, "Only God could make a tree like that!" The by-stander nodded in agreement for the object of this salutation was the Sir Joseph Hooker Oak, the world's largest living oak tree.

When the 452nd moved from Long Beach to Chico for the annual two-week training encampment this summer, one of the sightseeing points centered around this giant tree. Claimed to be the largest living specimen of California Valley oak in the world, the Hooker Oak stands majestically 110 feet above the ground. The trunk extends nine feet across and in the worl of another Long Beach airman, "This chunk of wood would make a lot of tooltpicks."

Old Mission Playhouse in San Gabriel cost million Today it is used as a civic auditorium.

Pageant of Yesteryear

ONCE ITS press agents boasted that it was "the Oberammergau of America" and San Gabriel's famed Mission Play was, indeed, a spectacular production. Today its actors no longer tread the actors no longer tread the boards of the beautiful theater that was built to house the play; today the Mission Play-house is the City of San Gabriel's Civic Auditorium.

April 29, 1912, marked the first performance of the Mission Play, as it was more popularly known. The production was written and produced by the late John Steven McGroarty in San Gabriel in an old build ing beside the mainline railroad and passing trains at times would drown out the actors' voices. Then the new playhouse was built.

No longer do you hear the whispered tread of the sandaled feet of Father Serra as por-trayed in the old, Mission Play. Today the staccalo tapping of high heels breaks the silence as members attend adult groups in the Civic Auditorium.

Today, the auditorium features travelogues, operas, philharmonic concerts, circuses and conventions. When the play-house was acquired in 1945 by vote of the people of the "town with a mission," it was hoped that for a limited season each year the playhouse again would bring this poignant and beauti-ful story of California to life. However, to date this has not been realized.

YEARS AGO, the play was produced at an approximate cost of $3,500 per week. In 1950, according to Miss Margaret McKale, niece of McGroarty, when an attempt was made to present the play, the cost was $12,500 per week.

The play was a dramatization of the early history of California with emphasis on the good work of Father Junipero Serra.

The Mission Play has the world's record for any drama of either ancient or modern times to be given in one place. The 3,158 performances eclipsed the Passion Play of Oberanmergau. It was from the latter drama, while on a trip in Europe, that the late Frank Miller, founder of the Mission Inn at Riverside, conceived the idea of a historical play on California. It was his dream to pro-duce the play during the Christduce the play during the Christ-mas season at the Mission Ium. However, upon completion of the script by McGroarty, it was found that a far larger place would have to be selected. It was not accidental that San Gabriel was chosen. The Archiangel of Missions nearby is rich in memories and a natural locale for the very drama por-

AFTER 15 YEARS in the old structure, a larger playhouse was needed and a three and was needed and a three and one-half-acre site, once part of the mission domain, was chosen. Patriotic Californians, through the financial resources and business abilities of William E. Hampton and E. K. Hoak, B. Benton modeled the new playhouse after the San An-tonio de Padua Mission. A personal gift was the pipe organ from Arthur Letts, a pioneer Southern California merchant. Seating capacity of the play-(Continued on Page 28)

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

THEAR MISS RULE: Could you give information about the French name DuBOIS?-C. J. D., Long Beach.

C. J. D.: The name DuBOIS was one of the oldest and most honored in France as well as in early America. "Bois" meant "forest" and the surname Du-Bois describes "land owners having a forest on their property."
The DuBois lineage achieved a coat of arms in the northwest French province of Artóis. Their shield was silver with two black hammers on it. In the ancestry was the French Cardinal Guillaume DuBois (1656-1723). U. S. Sen. Fred DuBois (born 1851) secured the admission of the State of Idaho to the Union.

WALTERS.—Mrs. D. W., Long Beach.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell what you can of the surname BEHEN or BEHAN. My ancestors came from Ireland hefore 1800. MRS. F. S., Long Beach.

F. S.: The remate Gaelic Irish ancestor of the Behen or Behan family was called "Bea-cain," meaning "little bee." This was a child's baptismal name, was a child's baptismal name, perhaps alluding to qualities such as "busy as a bee," etc. Descendants of Beacain assumed the surname O'Beacain. This was eventually respelled O'Beacain, then Behan. Some of the progeny condensed the name to Bean. The family were notable as prolific writers in the Middle Aces. Their home was original-Ages. #### High in protein...highly digestible!

All babies need complete, high-quality proteins for healthy growth. Meat supplies these proteins in abundance. To make sure their young babies like meat, many mothers mix it with fruit.

Because this is so sensible and works so well, Swift scientists have created these three new and wonderful-tasting fruit-flavored meats. Each is 100% meat with just a bit of fruit or mint added to make it even more appealing in flavor.

They're extra-smooth-the way babies like them best. They're high in body-building proteins and very easy to digest.

Try all three! Your baby will love them! Available in chopped form for your toddler, too.

SUZIE WONG ... A YUM-YUM GIRL

"The World of Suzie Wong," by Richard Mason (World, $3.95): A great deal about life in Hong Kong with emphasis on a place of assignation-the Nam Kok Hotel and its pretty Chinese girls and sailor patrons-make up the third novel for Mr. Moson, native of England and avid traveler. The reader will come to love Suzie, a "yum-yum" girl who follows her illicit profession so that her small boy will grow up a student. How she finds true love in a young British artist, overcoming great obstacles of ill health, imprisonment and racial prejudice, occupies the plot. As Suzie makes her way through a very sordid way of life she creates a world of her own, thereby keeping her beautiful spirit untouched.

"NIGHTMARE AND DAWN" by Mark Aldanov (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $4.50): Here is the war of nerves at its worst, a nail-biting contest of wits be-tween the American and Russion military intelligence chiefs in Berlin, with the plot of espionage revolving around a spy known internationally as Count Saint-Germain. The Count loves adventure, and gets it, but a mistress and a girl who's madly in love with him are his real trouble makers. Mr. Aldanov is sometimes rated Russia's most skillful living novelist. This fast-paced tale should not lessen his stature.

"FROM THE DARK TOWER" by Ernest Pawel (Macmillan, $3.75): Is security worth everything it costs? An Organization Man, Abe Rogolf Tollah and Man, Abe Rogolf rebels after 10 years of docile communication between his farhionable suburban home and his well-paying city job. It gets him in a jam at home, with his friends, with his neighborhood, and especially with the mistress of his dead best friend. It's a provocative novel, wryly humorous and uncompromisingly honest, a new twist in the ageold story of man's struggle for

Mr. Zimmer-man had all the embryo qualifications for an "ownee" when the dog who came to dinner did just that. This particular canine was a tattered, hungry dachs-hund and he soon had the Zimmerman household well in "paw" as he lavishly bestowed the sunshine of his personality and devotion upon his new friends. YOUR mail box can be attractive as well as useful. An unusual mail box adds to the beauty and interest of a street and gives an air of distinction to the house to which it belongs,

In the suburbs of California ities, the estates and the houses, that are set back from the street, have mail boxes. There are two kinds of mail there are two kinds of mail boxes in front of these homes: the conventional oblong gal-vanized iron type, and the in-dividualized artistic type, made of wood and metal.

Scars of the Mojave

By Ada M. Young

MOODS OF THE Mojave are many and capricious, and only the intrepid dare penetrate the desert's fastnesses. But many historic sites and scenes of nature's cataclysms are not far from the main highways and hold high interest for the casual desert-goer.

One such is the Amboy Crater, a 200-foot black volcanic crater that has stood for centuries in the wastes. It is situated about 11/2 miles south of the town of Amboy on U.S. Highway 66, between Barstow and Needles. The road to the crater is sandy and hazardous and must be negotiated carefully, much of the way through lava beds, sharp-edged and resembling broken chunks of asphalt. Sand bogs and lava nose a threat to care and time asphalt. Sand bogs and lava pose a threat to cars and tires. The road ends a half mile from the crater and a steep trail leads to the top.

THE UPHEAVALS which created Amboy Crater and Poe's Crater, 42 miles to the west, may have had much to do with the formation of mineral, lime and marble deposits which man later was to harvest. It is believed the Poe disturbance pre-vented the Mojave River from flowing through the area now the site of Amboy.

Amboy, population 350 and elevation 614 feet, was founded as a community in 1900 when a mill was built to produce gypsum products. Salt also was shipped from this station. Amboy was so named by the Southern Pacific Railroad in 1883, being the first in an alphabetical series of stations across the Mojave to Needles. The Santa Ferseumed greenting of the railassumed operation of the railroad in 1884,

One of Amboy's interesting citizens is "Idaho Bill" Bolen, who takes his winters in Caliwho takes his winters in California. In 1904, when he was living in Minnesota, doctors gave Bolen six months to live. Today, in Amboy, he stands a straight 6-feet-2 and is a healthy, tanned 75-year-old man. His motto, he says, is: "Idaho Bill from over the hill, who never worked and recent "Idaho Bill from over the hill, who never worked and never will." But he is a mine owner, and mine owners work — although Bill works at lead, silver and zinc mining in the northern mine in summer and winters in California while his partners work the mine.

BOLEN HAS collected a rich store of desert lore, including data on mineral and other deposits, among them a mountain of iron ore in Lucerne Valley which is being tapped by the same Idaho men.

Twelve miles east of Amboy on Hwy. 66, through Cadiz and over a stretch of sand and rock trail, is a mountain of marble. The cornerstone of the Los Angeles City Hall was cut from this quarry. Marble is no longer taken here commercially, but the area is a rich field for rock the area is a rich field for rock hounds and amateur fossil hunt-ers. Here are prefect specimens of trilobites reputed to be 550 million years old. They have been extinct since the carboniferous age. These vertebracic fossils of the Cambrian period resemble a sow bug. Today's living likeness is the horseshoe riving likeness is the horseshoe crab. Careful digging in the shale at the end of the path left of the quarry diggings will yield line examples. Even a lacy plant fossil is to be found, thought to be a form of algea.

ON OUR first adventure as os other hist agreement too successful until four young men doing student research for San Diego State College took their time to help us.

We were awed to find specimens so ancient. We had an hour or more of pleasant and interesting work until a sand-storm drove us out of the area.

It is well to carry a shovel, a rope and always plenty of water when on a desert venture. Stay on the traveled route unless local information can be obtained, and then proceed with caution. Desert exploring can' be lots of fun but it can be dangerous as well.

country is one of the few areas where amarylis can be grown outdoors during the winter months. This plant enjoys a very long planting period, stretching from October through the spring months. In other parts of the United States amaryllis are restricted to conservatories, green houses or other sheltered locations.

THE BULBS ARE quite large and a single amaryllis may weigh several hundred times as weigh several hundred times as much as an anemone or ranunculus. Considerable quantities of food are stored in the bulb and the nutrients are utilized until the feeding roots become thoroughly established.

If the bulbs are started now they should flower during the late spring months. Planted somewhat later they will continue their blooming season throughout the summer. A very wide range of colors is available, including whater charges of colors is available. including shades of scarlet, dark red, salmon, rose, orange and pure white. Striped varieties may also be started now,

DURING THE GROWING DURING THE GROWING season the plants require liberal feeding. It would be well to enrich the soil before planting. Then when the buds start to show, a dosage of commercial plant food should be applied. This should be repeated once every three weeks until the flowers open. Plants grown in pots may be fed with liquid foods. foods.

Drainage is an important fac-tor in growing this plant. Dur-ing the winter months especialing the winter months especially, an excess of moisture must be guarded against. For pot culture place a curved section of pottery over the drainage hole and line the bottom of the container with drainage materi-al. ## Dwarf Citrus Trees Are Big News

By David I. Gilfillan

WARF CITRUS trees, since their comparatively recent introduction, have created widespread interest among gardeners, filling a definite need in home gardens because of their productivity and ornamental

These trees make attractive ornamentals which can be grown in all types of containers, and are ideal for the home owner with a small lot. The trees can be planted as close as eight feet apart compared to the 20 feet required by regular fruit trees. Tests have shown that these dwarf trees will bear up to 70 per cent as much fruit as the arge trees using only one-fourth

DELIGHTFUL fragrance and delicious fruit are produced by the dwarfs, and home gardeners are using them on the porch, in the patio and in the small garden. Most popular varieties

we can show you how to

of the true dwarfs include the Robertson Navel, Washington Navel and Valencia oranges; Eureka and Meyer lemons; Marsh's seedless grapefruit; Kinnow mandarin; Mexican and Rangpur limes and Negami kum-

Whether planted in containers or in the garden, be sure the trees have perfect drainage and full sun. A good growing me-dium for containers is four parts good loam, one part leaf mold, one part peat moss and one part sand. This same mixture can be placed around the root ball when planting in the garden. Avoid planting in the garden. Avoid the use of all types of fertilizers at time of planting. Start your regular feeding program about four months after planting us-ing the special Citrus Food ac-cording to directions on the container.

IF YOU HAVE a very heavy soil in your garden, provide proper drainage by digging a hole 18 inches deeper than the planting hole alongside the hole where the tree is being set and place gravel in the deeper hole.

In growing ornamentals in containers, don't make the very common mistake of overwater-

Regular spraying of the trees with a good combination spray, one that will control both in-sects and disease in one operasects and discuse in one opera-tion, will keep the trees clean and healthy. However, be sure not to spray while the flowers are on the tree as this will kill fruit-set. Spray just before the flower buds open up and again when the fruit is about the size of a small pea.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

DON'T FORGET DEPT. . Don't forget that our fall planting for winter and spring color begins next month. If you have flower beds or borders that are standing idle, this would be a good time to prepare the soil for fall planting. Steer manure, organic fertilizer and bonemeal will give you the foundation for good flower-growing. . . Don't forget to feed your lawn if you haven't done so during the past six weeks. . Don't forget that if you are on schedule, your camellias should be fertilized this week for the last time this season, . Don't forget to tell your nurseryman that you saw his ad in the Independent, Press-Telegram. . . Don't forget the Southland garden section next Sunday and don't forget that the man who goes to church on Sunday will enjoy his garden better on Monday.

HOSTELING ORIGINATED in Germany in 1910 when Richard Schirrmann, a young teacher, felt the need for sharing his love of the outdoors with city school children. It was mainly through his effort that the first hostel was set up. Today hostels may be found in 32 countries throughout the world.

In 1934 hosteling was intro-duced to the United States by Isabel and Monroe Smith who got their first taste of it on a trip to Europe with a group of students the previous summer. The first American hostel was opened in Northfield, Mass., in Dec. 1934. Now 120 hostels dot various sections of the United various sections of the United States, with many more make-shift hostels pressed into use by the youthful adventurers, aged "4 to 94."

There are several very good hotels on the outskirts. The Royal Marine at Dun Laoghaire on the beach, for example.
My choice on restaurants: the Bailey, the Red Bank, Jammet's, the Green Dolphin. Irish beer is excellent. And an evening is excellent. And an evening "doing the bonatides" is fine. (These are the pubs where bonatide travelers may get a drink after closing hours. People from one side of Dublin travel the required three miles to the other side and thus become "bonafides.")

"What do you consider the best time to visit Hong Kong weatherwise?"

SPRING, I think. Summer is tropical hot and muggy. Winters can be cold. Fall you might run into the typhoon season. Hit the caviar while you are in Hong Kong. You get piles of gray caviar for a couple of dollars — with buttered toast, chopped egg and onion. NOT LONG AGO a friend told NOT LONG AGO a friend told us about an album that pleased us very much. First, because it's such a good idea—and secondly, because it's always nice to hear that some of the suggestions we make are really being wit to use being put to use.

Our friend has a young daughter just turned seven. "The last year was a very exciting and busy one for Kim," she writes, "and I decided to do something about setting it down between covers." No, she didn't pen a book—she just collected all the pictures of Kim she had snapped during the year and assembled them in proper sequence in a large album.

Entitled "Now We Are Six,"
the album includes the high spots of those very important twelve months in a child's life.
There are all the wonderful new experiences of going to school for the first time—new friends and playmates-the school busplayground and after-school activities. And as it that weren't enough, there are pictures to testify that Kim also had a brand-new set of front teeth and a very pert new Dutch-boy bob!

THEN, TOO, there are snap-shots of Kim singing in the choir, practicing her ballet steps, making her dramatic debut in the school pageant, "going steady" with her favorite beau Skippy (aged seven)—all inno-vations that occurred during the past year. And finally, the album closes with Kim's delight in re-ceiving as a birthday present what she had been asking for all year long—"a new baby kit-ten named Christopher Cross— Chris Cross for short"!

Electric cooking keeps more juice in meat-because it's flameless!

When you cook electrically there's no draft of constantly changing air because there's no flame. (Flame, you see, needs air to breathe. So a flame-heated oven constantly inhales dry air, exhales moist air-literally cooks meat in a hot draft that evaporates good juices.) In an electric oven there's no draft of dry air. You cook with moist heat. As a result, more juice stays in the meat... and the meat tastes better.

Electric cooking is far cooler, too. As much as 16° cooler. The reason is obvious: electric cooking puts the heat directly into the food, not into the room. Electric cooking is cleaner, too, because it's flameless. There are no by-products of combustion to divly walls and darken your bright pans. Truly, it's the only modern way to cook. Why not see your appliance dealer for a demonstration of the new electric ranges?

HOW TO Apply Gypsum Board And Battens to Wall

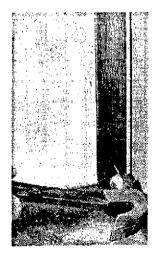

1. TRY THIS simple step to hide unsightly seams and at 1. The This simple step to hide unsightly seams and at same time avoid taping joints, plastering over nailheads. After nailing up standard 4-foot-wide sheets of wallboard to every other stud, nail ½x3-inch battens through to each stud. This laps and seals joints where the wallboard goes together, also places a strip down the center of each sheet for added strength, improved design. Be sure that you paint your new wall and finish the ½-inch battens before you nail them up.

3. Use two battens at corners, butt-jointing just edges of them so both will be same width. Horizontal base and ceiling molding (%x3 inches) is nailed on first. Vertical battens go between base and ceiling molding. Nail the strips to each stud — 24 inches on center. You may have to toenail in "false" studs if others are on standard 16 inch center.

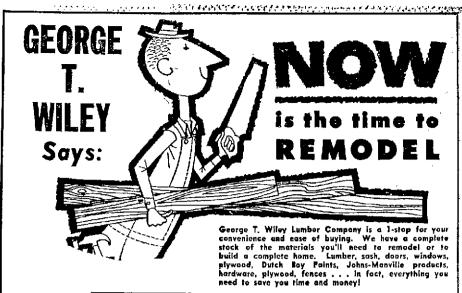

Nail the wallboard to 2. Nail the wallboard to studs, studgering nails and keeping them as close to joint as possible. Let last hammer blow dimple the material slightly. This 'countersinks' nailheads below surface. You don't have to tape the joints the ½-inch battens will cover them. Paint wall before nailing on battens.

 A finished corner looks 4. A timished corner itoms like this. Because spacing of horizontal base and ceiling molding won't show, you can lap one edge of one strip over the face of another. If you batten just one wall, finish corner with single batten. It fits flush in corner between fleor, ceiling strips.

Carlesture by Stan Carter

HAROLD SOLOMON Magnificent!

GATHER ROUND, ye lovers of steaks grand and glorious, and be informed about three fabulous beauties served at Hoefly's, 4911 E. 2nd St., Belmont Shore.

These tremendous charcoalbroiled steaks are the 22-ounce Chateaubriand, the 28-ounce double New York and the 40ounce double porterhouse. Each steak serves two persons and they are so large, so thick and juicy (the finest beel available, of course) that many patrons exclaim: "Gadzooks, I've never seen so much meat in all my life!"

The steaks are rolled to the guests' table on a cart and then skillfully carved by host Harold Solomon, The display is quite magnificent. Each steak is on a plank, surrounded by a border of whipped potatoes and topped with golden fried onion rings and gigantic fresh mushrooms. Also on the plank are asparagus and a vegetable du jour. Each guest also receives Hoefly's famed tossed green salad, a large baked potato and choice of beverage. The prices (for two persons) are quite reasonable, considering what is received: The Chatcaubriand (all filet, no fat or bone) is $11.75 and the double New York and double Porterhouse are $10.75.

Other excellent dinners at Hoefly's are from $2.25 (filet of rex sole) on up. For example, eight superb sea food dinners. $2.50 each, include entree, soup du jour, the famed tossed salad, choice of potato, pumpernickel and sourdough breads, vegeta-bles, choice of dessert and choice of beverage. Two special $4 din-ners are the delectable medal-lions of filet (the meat is sauteed in butter with thin onions, burgundy and lemon juice), and the charcoal-broiled tournedos of beef tenderloin. The latter con-sists of two pieces of beef served on grilled tomatoes with mushruom souce.

Hoefly's also features a scrumptious Ceasar's salad ($1.75 per person) mixed at the patrons' table by host Harold. The salad is so large it's a meal in itself. TEDD THOMEY TEDD THOMEY in itself.

ON-THE-SPOT REPORT:

Who got Mussolini's missing millions? page 8

ALSO: New findings about you and sleep... A great ex-fighter cries 'Foul!' on TV comedians

August 4, 1957 REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

WITH DAUGHTER LEISA, Mrs. Rita Steeves bravely planned for the future after her missing Air Force husband was declared "dead."

I'll always remember...

CONSTANT REMINDER was David's picture

In this exclusive PARADE interview, Mrs. Rita Steeves, whose Air Force husband miraculously came back "from the dead" in one of this year's most inspiring stories, has a message for the women of America.

"I've been supremely happy three times in my life—when I got married, when I had Leisa, my daughter, and then, a month ago — as the happiest moment of all — when David came back from the dead."

These are the words of Mrs. Rita Steeves of Fairfield, Conn., whose husband, Air Force pilot David Steeves had disappeared over California's High Sierras on a routine jet-flight. The Air Force listed him as officially dead. And for 54 days Mrs. Steeves thought she was a widow — until July 1 when her husband telephoned from a forest ranger's cabin that he was alive and safe.

What sustained Mrs. Steeves through her awesome ordeal? What did she learn from it to guide all persons confronted with a sudden, tragic loss?

"You face reality. It does you no good to sit and worry. All the crying in the world won't bring him back. At first 1 waited, while the Air Force searched for David for two weeks. When finally they sent me his death certificate, I knew it would do me no good to be self pitying, or hitter. There is inevitably tomorrow to think about. And I determined if I am going to be alone, I must do something. I had to have a livelihood, so I went back to school at the University of Bridgeport to learn to be a teacher.

"I had my 15-month-old daughter, and myself to support. I knew I must now be the head of my family—families, I know, can fall apart when there's a death. I resolved this would not happen to us. My new studies would keep my mind on new things. Most of all, I was looking forward to something. My mother, who lost my father when I was a baby, brought me up to be prepared for whatever life has to offer—and now, believing David to be dead, I was not only prepared, but was planning the future of my daughter and myself so we would be secure.

"I don't believe any wife in my situation gives up hope that her husband is still alive, although told he is dead. But you must not spend full time on that hope you can build nothing on it.

"Now, with David back, my future is changed again. But I have learned that death can be bearable, that it does not have to end life, for you, the living—if you put your mind on the future, not the past."

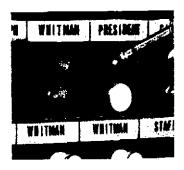

LT. STEEVES sported fine board after his rescue.

WHAT HAPPENED to the estimated $80,000,000 loot Benito Mussolini had with him and lost — along with his life — when he tried to skip out of Italy in 1945? Today an exclusive article by Melton Davis (pp. 8-9) gives you the amazing inside story of the lost treasure. Davis, author of the book All Rome Trembled, is an American now living in Italy and an expert on Italian affairs.

TODAY'S COVER is a typical "gag" pose by one of the world's great gagsters, Bob Hope. He arranged it for PARADE'S Lloyd Shearer between interviewing sessions for the story on pp. 10-13. Since he was making a picture called Paris Holiday, Hope happily donned a Paris-type artist's outfit for the occasion. You may find more artistic viewing in the ladies at his side, actresses Martha Hyer (l.) and Anita Ekberg.

"WHO IS this Whitman and who elected him?" writes Mrs. Alice Clark, Chicago, after seeing our June 7 photo (below) of the White House switchboard. Well, for Mrs. Clark and others who asked, "Whitman" is Mrs. Ann C. Whitman, Ike's personal secretary. Her name is up there three times because she has three phones and, along with her other work, makes or takes some 100 calls a day.

Bufferin! acts twice as fast as aspirin

- Medical science knows that a pain retiever must go through the stomach and into the blood stream to relieve pain.
- Bufferin combines aspirin with two antacid ingredients. These speed the pain reliever out of the stomach and into the blood stream twice as fast as aspirin.
- Bufferin acts twice as fast as aspirin to relieve pain. And it won't upset your stomach the way aspirin often does.

Won't upset your stomach as aspirin often does

Ask your own doctor about Bufferin's remarkable ability to relieve pain and its freedom from harmful ingredients.

9 years of continuous medical research in hospitals and clinics have established Bufferin's effectiveness and speed of action. Bufferin has met the same rigid tests a doctor demands of medicines used in his own practice.

So, for effective, fast relief from headaches, discomfort of colds, neuralgia and ordinary muscular aches and pains use the modern pain reliever . . . Bufferin.

CANOGA PARK, CALIF.

Blackic, the nondescript beast you see trotting across these pages, is one of America's traditional characters — the town dog. He "belongs" not to one master, but to many. Residents of this suburban Los Angeles district have been attending to Blackie's needs since, about 18 years ago, he adopted it as his home. Where he came from, no one knows. But his friendliness has won him devotion, even a "bank account." Children and grownups contribute to his account, kept at a pet shop. Blackie rarely needs the money, since local butchers see to it he has no food worries. But a financial emergency came up once. A new dog catcher "arrested" Blackie for not having a tag and leash. Indignant citizens bought Blackie a tag with money from his account, told the catcher what they thought — and that leash issue was forgotten quickly.

AT ANY TIME Blackie stops traffic. Local drivers know he is deaf and hardly able to see. Like the rest of the town, they want him to stay around as long as possible.

Mussolini's MISSING MILLIONS

by MELTON S. DAVIS

PADUA, ITALY.

A little past dawn on April 27, 1945, a long column of Luftwaffe trucks, armored cars and automobiles wound its way toward Switzerland along the shores of picturesque Lake Como, some 140 miles west of here. It was a cold, wet morning; occasional peals of thunder alternated with the rattle of machine-gun fire, the splat of sharpshooters' rifles.

All northern Italy was in a fever of apprehension. No one knew where the Germans and the fleeing Fascists might halt to organize a last resistance. Partisans were coming out of hiding and the Allied armies were moving steadily forward.

Suddenly the column came to a halt. Across the road was a felled tree. As German soldiers tried to clear the road, Partisans of Italy's famed 52nd Garibaldi Brigade began popping out of the woods.

A bald head emerged from the third truck to complain about the delay. In a flash, Partisans were dragging the man onto the road. One of the leaders took him by the German corporal's greatcoat he was wearing: "Cavaliere Mussolini, I arrest you in the name of the people of Italy!"

Fabulous Booty

The convoy was taken to the main square of the nearby village of Dongo. There it was discovered that members of Mussolini's cabinet were with him—and that distributed among the trucks were fantastic amounts of currency, gold, jewels, furs, all hastily assembled for the Fascist flight. The Partisans' eyes grew wide at this treasure. They transferred the loaded trunks, suitcases, bundles and bags to a guarded room in the Dongo city hall.

Word of the incident spread like wildfire. Soon the area was seething with Partisans — some looking for more Fascists, some scavenging for plunder, some just trigger-happy. The scramble went on until the following day when Walter Audisio, then known as "Colonel Valerio," arrived from Milan to restore order.

Valerio had his orders from the Insurrectionist Committee. On the 28th, as he hustled the shaken Italian dictator and his mistress, Clara Petacci, into a car, Mussolini had a moment of hope. "I knew they would not abandon me." But Valerio was in a hurry. American forces were nearing the lake. If Mussolini were dead by the time they arrived, then the Insurrectionists could claim the Fascist booty.

On a country road, the rattle of submachine guns finished the dictator and his mistress. Valerio and his men then went back to Dongo and machine-gunned 16 Fascist ministers in the village square. The next morning, two Partisan convoys left Dongo. One took the bodies of Mussolini, Clara and the others to Milan, where they were strung up by the heels. The other carried away the Fascist booty fabled since as the Treasure of Dongo.

Where did it go? Last April 29 the Italian Government finally set about finding out. Into court here marched 35 defendants, charged with stealing most of the treasure and covering up the theft with a trail of violence that had resulted in almost 100 deaths and disappearances.

For 12 years the Government had tried repeatedly to lift the blood-stained curtain on this last episode in the war in Italy. Bribery, robbery, threats, beatings, murders, all were interwoven with what happened to the gold. The story involved suitcases, full of sapphires and pearls, passing from hand to hand; bizarre voyages made by pesetas, pounds, dollars, Swiss and French francs; sacks of gold ingots; leather brief cases jammed with secret documents.

The treasure was in two parts: 1) public monies, including the entire resources of three banks rifled by Fascist troops, and 2) private funds and possessions scooped up by Fascist members of the column as they fled. The whole boodle is said to be worth between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 today.

The treasure had started disappearing even before Dongo. Two nights earlier, a truck which carried gifts from Japan to the Duce and a chest labeled "Personal Documents of Il Duce" turned out to be missing. An officer sent to look for it was never seen again. The driver of the truck was found murdered.

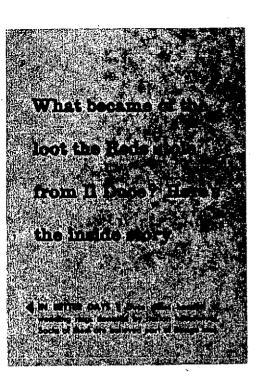

Thereafter the killings mounted. Among the Partisans directing what was to become the most important event of Italy's immediate postwar history were fresh-faced Captain Luigi Canali, known as "Neri," and his mistress, lovely "Gianna," otherwise Giuseppina Tuissi. Although present at the captures, the killings, the lootings, they didn't like what was going on. As chief of staff of the brigade, Neri insisted on turning the treasure over to the new Italian Government.

Disappearing Act

Valerio quickly agreed. Some of the suitcases and boxes were loaded into a car for Milan, but the rest were taken to Como, escorted by Gianna. There she turned them over to a minor Communist official, Dante Gorreri. Gianna was promptly arrested. Gorreri suddenly became very busy. During the day and night of April 29 he barely slept. Out of his office in Como went bags and valises, some to indivduals, some to banks (to be withdrawn hours later along with the deposit slips), some to Communist headquarters in Milan, some to Partisan bands. By next morning, when Gianna was released with apologies, not a trace of the whole fantastic swag could be seen.

FRONT PAGE story in Communist paper in Milan blames "two Englishmen" for stealing the treasure. This was in 1949.

Not till then did Neri begin to suspect that he had fallen into a trap and that Valerio had had no intention of turning anything over to the proper authorities. This belief was strengthened when Neri discovered that an aide of Valerio who questioned his superior's acts had disappeared and that the local head of the National Liberation Committee, who had tried to get the treasure put in the Bank of Italy, had been tossed into prison.

Full of indignation, Neri accused Valerio and Gorreri and Pietro Vergani, the Partisan commander for Lombardy known as "Fabio," of having acted against the interests of their country. He set about preparing a paper giving the reasons for his charges, but never finished it. On May 7, nine days after the treasure had vanished, Neri was called to the Communist headquarters in Como. He was never seen again.

Knew Too Much

The next day, a frantically worried Gianna was told by Pictro Vergani that Neri had been tried as a spy and executed. He warned her that it would be dangerous to stay in Como, and that she had better not interest herself in what happened to Neri. Wild with fury, she ran into the streets shouting, threatening Vergani with revelations of his conduct and that of other Partisan leaders. Vergani followed her, yelling, "Keep quiet, or I'll finish you off in the same way."

Ignoring the threats, on June 13 Gianna began a personal inquiry of her own. Helping her was Anna Maria Bianchi, a typist for the Partisans.

On June 23, their investigation took them to the lake town of Gera, where they met and talked with various Partisans. Anna Maria returned to Como. Gianna never rejoined her. Two men taking a walk outside Gera at 10 o'clock that night heard a cry for help, shots and then the sound of a body falling in the water. It was Gianna's. Anna Maria was not long in following her. On the morning of July 5, police found her body floating in the lake, a pistol shot through her head. The body showed traces of blows, torture and burns.

At Anna's funeral, her father Michele Bianchi, swore vengeance. "If the dead cannot speak," he cried, "the living can!" Striking his mouth with his hand, he said, "I have all the names here!" The police waited for him at the cemetery gates. As Michele walked slowly out, two shots came from a passing car. The old man did not live long enough to name his daughter's — and his own — murderers.

The chain of deaths was not finished. Next came "Biondino" and a girl called "Dina," friends of Gianna and Neri. Their bodies were found in a clump of pine trees on the shore of the lake.

Now Government authorities, with astonishing slowness, started shuffling the case back and forth between civil and military courts. The first investigator was a Communist who said the treasure was legitimate war loot. The second was a civil judge who said that it was finders-keepers. The third timidly said that the legal owner of the treasure was the State, but since no one knew where it was nothing could be done about it. Nothing was said of the murders.

Finally, on February 21, 1957, Gen. Leone Zingales, a lawyer turned military man, was named to start a special inquiry. He went to work with energy and, despite threats and intimidations, picked up real facts and began piecing together the intricate mosaic.

He had hardly started when one night documents were stolen from his desk and his office set on fire. Then the editor of a Milanese paper tried to publish "sensational and authoritative revelations" on the Dongo mystery; he was killed, and his manuscript disappeared. Zingales arrested several Communist suspects, who promptly were released on orders from Rome. Then Zingales found out his name was next on the murder list.

Finally Gives Up

Undismayed, he prepared to fix major responsibility on four top Communists for the looting and bloodletting. They were hard to pin down. Valerio and Luigi Longo were members of Parliament and immune to prosecution. Pietro Vergani had left Italy. Dante Gorreri was arrested, but elected to Parliament while in jail and set free.

Before Zingales could act, he suddenly was transferred. This was his breaking point, and he resigned — but not before two men who tried to warn him about it suffered the same fate as many predecessors. One was killed; the other mysteriously vanished.

Meanwhile, clues to the missing treasure were showing up in odd places. Money and jewels appeared around Lake Como. A woman tried to pay her butcher with a check made out to Mussolini's secretary, a peasant was seen wearing the dictator's decorations, little boys played marbles with gold coins. A local treasure hunt took place. Troops, gold diviners, tourists, deep-sea divers poured into the area, but only small amounts and empty jewel cases were recovered.

Not until this year did Italy's Center Government feel itself strong enough to bring the case to trial. By then, the Communists had been weakened by the uprising in Hungary and other events. Gorreri and Pietro Vergani were charged with embezzlement and murder. Of the other 33 defendants, six have been charged with following their orders in carrying out murders and disposing of the major part of the treasure. The rest are up for having dipped their hands into the till for varying amounts and objects, even including Mussolini's underwear. About 300 witnesses have been called but not all have appeared. Like some of those implicated in the murders and looting, they are unavailable — some in hiding, some blatantly established in Iron Curtain countries.

At the trial, which still is going on, the Partisans, now tailors, clerks, small businessmen, no longer have the lean, taut faces of men living in a continuous state of excitement. To hear them tell it, they've been more interested in cheese and fruit than in brief cases full of money and documents. Not one has admitted keeping a single valuable. They also claim exceedingly faulty memories. For Italians, they have shown an odd reluctance to talk.

Even when three of Neri's fellow officers, one a Communist, told of several attempts on their lives in 1945 because of the treasure, they refused to give names. Defense lawyers freely admitted that some of their clients would like to say more, but they were prisoners of a chain of fear still capable of finding fresh victims.

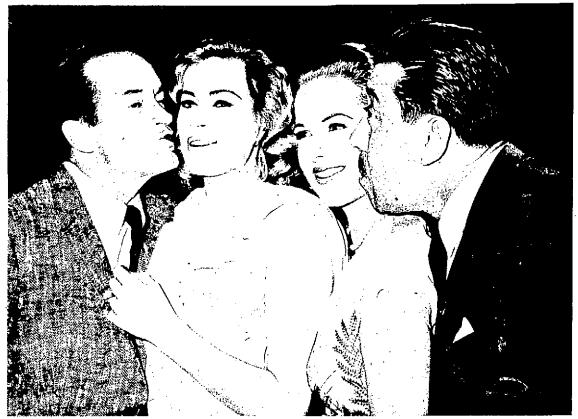

Despite months of testimony, the tormented and tragic voyage of men and money is still not fully reconstructed. It appears probable that the full story of Dongo will never be told.

The real defendant, of course, is Italy's powerful Communist Party, which evidently used the treasure to build the biggest Red party bloc this side of the Iron Curtain. As for the secret papers — said to be mainly Mussolini's defense of his actions and to include letters and documents so important that Mussolini called them "vital to the destiny of Italy" — they probably went to Moscow, but copies of them exist. According to one man in Italy today who knows — "one set is surely in the hands of Communist chief Togliatti; another was purchased by a Communist prince, and a third set sold to secret agents."

Here's what he says happened to the missing treasure: "The foreign currency and gold were taken from Como and Dongo to Milan, where — in close collaboration with the Russian military mission there — it was changed to lire. Under Valerio's watchful eye it was then carried to Communist headquarters in Rome. Party head Togliatti has said, 'The treasure of Dongo never existed.' He's right, as far as the public coffers are concerned. But it did exist long enough to change the political life of the nation."

HOPE-25 years on top

PARIS

How does a top comedian stay on top? Particularly since television began devouring comic material like a flash fire, how does a 25-year veteran of TV, radio, movies, stage and vaudeville maintain his position?

The other day I sought the answer from Bob Hope, who at 54 has hung up a unique record in the five media just mentioned. Currently he's finishing his 39th motion picture, a typical Hope vehicle that presents him as a breezy, overconfident American abroad. Titled Paris Holiday, it logically enough has been shot here in Paris.

For once, Hope has plenty of comic competition. The picture co-stars Fernandel, the world-renowned French comedian who excels at one of Hope's own specialties: mugging.

"Just look at Fernandel's kisser," Hope remarked when I talked to him on location. "Mine's supposed to be good for a laugh, but I can't compete with that unless I call for a plastic surgeon!"

Actually, the French press has been calling Paris Höliday "the battle of the comics." It's one of the few times two top-ranking international comedians have risked appearing together, and the combination has set sparks flying.

At one point Fernandel even quit the picture because, he explains, "I had none of the funny lines, none of the funny situations. Bobope" — the French pronunciation of Bob Hope — "had them all."

War and Peace

Hope sees it differently. "Fernandel," he points out, "doesn't speak any English. He knows just three words: 'Ladies and gentlemen.' Naturally, he didn't have as many lines as I. Besides, I'm the producer of this picture, spending my own dough. My writers still had him in 30 per cent of it — the really high spots. But he wouldn't go for it."

In any case, peace was restored and Hope and Fernandel, each armed with two writers, proceeded to mutilate the original script. The result, according to Hope: "Fernandel is with me through the whole picture. He has 50 per cent of the lines. He gets top billing in France and Italy; I get it everywhere else. The two blondes in the film, Anita Ekberg and Martha Hyer—they get what's left."

This carefree resolution of what could have been a sticky problem is typical of Hope, a man basically intelligent, well-adjusted and forthright. Those qualities also appear in the answer he made to my diplomatic question, "How come you've been in the big time 25 years and people still aren't wise to you?"

"First of all," he explained, "I've been lucky. Without luck you can't go anywhere in show business. I've been lucky because I've been able to move from one medium into another. When vaudeville was dying back in the 1920s, I managed to get into Broadway shows. After six shows I went to Hollywood and landed in the movies. At the same time, radio was growing; I grew with it. Eight years ago when radio began to slip, I made the jump to TV, still keeping my hand in movies and personal appearances.

MUGGING to illustrate their feud, Fernandel and Hope first grin . . .

... then frown, showing mutual jealousy. But suspicion ends ...

3-DAY TREATMENT FOR CORNS

BLUE-JAY Plastic Corn Plasters with wonder drug PHENYLIUM® Guaranteed to relieve pain

Guaranteed to relieve pain ... and get rid of ordinary corns in three days

Medical science has found a fast and effective way to relieve the pain of a corn, and get rid of it at the same time.

This treatment works by getting to the base of the problem. It actually gets rid of your corn by pushing it up from underneath.

How BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters

The Blue-Jay plaster consists of a felt ring surrounding a pad with Phenylium. The felt relieves the pain of the corn by removing the pressure and friction which causes it.

Simultaneously, the Phenylium goes to work to remove the source of the pain—the corn itself. It penetrates through the tough, horny skin of the corn to its base, where it stimulates the growth of new cell tissue.

How Phenylium medication gets ri of corns from sudernesth

NEW CORN develops when skin grows lough and harry under constreet pressure

One big reason he's lasted

"When TV began coming into its own," Bob continued, "I was offered all kinds of dough to do a weekly program as I had on radio. I wouldn't do it. I knew even then it would mean fatal overexposure.

"Guys ask me all the time about what happened to Sid Caesar or George Gobel or Jackie Gleason or Wally Cox. You've got no idea what a tremendous strain it is trying to be funny week after week. The American audience is the sharpest, most sophisticated and fickle audience in the world. You can't get away with old jokes, old routines, second-class material. Trying to satisfy the public --- honestly, it can tear you apart.

"It doesn't tear me, because I love this audience. I love to stand up on a stage, look at people and crack jokes. I'd rather entertain than do anything. I've got more money than I can ever spend, but still I've got to work. I couldn't live without it.

"But even on a guy like me it's a strain. Last year I lost $30,000 on every TV show I did. I went way over the budget for guest stars, for material, for expenses. Why? Because I knew I had to give the audience the best possible show, or they'd say, 'Hope is beginning to slip.' '

One basic reason Bob Hope has lasted so long is that his humor itself is not lasting. "For my money," he has said over and over again, "the No. 1 joke of them all is the topical joke, a quip based on today's newspaper headlines. When you use one, everybody is with you."

FAB Is The Hard-Working, Heavy-Duty Detergent For The Whole Family Wash... And Dishes, Of Course!

is that his humor doesn't

Thus when Hope plays Detroit, for example, his writers gather material on the mayor, the state of the automobile industry and whatever is funny in Michigan. When he does a coast-to-coast TV show, he sweats over his opening monologue, editing every word, insisting that his writers develop Eisenhower gags or topical jokes that are national in scope. For every one joke he uses, he throws out seven. (Actually, he throws out nothing. Those he doesn't use go into his tremendous gag file for future use.)

However fleeting his subject matter, Hope can lay a legitimate claim to freshness. And he is a master of split-second timing. "I can honestly say," he told me, "that my timing is pretty good, that I know how to milk a gag and even make an average one sound better by timing."

Quick with the Quips

Hope uses what is known as the "cover" technique. After he delivers a punch line, he covers it with a few words, then waits for his laugh. For example, in Washington, D.C.: "I was visiting the Pentagon Building the other day and I never saw so much brass. Anyone below a lieutenant colonel runs the elevator. And let me tell you — " Or at the 1955 Academy Awards presentation on TV: "We have a special prize for losers — a do-it-yourself suicide kit. And let me tell you — "

Hope explains, "I try to make the audience an integral part of my act. I like to make them feel that there's a contest going on between the two of us. I'm going to try to get some gags past them, and they're going to catch me by acknowledging the gags with their laughs. In that way, almost everyone has a good time."

In movies, where there is less opportunity for sensitive timing, Hope mugs a good deal, using his mobile face to advantage. In practically all his films he plays the wise guy, the "great lover," a mixture of braggadocio and wisecracks. He did try quasi-dramatic roles in The Seven Little Foys and the recently released Beau James -- but fearfully, afraid to relinquish the quips and the cracks. Hope, observers feel, cannot make his mark as a dramatic actor until he is willing to take parts without jokes - even as his sidekick, Bing Crosby, has been willing to give up singing for dramatic roles (as he did in The Country Girl and his latest movie, Man on Fire).

It may be, of course, that Hope enjoys comedy too much to settle down to serious drama — yet. He regarded "the battle of the comics" over Paris Holiday as a big lark. "After Fernandel and I got through our hassle," he told me, "we went out and played a benefit together. Neither of us speaks the other's language, but we understand each other perfectly. The fancy word for what we've got is rapport. Our relationship is now completely without suspicion."

A minute later, Fernandel motioned me to his side. "I know," he said, "that Bobope has been talking about me. What has he been saying?"

"He just told me," I confided, "that you are the world's greatest comedian."

Fernandel broke into a wide, full-toothed smile. "Monsieur Bobope," he shouted, "is a gentleman! Do you hear? A true gentleman!" Then, softly, "But you must watch him every minute."

THE HOPE FAMILY lines up. Reading down: Bob, wife Dolores, Linda, 18; Tony, 17; Noro and Kelly, both 11. Bob and Dolores met when he was in a Broadway musical, have been married 25 years.

AT 17 Hope wore this outfit as an entertainer in Cleveland (where he lived after coming to the U.S. from England).

Here are new facts about...

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

You spend about one-third of your life asleep - but how much do you know about that blissful state? Scientists have been probing the mysterics of wakefulness and sleep. Here, from up-to-the-minute research findings, PARADE answers the questions most often asked about sleep.

Q What is sleep?

A Scientists aren't quite sure. They do know there seems to be a "waking center" at the base of your skull. This "bombards" your brain with stimulating impulses. So long as the bombardment continues, you're awake. When it slows, you get sleepy. This activity is thought to be at its lowest during sleep.

Q Can you make up for sleep lost?

A Probably. Tests show even a brief catnap can refresh you after an inadequate night's sleep. However, most doctors still recommend eight hours' sleep for adults. Youngsters need (and usually get) more. Many adults can get along well with seven hours as they

Q Do people differ in their ability to become fully awake and active after a night's sleep?

A Yes, there seem to be "morning types" and "afternoon types." The former tend to spring out of bed and do their best work before noon. The latter seem to be more efficient later. If you're an afternoon type and want to feel fresher in the morning, try exercises or a cold shower after you arise.

Q What's the best way to fall back to sleep after you awake during the night?

A Relax. If you have to think at all, think only about pleasant things. Above all, do not worry about sleeplessness. Thinking about insomnia is said to be its greatest provoker. Tests show that some people can fall into deep sleep within 1 minute—apparently because their minds are free of conflicts.

Q Do bedtime snacks keep you awake?

THE REPORT OF THE PARTY OF THE

A Not if they create a sense of peace and well-being. But food does have a stimulating action on the system. It sets off various body activities (digestive processes, increase in metabolic rate) which can contribute to wakefulness. A rule to remember: Never cat a big meal just before retiring.

Q Is darkness necessary for proper sleep?

A It is not necessary, but it helps. Light stimulation, like other stimulation, can cause arousal; and darkness represents the time of quietness, which also promotes sleep.

• Are the early hours of sleep the best ones?

A You tend to sleep most deeply early in the night—shortly after you retire. But this does not mean that an hour of early, deep sleep is worth an hour and a half of lighter, early morning sleep. Researchers have found no weighty evidence that early (11 p.m.) sleep is "healthier" than later (4 a.m.) sleep.

Q Do you get to sleep earlier on heetic, high-pressure days than on easy-going, routine days?

A Scientists hedge on this question. Perhaps on a hectic day you fall off to sleep more easily than on a lazy day, but more important is your normal "sleep-waking cycle." Each of us has a sort of sleep-waking rhythm, the result of circumstances, experience and training. Other things being equal, we follow it.

Q Is sudden awakening harmful?

A No—for the average, healthy person. Sudden awakening can cause the heart to accelerate and blood pressure to go up for a short period; these are dangerous only in the presence of certain physical conditions.

Q Why can some people get up by themselves in the morning while others need an alarm clock?

A Under the proper circumstances, almost anyone can get up "on time" without using an alarm. If you go to sleep at, say, 11 p.m., you begin the waking process at about 1 a.m. From then on your sleep becomes lighter; by about 7, you are hovering at the point of wakefulness. Various stimuli are at work—light, the birds chirping, signals from your stomach and kidneys. Scientists suspect that if you want to face the day, if you look forward to its prospects, you are likely to get up without an alarm. If you are not eager to, you may do an amazing job of ignoring the stimuli and go right on snoozing.

Q Does the body sleep completely — or is there a "sixth sense" that remains awake?

A Apparently some sensory pathways to the brain do stay "awake" and functional even in sleep. Whether this can be described as a "sixth sense" is yet to be settled.

Q When do most dreams occur?

A Most authorities say it's during the phases of drowsiness and light sleep which precede and follow sleep's deepest phases. Some people claim they never dream. Researchers doubt that claim. They say all people dream, However, some simply never remember dreams. $50,000.00 Canada Dry Sweepstakes 5083 PRIZES

OBJECT LESSON: Three parked cars burn in a San Francisco street. The blaze started when another auto hit them.

WHAT TO DO WHEN...

by EDWARD D. FALES, JR.

Near Danbury, Conn., motorists recently saw the engine of an old car burst into flames. The car lurched off the road, stopped; the driver sprang out and frantically began pulling out luggage. Luckily, a quick-thinking truck driver came along. He stopped his truck a cautious 200 feet away, came running with an extinguisher and in 10 seconds had the fire out.

In Baltimore, Md., pedestrians noticed flames spurting from the right-rear wheel of a passing car and shouted a warning to the driver. He scrambled out. Unable to do anything, he retreated to a safe distance while the flames mushroomed under the gas tank. Someone finally called the firemen. By the time they arrived, the gas tank was frying merrily: The whole car would have followed had not a fireman doused the blaze with an extinguisher.

Trouble At Home

In neither of these emergencies did the driver know what to do nor did he have an extinguisher. Could you have dealt properly with either fire in your car?

Then there was the motorist who put his car away, went to bed and was awakened at 3 a.m. by a tremendous roar. Garage and car were a blazing inferno. If the garage had been under his house — as so many are today — the house might have burned, too.

"I should have known better," he said

the next day. "One evening last month my engine began smoking. I stopped at a gas station and a mechanic ripped off the worn battery cable. When the hot wires cooled, I drove on. I should have replaced the bad wiring immediately. But I forgot about it, and last night those same wires caused a short circuit."

These cases are typical. Every day 650 Americans have car fires. Of course, you may never have one—but to be fully safe you should 1) know what causes fires and how to prevent them; 2) learn what to do if a fire breaks out. The National Fire Prevention Association says virtually every car fire can be put out with little or no damage.

Another authority is the Rockford (Ill.) Fire Department, one of the few in the country that keeps a careful record of car fires. Its chief, Wayne Swenson, also is president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

In dealing with a fire caused by short-circuited battery wires, Chief Swenson advises: 1) Turn off your ignition, get everyone out of the car and have someone call firemen at once. 2) Lift the hood and disconnect the thick battery cable (if you don't, the fire will start again).

If the engine is in flames, use an extinguisher, or throw handfuls of dirt or sand. Don't use water — it may spread the grease-fed flames.

While short-circuiting is perhaps the most common cause of car fires, there are these other hazards to watch for:

- Overheated engine: May cause alcoholtype anti-freeze in radiator to boil over and ignite on hot engine.
- Brakes: If you smell a hot brake, or feel a drag while driving, check your brakes at once. Heat can ignite grease and spread fire to brake fluid.
- "Ground fumes" at gas station: When you are getting gas, don't smoke. Your car may be standing in a "lake" of gas fumes, which a spark can explode.
- Seat fire (second worst cause of car fire): Never throw a cigarette out of a car window while driving. It may blow back and smolder in the back seat — or land on a seat of the car in the other lane.
- Collision: First rule is, turn off your ignition and the ignition of the other car, if you possibly can.
- Backfire: If muffler is broken, flame can ignite leaking gasoline.

More Points to Watch

- Snow tires: If under-inflated, undue friction may ignite them.
- Broken rear spring: Causes rear wheel to shift back. This tightens emergency brake cable, sets brake. When car is driven, friction can ignite brake.
- Gas line: Always check it for leaks.
   On every car, gas line follows the hot exhaust manifold. Also see that carburetor and fuel-pump connections are tight.
- "Attached" garage: Make sure your garage is separated from your living quarters by a firewall (required by some city codes) or at least a fire-resistant wall. If you have a basement garage, be sure the ceiling is fire-resistant. Ordinary "sheet rock" or other fire-resistant composition board, nailed on walls and ceiling, can contain a fire for as much as 20 minutes.
- Final precautions: Keep checking your wiring even if your car is new. (Don't "fix" chafed or dried-out cracked wire. Replace it.) Never garage your car if it is leaking gas. Keep your engine clean. (Have it washed twice a year to remove highly inflammable grease and oil.) Last but not least: Buy a fire extinguisher.

WEIGHT-WATCHER'S PRUNE WHIP

- ⅓ pound dried prunes
- 1 cup water
- i teaspoon unflavored gelatin
- 1 tablespoon water
- 4 egg whites
- 2 teaspoons temon inice
- 2 teaspoons Sucaryl solution

Simmer prunes in water until soft, Pit prunes, force through sieve and add julce. Soften gelatin in i tablespoon water, dissolve over hot water. Beat egg whites until foamy; gradually beat in gelatin, lemon juice and Sucaryl. Fold in prune pulp. Chill. Makes 6 servings.

Note: For the topping, combine 1/2 cup nonfat dry milk solids, 1/2 cup ice water and 1/2 teaspoon Sucaryl in small bowl. Beat at high speed until consistency of whipped cream.

Sucaryl makes it easier for you to watch your weight...by giving you wholly natural sweetness without bitter affertaste, without one single calorie.

You use Sucaryl practically anywhere you would sugar...in coffee, tea or any other drink... on fruits and cereals. Cook with it, bake with it; any Sucarylsweetened dish tastes just like its sugar-sweetened twin. Sucaryl, of course, is for anyone sensibly

Girl friendships. "I'm 13. For the last two years I have had one very special friend. Now she likes someone else better. What can I do?" — C.L., Honolulu.

Dorothy Hollis, 15, says the same thing happened to her once. "It was a terrible blow. For a while I lost all confidence in myself and spent most of my time wondering what I could have done," she says.

After a while, though — and it does take a while to make friends, and you can be lonely in the meantime, she says — Dorothy began to pal around with another girl. And the next year she seemed to have not just one friend, but many,

One of the hardest things for Dorothy to learn was that, as you grow up, your friends are bound to change. And your interests are too.

Her advice to C.L. is to look around for other girls to do things with. It's fun to have more than one friend — especially during vacation, when best friends are so likely to be separated.

Conversation. Do you ever quake in your boots waiting for a new date to show up — wondering how you'll get through the evening, conversation-wise — trying to keep in mind what everyone has told you: talk about him, not about you?

Helen Hunter, 17, Pasadena, Calif., finds it's easier and more practical to do just the opposite.

First, she says, take it for granted that the boy asked you out because he wants to know you better. Then help him to do that — talk about yourself.

Tell him that you like Pat Boone but not Elvis Presley (if you do). That you had meat loaf for dinner which you simply can't stand. (Can he?) That you hope someday to see some really professional tennis matches. (Does he like tennis too?)

These are sample topics which will give your date a glimmer of what kind of a girl you are. They should make him feel more at ease — and soon he will be talking too.

Perhaps you'll find yourself in a fine, long discussion about swimming or some perfectly ridiculous fad such as wearing scatter pins or bobby socks. And the evening's off to a good start.

Seems to me Helen's idea sounds as though it would work with any boy. What do you think?

COPR., THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

An all-time great boxer tells TV comedians

'Don't call us

by TOMMY LOUGHRAN

Red Skelton bounced out on the TV stage. Dressed in a baggy turtleneck sweater, he made windmill motions with a pair of boxing gloves, bobbing and ducking wildly around the ring.

The television audience roared at this comical impersonation of a boxer. Watching my TV screen, I had to laugh too. And then, suddenly, Skelton stopped being funny.

He began impersonating a helpless, "punchy" ex-boxer named "Cauliflower McPugg." He mumbled, jigged crazily whenever a bell sounded, screamed that he heard "strange sounds" in his head.

The studio audience laughed uproariously at Skelton's capering. But he got no laughs from me - and not just because I happen to be an ex-fighter.

When I see boxers pictured on TV and in the movies as pathetic stumblebums, I burn, Why? For two good reasons:

- 1) The public is led to think that most ex-fighters are "punch drunk." But that just isn't so. There's new medical evidence, for instance, indicating that punches don't make anyone "drunk."
- 2) The comedians create the illusion that so-called "punch-drunkenness" is a funny thing. If we think being "punch-

punchy!'

drunk" is funny, then we should also find great humor in persons who are crippled, deformed or mentally ill.

· Skelton, of course, is not the only offender. Jackie Gleason and Peter Lind Hayes, to name just two, find great fun in picturing ex-boxers as idints.

Some ex-fighters are guilty, too. You may have seen Rocky Graziano, the former middleweight champion, on TV. Once I interviewed Bocky during a televised boxing show. I asked him to describe his then new book, Somebody Up There Likes Me.

"Well, Tommy," he mumbled, "it's about how I was raised on the East Side of New York and all and could've wound up in the electric chair."

"Why, Rocky," I said, "I've known hundreds of people from the East Side who didn't end up in the electric chair."

Rocky just shrugged, "That's what they told me to say."

"Who are they?"

What the Doctors Say

Rocky's put-on dumbness, of course, is part of his television and night-club act. But many people, after hearing him, undoubtedly say: "See, what did I tell you? All those ex-fighters are punch-drunk."

Yet our best medical researchers—who should know who's punch-drunk and who isn't—are not as sure as the self-styled "experts." Writing recently in The Journal of the American Medical Association, two New York City doctors pointed out that those who talk about a "punchdrunk" fighter actually "know nothing of his intellectual capacity during his prefight years, his environment, his heritage or his educational advantages."

In other words, a "punch-drunk" fighter might have been mentally retarded—because of heredity or a lack of opportunity to develop his mental abilities—before he ever started fighting.

"Certainly," wrote the doctors, "a bashed-in nose, scars over the eyes and cauliflower ears" do not mean a man has a slow-moving mind.

What a punch can do to a fighter's brain has been greatly exaggerated, added the researchers. They pointed out that only the rare punch to the head knocks out a fighter. Jack Dempsey, possibly the

And even those few punches, I've noticed after 30 years in boxing as a fighter and spectator, do not harm the brain of a normal, well-conditioned boxer. For proof, have a look at the fighters who took an awful lot of head punches during their careers — but were always in condition. Here are just four:

- Top heavyweight Tommy Gibbons: for 20 years he's been the sheriff of St. Paul, Minn.
- Ex-heavyweight champion Gene Tunney: he's now a successful executive.
- Former heavyweight contender Armand Emmanuel: he's a Los Angeles attorney.

EX-CHAMP Racky Graziano makes like a truly "punch-drunk" type on Martha Raye's TV show.

• Ex-flyweight champion Fidel La Barba: he's a writer in Hollywood.

There are plenty more.

Now, of course there are ex-fighters who might well be called "punch-drunk." You see them — mumbling, glassy-eyed, half-wrecks of men — hanging around fight arenas. I could name a dozen right now. But I maintain these men are not mentally defective because they took too many punches in the head.

The Real Cause

Their brains were damaged, I have found, either because they suffer from an inherent mental defect or because they contracted some disease which ravaged their brains.

Thousands of other unfortunates are just like these ex-pugilists. They are people who never entered a ring — who once were cashiers, accountants, typists, business executives, even comedians. They're called mentally defective or mentally ill.

Ex-fighters, though, are just plain "punchy."

Today, nobody makes fun of mentally ill accountants. Why aren't mentally ill ex-fighters treated with the same compassion? One big reason is that the "punchdrunk" fighter so long has been held up to public ridicule by the Gleasons, the Skeltons and the Hayeses.

What these performers are doing is, to me, absolutely despicable. Those are strong words. But I'm going to keep on repeating them till television comedians remember what any gentleman knows—that some of our fellow men are objects more for pity than for laughter.
